

INCURABLE.

That is What the Books Say of Chronic Kidney Disease. But the New Fulton Compounds Have a Record of 87% of Recoveries Among Chronic Cases Incurable by All Other Medicines.

Druggists know that kidney disease that has hung on eight or ten months has become chronic and that it is then regarded by physicians as incurable and that up to the advent of the Fulton Compounds that nothing on their shelves would touch it. It is a proven fact that nearly nine-tenths of all cases are now curable, and druggists themselves are taking the new Compounds. One of the recoveries was Dr. Zelle himself, the pioneer druggist of 222 Pacific street, San Francisco, and he gave it to over a dozen others who recovered. Here is another interesting recovery. (We copy from the Sacramento News of November 14, 1903.)

After a serious illness of over a year Judge J. E. Allen of this city has recovered and regards himself most fortunate in successfully battling with what is generally regarded as a fatal malady, Bright's Disease of the kidneys, in spreading of his case Judge Allen said: "I believe that the treatment given me by my physician was in accordance with the best methods used in the regular practice of medicine, but it afforded me no relief. Hearing of the Fulton Compounds I went to San Francisco to investigate and was soon convinced I should undergo the treatment. It was three months before I noticed a change for the better. I used the medicine faithfully for nearly a year and now find no evidence of the disease and am satisfied it is entirely eliminated. My appetite is good, I have gained seventeen pounds in weight and will be pleased to describe my experience to anyone who may call or write."

PLATFORM.

"Workingmen of all countries, unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains. You have a world to gain!"

We, the Socialist party of Clackamas county, in convention assembled, proclaim our allegiance to the Socialist party of America and affirm our unflinching adherence to the principles and program of international revolutionary Socialism.

In presenting our candidates to the working class and those in sympathy with it, we base our appeal upon the following declarations and our platform of principles:

- 1. Labor produces all wealth.
2. Under the present economic and political conditions labor's share in the wealth it creates is merely a mean and uncertain subsistence.
3. So long as the present organization of industry remains the capitalist class will monopolize the machines of production and will appropriate, through the wage system, the wealth created by the working class.
4. This appropriation of labor's wealth by the capitalists is so complete that it enables them to live in luxury and idleness.
5. As a necessary consequence of this exploitation of the laborers by the capitalists—this expropriation of all property out of the hands of the toilers into the private ownership of the holders of capital, there is an inevitable war between the interests of the working class on one hand and the interests of the capitalist class on the other.
6. This class struggle between the wealth makers and the wealth takers will endure so long as our present system of production for profit continues.
7. In this conflict between the workers and the capitalists, labor is disarmed on the economic side, all the instruments of production and distribution of wealth being owned and controlled by the holders of capital.
8. There is only one weapon with which the working class can successfully oppose the capitalist class—and that is the ballot.
9. This fact demands an inevitable conclusion, the organization of the working class into a political party that shall be, everywhere and always, distinct from and opposed to every political party not founded entirely upon the interests of the working class, the Socialist party is organized to meet this demand, and is therefore the party of the working class.
10. The Socialist Party, when in office, shall always and everywhere, until the present system of wage slavery is utterly abolished, make the answer to this question its guiding rule of conduct. Will this legislation advance the interests of the working class, and aid the workers in their class struggle against capitalism? If it does, the Socialist party is for it; if it does not, the Socialist party is absolutely opposed to it.
11. In accordance with this principle, the Socialist party pledges itself to conduct all the public affairs of this country in such a manner as to promote the interests of the working class.
12. In conclusion, we appeal to all workingmen to study the principles of Socialism, to vote with their class at all elections until they overthrow the power of capitalism, abolish industrial classes in society, terminate forever the class struggle and inaugurate the Co-operative Commonwealth based upon this fundamental principle of justice: To every worker the full product of his labor! C. E. SPENCK.

JUDGE ALTON B. PARKER.

Career of a Presidential Possibility, Son of a Farmer.

The following interesting sketch of Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, the probable Democratic Presidential candidate, appeared in a recent issue of the San Francisco Argonaut.

A few weeks ago, except to those in close touch with everything political, Judge Alton B. Parker, Chief Justice of the New York Court of Appeals was almost as unknown as Bryan was before he made his "Cross of Gold" speech. Now he is rapidly acquiring national fame, although not through any utterances of his own. He is today the strongest hope of the Democratic party, and the man who, from present indications, will be nominated for President at the St. Louis convention in July. His own silence as to his views and ambitions piques curiosity and interest, and makes the public, that recently knew him not, eager to hear what manner of man he is.

Judge Parker's comparative obscurity is not due to lack of talent or ability, but to his idea of the dignity of his position. He is rare in holding that a wearer of the ermine should not discuss politics, and he consistently carries out this belief. Not a word can be got out of him regarding his candidacy. Work for him is going on, but without his support or help. He is Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, and is going calmly on with his duties, working hard as he has always done. He is entirely in the hands of his friends.

Judge Parker's career has been neither sensational nor meteoric. He was born on a farm near Cortland, N. Y., on May 14, 1852, and consequently is nearly fifty-two years of age. He came from excellent, sturdy stock on both sides. His boyhood life was that of tens of thousands of farmer boys. When he was sixteen years of age he became a school teacher. His pupils were large and rough, but young Parker established discipline by knocking down the bully of the school. He taught four years and then entered a law firm at Kingston. He attended the Albany law school, was admitted to the bar, and opened an office at Kingston with a partner named Kenyon. He practiced his profession with great success, and in 1877, was elected surrogate for Ulster county, serving two terms. Then Judge Schoonmaker, whose office Parker had studied, was "thrown down" by his party. Parker went into the campaign, and restored the Judge to popular favor. In 1885 he became chairman of the Democratic State Executive committee, managing the campaign in which David B. Hill was elected Governor of New York. Hill appointed him a Judge on the State Supreme Court bench when Justice Westbrook died. When his term expired he was unanimously nominated for the same office by the Democrats, and the Republicans paid him the compliment of not nominating an opponent. He was only thirty-three when he first took his seat, and he served until 1897. Then he was elected to his present position by a plurality of about sixty thousand votes. He has been on the bench for nineteen years.

Such is the career of Judge Alton B. Parker. He has been offered other positions, but has refused them. In 1883 and 1885, he declined the nomination for the lieutenant-governorship, and in 1891, was offered the candidacy for governor, but would not take it. He could have been candidate for United States Senator after Hill's election had he so chosen. In 1895, President Cleveland, who was a warm personal friend of Judge Parker, telegraphed him to come to Washington, and offered him the position of assistant postmaster, which he also declined. With all this, though, he has taken the strongest interest in politics, keeping close track of every move. He is a strong partisan, having voted for Bryan in 1896, although not a believer in free silver, but not a free-trader. His views on the trusts, Philippines, Panama, etc., are not known.

The personality behind this career is an interesting one. Judge Parker is a striking man in many ways. He is nearly six feet in height, and weighs about two hundred pounds. He is as straight as an arrow, and strong as an athlete. All his life he has taken good care of himself, and, in the prime of his manhood, it is said that when he is out riding he throws his arms about in the excess of his vigor. His face is strong, full of color, his eyes are large and brown, wavy, almost red, shaggy eyebrows, his hair and large mustache are tawny, almost red. His jaws are formidable, his chin, round, firm and strong. His nose is aquiline, his cheekbones high, his forehead broad, lofty, full, smooth, unwrinkled. His gaze is straightforward and penetrating, and he carries himself with dignity; although, off the bench and at his home, he is a charming conversationalist. He is a man of exceptional courtesy. One of the remarkable facts about Judge Parker, considering how little attention the majority of great men pay to external appearances, is that he is a careful dresser, donning a riding suit for his morning carter, a business suit for his daily duties, and invariably, whether at Albany or on his farm, putting on evening dress for dinner. Judge Parker's chief delight is in his country life. He has three farms—one of one hundred and fifty acres at Cortland, another of the same area at Accord, and a third of ninety acres at Esopus. It is at the latter that he makes his home at each week end and during his summer vacation. Here he leads a regular farmer's life when his judicial work will permit. He arises early, takes his plunge in the Hudson if the weather is warm enough, and a horseback ride regardless of weather. All the time he can be put in with his cattle and horses, of which he is very proud. His house is a comfortable wooden structure, part of which dates from colonial times. It is on a slope, commanding an extensive view of the Hudson. It has a spacious dining room, a well-stocked library, and is comfortable, cheery, and hospitable looking. In the house, as all over the farm, thrift and orderliness mark everything. His wife and mother, his daughter, his son-in-law (Rev. Charles Mercer Hall), and his two grandchildren share his home. He delights in hospitality, and is happy when at the head of his long mahogany table, with a goodly company gathered. He smokes very little, then only after dinner. His life at Albany is as simple and unassuming as on the farm. The amount of work that Judge Parker can do is prodigious. His methodical habits and perfect health make him capable of great tasks. Nothing is slighted. He goes over every decision carefully and conscientiously. When he makes a decision he does it without waste of words—and it stands. His associates say that he does everything in his power to save them unnecessary work, and he is the only member of the Court of Appeals who is always present when the court is open.

Although not ostentatiously religious, Judge Parker attends service in his son-in-law's church at Kingston, nine miles from Esopus, every Sunday. His servants are Roman Catholics, and he has them driven to their own church regularly. His tastes in reading run to the best magazines, and Dickens, Thackeray, and Scott are his favorite novellists. Jefferson is his best-liked political writer, and he especially delights in any good work on farming and cattle raising. He likes simple music, and sometimes sings. His daughter is an accomplished pianist. His instincts are neighborly, and he takes a keen and active interest in all local affairs. He is a vestryman in the Kingston church, and helps along with its sewing and physical culture classes, its boys' gymnasium, and other adjuncts. He is a contributor to the orphan asylum, and one of the managers of the Kingston County Hospital. He is freight agent for a steamship company, so that the private dock on his farm may be used for the convenience of the community.

Judge Parker's private fortune is estimated at about thirty thousand dollars. He has never speculated, his worldly goods consisting of his farms, the profits from them, and what he saves of his salary. He is said to have no ambition for wealth.

PACIFIC COAST EXPOSITION.

Lewis and Clark Centennial at Portland, Oregon, Next Year.

International scope is assured to the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition to be held at Portland, Oregon, from June 1st to October 25, 1905, by President Roosevelt's approval of the act of Congress making an appropriation for the Exposition, and his invitation to foreign countries to participate. Portland's Exposition will represent a total outlay of over $5,000,000. Though covering 405 acres of land and natural lake, it will be compact in form, and the average person will be able to see and comprehend it all in a few days at moderate cost. The cream of the foreign and domestic exhibits to be made at St. Louis this year will be transferred to Portland at the close of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. The United States exhibit will be moved entire to Portland and installed in buildings to be specially erected. This exhibit will be worth $800,000. In addition, Portland will have many features which will not be seen at St. Louis, such as exhibits demonstrating the life, customs and industries of China, Japan, Hawaii, Siberia, Russia, Alaska, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and India.

The Lewis and Clark Centennial will be the first international exposition under Government patronage ever held on the Pacific Coast. It will be in every way a Western Exposition. The railroads will make low rates from Missouri and Mississippi river points to Portland and exceptionally low rates will be in effect between Portland and the Rocky Mountain region.
