ments for the past six years. The business was established by Mr. R. W. Brown, and about four years ago Mr. Francis Welch was admitted as a partner in the business. They carry a full line of fresh, salt and cured meats, as well as fish, poultry and game in season. At no time has this market been more popular than now, and in no shop is a better quality of meats exposed for sale. In these days of adulteration it behooves everyone to be careful, but you will make no mistake if these gentlemen supply your table. They are gentlemen who thoroughly understand the business, and we take pleasure in recommending them to the general public.

Elk Horn Livery Stable. Elegance and taste, combined with good horseflesh are essential to the up-to-date liveryman, and the rigs and turnouts of the Elk Horn Livery Stable are readily recognized by these distinctions. Promptness is also a characteristic of this barn, and teams may be had on a moment's notice. Careful drivers are furnished and every attention is given to the traveling public. Mr. D. R. Dimick, proprietor of this barn, has been in business here for the past year and a half, and has built up a good business. He has the finest stock and the best equipped rigs in the city, while his prices are very reasonable. Farmers' teams are fed at a nominal cost. When in the city stop at the Elk Horn Livery Stable.

Richard Petzold. The art of properly handling meat so that it will be delivered to the cook in proper condition for preparation into an appetizing dish is one that is not learned in a few weeks or months. Mr. Richard Petzold, proprietor of the Oregon City Cash Market, learned his trade in the severe school of experience, and has been actively engaged in the butcher business here for the past eleven years. He does a wholesale and retail business and carries a large line of fresh, salt and cured meats in stock at all times. He renders his own lard, slaughters his own meats and manufactures his own sausages, which have an extensive sale in this section. Meats are delivered free to all parts of the city, and he makes it a point to be on time. If you want the best patronize Mr. Petzold.

A. Mihalstin. In this review of Oregon City we must not omit the name of A. Mihalstin, the leading plumber. This gentleman has been in business here for the past four years, and has built up a large and growing trade. He is a workman of skill and ability himself, and he employs none but competent help, and every job turned out by him can be depended upon. He carries a full line of plumbers' supplies and does all kinds of plumbing, heating and general jobbing work. He has a first class tinshop in connection, and turns out large quantities of tin, copper and sheet metal work. Mr. Mihalstin is a leading business man and a public-spirited citizen well known in this city.

Miss Celia Goldsmith. Ladies who seek the latest creations in millinery should bear in mind the attractive parlors of Miss Celia Goldsmith. Here all the latest styles and fashions are to be seen and hats and bonnets, trimmed and untrimmed, are displayed, all models of taste and beauty, which cannot fail to please. While her goods leave nothing to be desired it must not be supposed that her prices are high, for on the contrary they are most reasonable. Miss Goldsmith has been in business here for the past nine years and has built up a splendid trade. She is a lady possessing rare ability in this line and is in close touch with the best markets. Her mid-summer sale is now on and her bewildering display of artistic and fashionable hats are being closed out regardless of cost.

Notice is hereby given that I will apply to the city council at the regular June meeting for a renewal of my liquor license at the present place of business, corner of Seventh street and Railroad avenue. JACOB WIND.

Duane C. Ely. The name of Duane C. Ely is known to every family within a trade radius of Oregon City, and the fame of his progressive and liberal methods of doing business attracts trade from far and near. Mr. Ely has been in business here for the past seventeen years and by fair and honorable dealing he has built up a large and growing trade. He carries a large and complete line of dry goods, notions, furnishing goods and everything new, fine or fashionable in foot wear. He also handles high grade buggies, wagons and everything used in planting, cultivating and harvesting of crops. Everything sold by this gentleman is with the express understanding that it will prove just as represented. Mr. Ely is a public-spirited business man and is always to the front when the best interests of the city are at stake.

A. Robertson. Prominent among the many dealers engaged in the grocery trade in this city may be mentioned Mr. A. Robertson, the reliable Seventh street grocery dealer. This gentleman has been engaged in the business here since 1892, and is well and favorably known. He handles a large and complete stock of staple and fancy groceries, canned goods, fruits, produce and provisions, and his prices are as low as good goods can be sold for. Fair dealing and liberality have characterized his career here, and by long experience and intimate knowledge of the business he has always been able to control a large and appreciative patronage. Mr. Robertson is one of the representative business men of Oregon City, and a public-spirited citizen.

J. E. Seeley. The people of Oregon City are fast learning where to go when they want to buy the best quality of staple and fancy groceries at the lowest prevailing prices. Mr. Seeley established the People's Grocery last September, and is fast building up an extensive trade. He carries a large stock of choice groceries, fine teas and coffees, fresh fruits and vegetables, flour, feed and provisions. Mr. Seeley takes pride in his fine teas and coffees, and his prices are always at the bottom. His store is kept neat, clean and inviting, and all goods are warranted to prove as represented. Goods delivered promptly to all parts of the city and courteous treatment is extended to all. If you have not had the pleasure of doing business with Mr. Seeley, by all means try the experiment. It will please and pay you. Ring up phone 1555.

Francis Freeman, Dentist. Keeping pace with the advance in the science of medicine and progressing wonderfully in the art of relieving pain, calling to its aid intricate mechanical devices and methods of treating the gums, the dental profession has during the past few years been practically revolutionized. Dr. Francis Freeman, of this city, is a graduate of the Northwestern University Dental School and the American College of Dental Surgery. He cast his fortunes with the people of this city about seven years ago, and has built up a large practice. He practices all branches of dentistry and a high order of crown and bridge work is done. Extracting is done in the least painful manner and the making of artificial teeth is performed in the most scientific way. His methods and work are thoroughly modern and everything turned out is as perfect as the latest mechanical devices and human skill can accomplish.

Shank & Bissell. The firm of Shank & Bissell, efficient funeral directors, began business here some three years ago, and those who have procured their services have appreciated the refinement and consideration displayed in the directing of funerals. Their advent into the city has made it possible for the people to secure the best of undertakers' goods and services at prices far less than ever known before. Mr. Shank is especially fitted for this line of work, being the only man in the county who has passed the state board of health examination, qualifying him for handling and shipping bodies dead of contagious diseases. He is also a graduate of the best embalming college in the United States. They do undertaking in all of its branches and everything is performed in the most modern and professional manner.

Brunswick House. Among the popular hotels of this city there is none that offers better service than the Brunswick House. It is new and modern, has twenty-four nicely-furnished rooms, and the table is supplied with the best the markets afford. The dining room is open day and night, and regular meals, short orders and lunches are served at popular prices. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Catta, the proprietors, have conducted the Brunswick for the past two and a half years, and the house is well and favorably known to the traveling public. Accommodations are provided for a large number and the premises are kept neat, clean and inviting. A cordial welcome is extended to the new arrival and the parting guest is speeded upon his way with benedictions of pleasant recollections.

Howell & Jones. Well regulated drug stores are the prime necessities of all cities. This leads us to direct attention to the drug store conducted by Howell & Jones, located in Garde building, near the suspension bridge. This firm is composed of T. Chambers Howell and Linn E. Jones, both natives of Oregon City, and are pioneers in the drug business, having served a fifteen-years apprenticeship. When they started this store it was predicted by many that they could not succeed, and they were advised by many of their friends not to make the venture, as the drug business was thought to be over done at that time. Nevertheless, in the face of the hardest kind of Portland and Oregon City competition they have in the short space of one, two years built up their business until now they have the largest and most up-to-date exclusive pharmacy in Clackamas county. By making a specialty of prescription work and giving it their personal attention they have attained wonderful success along this line. They only use pure, fresh drugs and chemicals and by always keeping a complete line of the latest remedies and newest preparations the doctor is assured that any prescription he may write will be properly filled at their store. By their accuracy and conscientiousness they are enjoying the patronage of all the best doctors in this vicinity. This has been the stepping stone to their success, until now they have by far the largest prescription business in the state outside of Portland, filling as many other two stores in the city, and as many in two years as the others have in twenty. Their paint department is a model of completeness. Having everything in this line from a window pane to a barrel of oil or a ton of lead. You will find here also a splendid assortment of fancy stationery, tablets, paper pencils, etc. They have kept their stock of druggists sundries abreast with their prescription counter, that the customer will be able to find any and all toilet articles at department store prices. Its surprising the amount of trade this firm does, and traveling men are often heard to remark that they have never seen a store grow as this one.

T. L. Charman. A better time to profitably invest money in real estate in this section of Oregon never existed. Real estate values of all kinds are advancing rapidly and now is the time to buy. Mr. T. L. Charman is a large property owner in this county and offers to the prospective settler an opportunity to buy from first hands. Mr. Charman has farming land, fruit farms, acreage property, city and suburban property all of which is placed on the market at very reasonable prices. Long time and low rates of interest are given on deferred payments. Mr. Charman is reliable and responsible, and all business transactions with him will be on a fair and honorable basis. He is a native son of Oregon, and has resided here all of his life. He is a leading business man of this city and an enterprising and public-spirited citizen.

The Red Front. Close to the Court House is E. C. Hamilton's general store, known as the Red Front. This is quite a different store and quite different methods prevail. The "Underbuy, Undersell, Cash" plan is the rule here. It is a good rule too, and it works both ways. Many goods, such as millinery, clothing shoes and hats, frequently stand 40 to 100 per cent profit. The Red Front's plan of selling these goods as well as groceries, on a small margin, causes them to move many times faster and brings business in with a rush. Better goods are bought, especially in shoes, when priced on the live and let live plan, better satisfaction is given and a constantly growing trade is the reward. Special mention should be made of the millinery and dressmaking departments, which are under the able supervision of experienced people. This is the most complete general merchandise store in Oregon City, and receives a big part of the farmers' trade. Produce in large or small quantities bought and sold. The store advertises liberally and clinches its arguments with irresistible prices—prices not for an hour or a day, but until stock is gone. This store can be heartily recommended to the buying public.

Geo. Hoeye, Dentist. While it may not be pleasant to even think of going to a dental office for any kind of an operation, yet it is always beneficial to know the skilled and experienced operator when necessity compels a visit. This at one time or another is sure to be the lot of all, hence to point out to the general public an able member of the profession will be a favor to our readers. We refer to Dr. Geo. Hoeye. Dr. Hoeye cast his fortunes with the people of this city about six years ago, and has built up an enviable reputation and a large practice. He does crown and bridge work of all kinds and pays special attention to rectifying irregularities of the teeth and deformities of the mouth.

J. A. Cain. Lots of butchers know all about meats, except how to cut them, but Mr. J. A. Cain is a past grand master in this art. He is an expert meat cutter, and has conducted a shop here at the corner of Seventh and Monroe streets for the past year and a half. He carries a large stock of fresh, salt and cured meats, and everything usually found in a first class market. His shop is neat, clean and inviting, and bears every indication that it is run by a gentleman of ability. Mr. Cain is a clever, courteous gentleman, and is a business man of good standing. He supplies many of the best families in this city with their meats, and no one has cause for complaint. Phone 1861.
