REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President: THEODORE ROOSEVELT Of New York.

For Vice President: CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS Of Indiana.

Presidential Electors: J. N. Hart, of Polk. G. B. Dimick, of Clackamas. A. C. Hough, of Josephine. J. A. Fee, of Umatilla.

"NOT CONSERVATIVE BUT NEGATIVE."

Those who have expected that on the removal of the judicial seal from his lips Judge Parker would show himself a great constructive statesman are doomed to disappointment.

The whole speech is an obvious attempt to force the personal issue to the front, to bury out of sight the Democracy which has only been insane for eight years, but for four years before that played havoc with the Administration of its own "safe and sane" President, Cleveland, and to put forward Judge Parker as better than his party.—The New York Tribune.

FORCING THE PERSONAL ISSUE TO THE FRONT.

The most positive and definite statement in Judge Parker's speech of acceptance is his declaration that in case he is elected he will "not be a candidate for," nor will he "accept a renomination" to the presidency.

The average newspaper reader will not be slow in discovering in this remark a gentle fling at President Roosevelt. That fling, however, is robbed somewhat of its sting by the fact that Theodore Roosevelt was not elected to the office that he now holds.

The fact is that the American people have little fear that a president who is ambitious for a second term will grossly misuse his power to accomplish that end. Every president, from Washington down to McKinley, who has been reelected, has passed into history as a capable, high-minded and patriotic Chief Magistrate of this Republic.

Democrats care very little about Candidate Davis's age so long as he displays a generous disposition.

Gen. McClellan repudiated the Democratic platform in 1864, just as Judge Parker has repudiated it in 1904. The results will be about the same.

The Democratic claim of wonders they will work if given power should be discounted by a backward glance at their past failures and follies.

The American flag was never more universally respected than it is now or the power of the republic more sensibly felt everywhere. Why change?

It must seem a little awkward for the Democrats to ask for power, not on their own record, but on the strength of the Republican party's record.

The Democrats might have been dangerous opponents of the Republicans this year if they had repudiated Bryanism at St. Louis, instead of compromising with it.

Sight should not be lost of the fact that so far as the Democratic platform is concerned the party stands just where it did in 1896 and in 1900 on the money question.

Each and every table of statistics showing the growth of trade and manufactures under Republican rule spells prosperity for the people and disappointment to Democratic hopes.

Democratic managers in estimating the electoral college vote follow the report of the boy who was catching rats. He said: "When I get the one I am after and two more, I'll have three."

The Democrats are appealing to "the masses." The American people made it plain in 1896 and again in 1900 whether they wanted an administration of the masses, the classes or the whole people.

"It is at no time possible to have adopted a gold standard platform at St. Louis," says Senator Culberson of Texas. No one will question Senator Culberson's right to speak with authority on Democratic policies.

Democratic managers propose to make the campaign "on President Roosevelt's personality." They will find that the heart and the conscience of the masses are with him and that he can not be defeated by any effort to exaggerate his faults or obscure his virtues.

A Nevada man reports having encountered a body of migrating snakes and other reptiles numbering millions, the collection measuring one hundred yards across and a half-mile in length. This state would prove a splendid field for missionary work for Local Optionists.

The captors of the religious lunatic Creffield at Corvallis, contribute a surprise in the concluding scenes of the disgusting affair by refusing to accept the reward money aggregating $350, that had been offered for the capture of the false prophet. O. V. Hurt and son Roy, together with the local chief of police Lane, who located Creffield and turned him over to the authorities, have signed a written request, asking that the reward money revert to the donors.

DOES IT APPLY TO OREGON CITY?

In a recent decision the Oregon Supreme Court held that mandamus will lie to compel the chief of police of Portland to enforce the ordinances against gambling. Does this decision apply to Woodburn?—Independent.

The same question might be asked concerning Oregon City. Gambling games, such as poker, black-jack, or twenty-one and craps, are again being conducted in Oregon City in open violation of city ordinance and state law. These games were suppressed for a brief period of time during the sessions of the Chautauqua and for a short time following. But the "orders" that are periodically issued, have evidently been revoked. At any rate, the gambling business has been resumed.

The Story of a Wild Automobile.

An automobile on a wild, unmanageable career on a mountain side, with its terrified driver in magnificent haste to get out of the way of the strenuous thing, was an accident last week in the hills west of Summit. The auto was a Salem machine, and its owner is John Albert of the Capital city.

The auto refused to be controlled. Without warning, it left the road, and began to climb the mountain side. Early in the game Albert was thrown out and Maurer was left alone in the seat of the unruly machine.

The auto refused to be controlled. Without warning, it left the road, and began to climb the mountain side. Early in the game Albert was thrown out and Maurer was left alone in the seat of the unruly machine. The latter struck for a while but presently, he, too, was thrown out. Almost immediately the machine turned its course down the hill, by which its latest occupant became pursued, and the machine, the pursuer. It was a race for life to the bottom of the hill, and the pursued was fully aware of it. Sometimes, as the story is told in the neighborhood, the auto went end over end, and so did the man. Each time however, the man hit running and he managed finally, to make the little meadow at the foot of the hill, where there was succor of peril. There, too, the auto finally alighted, with much of its outer works damaged. The next day they took a train for Salem. They came back afterwards with such parts as the machine needed to make it navigable. The machine is at Salem again now, and again in the ring, but the men who recently attempted to drive it to Newport consider it too strenuous an auto to be trusted on the Newport hills. At the same time, all the denizens of the vicinity who have heard of the incident, would rather trust themselves behind the wildest pair of Mexican mules on a mountain road than to attempt a passage on an automobile.—Corvallis Times.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport, was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out, and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicine.—Hikader, Iowa, Argus. This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by G. A. Harding.
