Concert Favorably Spoken Of.

Oregon City, Oregon, Nov. 29, 1904.

To the Editor:—
At the request of some of the friends of the girls, I wish to say a word for the concert to be given on December 10th, by Miss Mary Conyers, Mrs. Charles Pope and Miss Veda Williams. None of us have forgotten the many times these estimable young ladies have sung for public causes, school, church, social and charitable events, delighting all with their willingness to assist any good cause. Oregon City is a liberal patron of music and the theatre, and now, when some of our own home girls have undertaken an exhibition to assist them in their musical studies, let us all turn out and give them a rousing benefit. By such appreciation only can we encourage the rising talent among us.

If it be true, as we have often heard, that the mild Pacific climate is especially favorable to vocal development, then in the years to come more and more will the world at large come to recognize the advantages for singers on this coast. Meanwhile let us do what we can, to assist in plumbing our songbirds for further flights.

Yours respectfully,
EVA EMERY DYE.

NATIONAL GRANGE ADJOURNS.

1905 Convention Will Be Held in New Jersey.

Before adjourning its sessions last week, the National Grange Convention at Portland, went on record as favoring the introduction of industrial education, particularly along the lines of scientific farming and the late agricultural methods into the country schools. The resolution of Master F. A. Derthick, of Ohio, to that effect several days ago was reported by the committee on education, and the project was commended. The report favored the appointment of a committee to investigate to what degree it was advisable to introduce nature studies and industrial training into the rural schools. The committee's report was an able and exhaustive one. Among other things recommended was a system of school consolidation in the rural districts. It was introduced by George S. Ladd, master of the Massachusetts State Grange, and was adopted by the convention.

Neither Hartford, Conn., or Washington, D. C., thought to be the two likeliest candidates for the next convention, are to have that honor, as the delegates this morning voted to go to New Jersey next year, upon invitation from the miquito state. A rival invitation also came from Connecticut, but the vote stood 22 to 18 in favor of New Jersey, and the farmers will meet next year in the very hotbed of trusts. The city where the gathering will meet will be decided later by the executive committee, but the time of meeting will be the same as this year, beginning the second Wednesday in November.

W. F. Hill, chairman of the committee on co-operation, made an exhaustive report, showing the results co-operation had accomplished among the Granges of the East, and recommending more attention to it in the future. The report was adopted.
