It is just three feet wide and 12 feet 6 inches deep and will seat only four people. Half of the 12 feet feet is taken up by the kitchen, which contains a small refrigerator, a gas range, a coffee urn and a very complete cupboard. Every bit of room from floor to ceiling is used. The one table is 18 inches wide and three and one-half feet long. There are four stationary chairs, which are in constant use.

The "Success" restaurant occupies a niche between two business blocks and can never hope to grow. It is located in the very center of Butte, near the corner of Main and Broadway, and catches the night trade from reporters, gamblers and those who eat in a hurry. Only the best materials are used and the prices are high.—From the Pacific Monthly for December.
