Frank McGinnis, chief of the Oregon City Fire Department and captain and manager of the hose team from this city that participated in the recent firemen's tournament here, was in Portland this week, where he conferred with the management of the Lewis and Clark Exposition with a view to having the Oregon City hose team enter in the hose race tournament that is to be held at the Fair during the month of August.

A party of 100 persons who are attending the Methodist Conference at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, spent the day at Oregon City, Wednesday, visiting the various landmarks of interest that are so closely associated with early Methodism in the Northwest. Among the places of historical interest in this city that were visited were the first Methodist church building that was erected in the state, and the residence and grave of Dr. and Mrs. John McLoughlin. While in the city, the visitors were the guests of the members of the Oregon City Methodist congregation.

At a special meeting of the Milwaukie City Council held Tuesday night, an ordinance was introduced repealing the ordinance by which there was granted by the city to the Milwaukie Country Club a license to conduct a pool room. It is reported the repealing ordinance will be passed by the Council. In eliminating that part of the license pertaining to the pool room, it is probable that the cases now pending against the proprietors of the Milwaukie resort may be dropped as pool selling has constituted the principal objection the authorities have held against the place.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was that of a family reunion ten-day in honor of Mrs. J. A. Jacobs' 50th birthday at the home of Mrs. T. M. Long, of Canemah, last Sunday. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Long, in which the members of the family participated. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hedges, Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Hedges, of Everett, Washington; Mrs. T. M. Long, Misses Bertha Long, Evelyn Hedges, Dorothy Hedges, Mary Ellen Long and Mayme Long; W. A. Hedges, Joseph Hedges and Gilbert Long.

Batavia and Duck and Lnen hats, new arrivals. Miss Goldsmith's.

Travel-stained, but by no means fatigued after 28 days' tramping across the states of California and Oregon, the Eureka, California, Cadets arrived in Oregon City Wednesday morning en route to the Lewis & Clark Exposition where they will be encamped for some time before starting for their home on the return trip. The cadets are in charge of Rev. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church at Eureka and they are a husky lot of fellows ranging from 11 to 24 years of age. Wednesday evening an interesting entertainment was given at the First Congregational church by the Cadets who continued their march to Portland the following day. The California invaders were welcomed to Oregon City by the Boys' Brigade of this city, under the command of Captain Jas. P. Shaw. The California Cadets left Eureka June 12 and have been tramping ever since.

Dr. W. E. Carl and Dr. C. A. Stuart, two prominent physicians and surgeons of this city, have been made defendants in a suit for $5000 damages that was brought in the state circuit court by J. M. Marlin, administrator of the estate of Maggie Goetjen. In his complaint Marlin alleges that the Goetjen woman died July 20, 1903, from the effects of a surgical operation performed by the defendants in the performance of which they are charged with unskilled and negligent professional services. Wm. Reid and Magers and Hosford are attorneys for the plaintiff. About a year ago a similar suit was filed by the husband of the woman, but the proceeding was dismissed on the strength of a demurrer which recited that the suit was irregularly brought since there had not been appointed an administrator to the estate and through such officer only could a damage suit be brought.

The campmeeting at New Era that is being held by the Spiritualists of Oregon, has proven so much of a success in point of interest and attendance, it has been decided to continue the session until August 5, one week longer than advertised.

There are in attendance a number of good speakers and mediums. Harrison D. Barrett, president of the National Spiritualist Association and Harry J. Moore are among the most interesting lecturers the Oregon Association has ever been favored with and the meeting is proving one of the most successful in the history of the organization in this state. The mediums are giving convincing proofs of life in the realm of spirit and are adding enthusiasm to the meeting, writes Rev. G. C. Love, president of the Association. Public workers for the camp are assisting from time to time by local talent and visitors from the East. A dance is given every Friday night for the purpose of giving the young people a chance to enjoy themselves.

Lost—in the vicinity of Clackamas, Thursday evening, Boston Bull Terrier bitch named Flirt. Reward! Address Drawer T. Oregon City, Oregon.

By means of the additional $1000 that has been made available for the purpose by the Clackamas county court and the energetic work of County Judge Ryan and other members of the committee in charge, the exhibit from this county at the Lewis & Clark Fair is daily assuming a more creditable state. At a meeting of the executive committee here Tuesday, a new design for the exhibit, the suggestion of Judge Ryan, was adopted. It will consist of an artistic arrangement of the grains, grasses and fruits of this section, surrounded by an elaborate electrical display. When completed the substituted design will afford Clackamas county a most favorable comparison with the other competing counties. The producers of the county are rallying loyally to the support of the committee in its efforts to give the county a creditable display at the Fair. Let the good work continue. Every resident in the county has an interest in the exhibit and by assisting the committee in every possible way, will be in a position to share the credit that will be given the county for its representative display.

A FRUIT-GROWER'S UNION. Some of the Advantages That Attend Cooperation in Marketing. At the request of a number of fruit-growers a meeting is called at the Courier office on Saturday, July 22, at 2 p. m., shary, to consider the advisability of organizing a union of the fruit-growers of Josephine county, says the Grants Courier. Such is the interest taken in the movement that it is expected that there will be a large attendance of those interested in the growing of fruit. It is now more than ten years since the movement began for the organizing of fruit-growers' unions and now there is not a large fruit district but what has a union. Fruit is so perishable, and it is so easy to get a market, and break prices to a ruinous rate, together with the absorption of the greater part of the profits by the commission men, and the excessive freight charges on small shipments, that it is forcing the growers to combine their interests and organize unions. Many of the first fruit raisers of Hood River found the business so unprofitable that they plowed up their strawberry fields and allowed their orchards to go to neglect, as are now so many orchards in this county. With the formation of a union profit came to the business and once again the planting of strawberries and fruit trees was undertaken and so profitable has the industry proven that Hood River Valley is becoming one great orchard tract. Hood River town from a straggling, dead village has become one of the most prosperous, growing young cities in Oregon, while the Valley is dotted with fine farm homes, and has fine roads, rural mail and telephone facilities. Ashland and Medford each have strong unions and the fruit growers of those sections are making and increasing their acreage at a rate that is astonishing to strangers. The leading factor in Ashland's growth is the backing it receives from the fruit industry, while in the greater part of the deposits in the three banks of Medford is to the credit of the fruitgrowers of that district. An instance of the betterment that the Ashland Fruit Growers' Association has brought to the peach industry is the fact that several years ago, before the union was formed, the owner of a fine peach orchard finding peaches unprofitable dug up his trees. Since the organization of the union and better prices to be had this same land has been planted to peaches and is now yielding the owner a larger profit than it did when in grain or hay. The apple quotations of last fall show that the growers of Hood River and Medford were paid from $1.80 to $2.20 a box for their Spitzenburg and Newtown apples, while the growers of Josephine county were able to realize but from 80c to $1 per box. A peach grower from this section got returns from a commission house of but 11 cents a box after the freight had been paid on a shipment of 300 boxes of fine Crawfords. The remaining 1000 boxes of his crop he allowed his hogs to eat. An apple grower sent last fall a shipment of 150 boxes of apples to two dealers in Portland. The apples were of the same kind and of the same picking and packing, yet one commission man remitted 27 cents a box less than the other dealer did to the grower. The Courier could give other instances of fruit growers securing but bare cost for their fruit from commission men. Rogue River climate and soil is the same as Josephine county as it is in Jackson county and produces as fine apples about Grants Pass as it does about Medford, but the market conditions are not the same to growers of the two districts and that accounts for the Grants Pass growers barely making expenses while the Medford growers were reaping a big profit. The reduction of freight charges through car load shipments and the curtailment, or elimination of the middlemen's profits, are not all the advantages that the union brings to the grower. Every member is taught how to grade and pack his fruit so that it will make the best showing possible and stand shipment without bruising. The varieties of fruit to plant, the adaptation of certain soils for certain fruits, the method of planting, cultivating, pruning, spraying and of picking are made leading features of the meetings that are held by the unions and growers are thus enabled to learn many points that will materially aid them in making a success of their undertaking.

This is a matter that might be taken up by the fruit growers of Clackamas county, with profit to themselves and in the interest of this important industry.

Deserves Your Patronage. The growth of a community and the success of its local institutions depends entirely on the loyalty of its people. It is well enough to preach "patronize home industry" but except the service given at a home institution equals that of out-of-town enterprises, this argument carries no weight and is entirely disregarded, as it should be. But with Oregon City people it is different. A few months ago E. L. Johnson established the Cascade Laundry. It is equipped with the latest improved machinery and is daily turning out work that is equal to any and superior to much of the laundry work that is being done in Portland. Being a home institution and furnishing employment for many Oregon City people it is enjoying an immense patronage. The high standard of the work being done commends it to the general public. Laundry left at the O. K. barber shop will be promptly called for and delivered to
