

SCHOOLMA'AMS CAPTURE FAIR.

Teachers From Several States Attend Fair and Are Objects of Much Attention.

PORTLAND, Or., July 18.—While not officially so designated by the department of special events and entertainment, this has been schoolma'ams week at the Lewis and Clark Exposition. There have been schoolma'ams of high and low degree, of youthful and uncertain age, and they have seen and enjoyed the fair and everything appertaining thereto from the art display to the shows on the trail.

The schoolteachers came in the most part in parties, as successful contestants in various popularity contests. The first to arrive were about 25 from San Francisco, sent by the Leuben-Weinstock Co., and they were accounted exceeding fair to look upon.

A party of nine teachers, from Illinois, who came Friday, were preceded by a story printed in a morning paper to the effect that the young women had broken many hearts in Butte, where they stopped over for a day and went underground in two of Senator Clark's mines. The story which Portland swains read in the paper on the morning of the Illinois teachers' arrival, was to the effect that six of the nine had received proposals of marriage, and that one, Miss Christine Kenny, had been proposed to by a man with half a million to his credit.

The influx of doctors coming to attend the national convention of the American Medical Society began a week ago, and continued for several days, the doctors with their wives and families arriving in long special trains which swamped the capacity of the railroad yards. There were in all between 1500 and 2000 registered, and the number brought into town by the convention was in the neighborhood of 5,000. It was the biggest gathering ever held on the North Pacific coast. The association adopted a resolution favoring a "universal health bill," one provision of which should be for a new cabinet division to be known as the Department of Public Health, with a Secretary of Health at its head.

NOT ENTIRELY A SUCCESS.

PORTLAND, Or., July 19.—Man tried again yesterday to conquer air. It was the same old story of partial defeat. He must try again before he can slip the metaphorical harness upon the atmosphere and make it serve him as the giant Steam and Electricity have been brought to serve.

For nearly two hours yesterday afternoon the alrship Angelus hovered over Portland and vicinity. To the casual observer it looked like a great bird moving slowly across the sky with ease and perfect control of itself. In fact there was a battle going on every second, a battle against a strong wind which has proved the will genius of airship inventors since the first. Every inch the brave vessel moved to the southward was an inch to the credit of the contending elements. It is noteworthy, however, that the Angelus bucked the capricious air currents yesterday with a greater degree of success than any previous air vessel. Captain T. S. Baldwin, of California, the inventor, is satisfied with yesterday's showing. He will make some alterations in his vessel against the wind at once. He has no doubt but that his boat could navigate in any direction under favorable atmospheric conditions. He intends to make it sail under any conditions.

Shattuck, President Pacific States Type Foundry; Edward Mills, President Bullock & Jones Co.; Capt. Roberts, President Sacramento Transportation Co.; D. E. Bender, capitalist; Wm. We have established an agency in your city and you will find pamphlets and Compounds at

He led her down the winding lane And slowly 'neath the spreading trees, And from across the fruitful plain Came accents of clover on the breeze: Beside him, with a far-off look, She passed where roses, wild and sweet Were still a bloom, and in the brook With glad abandon cooled her feet.

There where the pebbles brightly gleamed She stood and watched him pensively; What time he gazed at her and dreamed Of fame that his some day should be, She gave a jerk and he, somehow, Went head first swiftly 'o'er the brink— She was his father's spotted cow And he had led her there to drink. —S.
