WIFE-BEATER LEAVES CITY.

Sued For Divorce, Paid Fine and Ordered Out of Town.

August Young, who with his wife came to Oregon City about three weeks ago, from Corvallis, was arrested last Saturday night on a charge of wife beating, the injured party being the complainant. Young is a painter by trade and when arrested was busily engaged demolishing the furniture and destroying the wearing apparel of the household, by stripping it into rags with a pocket knife and a razor with which he was armed. When searched at the county jail Young, although drunk, had with him over $200. Monday his case was disposed of, but instead of being sentenced to the whipping post as he unquestionably deserved, as it is reported he has at previous times before maltreated his wife, he got off with a sentence of forty-five days in jail. Young is about 55 years of age. After serving one day of his forty-five days' sentence for wife beating, August Young, on Tuesday found himself faced with a divorce suit that was brought by the wife on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. When the papers in the divorce suit were served, Young pleaded for his liberty from the jail sentence, agreeing to pay $58, the unserved portion of his sentence. This was agreed to by City Recorder Dimick who required that an additional sum of $50 be paid the wife with which to defray the costs of the divorce suit and ordered that Young leave the city immediately. The terms of the compromise were subscribed to by Young who left the city for Idaho Tuesday evening.

Young, who is aged about 50 years and had more than $200 with him, escaped prosecution and the inevitable punishment that awaited him for wife beating because Acting Deputy Prosecuting Attorney U'Ren declined to prosecute the charge for the reason that he doubted the sufficiency of the evidence to prove the complaint.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of

DIMICK IN HARVEST FIELD.

Volunteers To Assist Farmer Who Was Short of Help.

There are innumerable ways of ingratiating one's self with even perfect strangers, but there are times when the way is rough, at times taxing one's physical endurance to the limit.

This was the experience of Grant B. Dimick one day this week. While comfortably seated in his law office, a farmer from the Shubel district entered and inquired if it was possible that Mr. Dimick did not know where some harvest hands might be procured. The ex-mayor did not know of any one desiring such vigorous exercise. With a sigh, the handicapped farmer started to leave the office, when Dimick, rather than see the grain harvest delayed with the possible danger from inclement weather, volunteered his own services for the following day.

Accompanied by Jack Latourette, the city's recent executive, proceeded to the farm at an early hour on the appointed morning.

No sooner had the two arrived, than they were assigned to places on the threshing outfit that afforded in a short half hour about as much exercise as could be had by daily visiting a gymnasium for a solid week. Dimick was stationed at the top of a huge grain stack. His particular mission consisted of throwing the bundles to the band cutters on the table below. The day was a little warmer than usual and the legal advisor certainly did perspire, but he would not weaken and kept up the pace until the day's work had ended. He is now almost sorry that he did not hold the signal of distress, for he is so stiff and lame that he can scarcely mount the stairs to his office.

Latourette, whose avocation during the summer vacation has been in the role of book agent, found that the harvest field offered more exacting employment than even that of reciting the many interesting features of "Little Visits with Great Americans."

DIED.

August 23, at 5 o'clock a. m., at the residence of R. R. Thomas, two and one-half miles southwest of Molalla, John D. Jordan, in the 76th year of his age. Deceased leaves a son, Harvey S. Jordan, of Seattle. The burial will take place at Salem where the wife and two daughters were laid to rest. Mr. Jordan was a member of the I. O. O. F., the Grange and the Pioneer Association, having crossed the plains in 1852.
