CORNER 6TH AND MAIN STREET

OREGON CITY, OREGON

MR. CROSS EXPLAINS.

Oregon City, Or., May 29, 1906.
Editor Enterprise:

Mr. Brownell in his canvass of the County for re-election, in partial explanation of the indictment against him for subornation of perjury in the United States Courts at Portland, now pending and awaiting trial, persists in the statement that in more or less measure I am responsible for his indictment. I have hitherto refrained from making any explanations or answers to his oft repeated charges, as some matters connected with the indictment which came to me through confidential and friendly sources were of such a nature that any open statement by me, as friend and attorney, might be construed as a breach of professional propriety. But all facts connected with the indictment must come to the public sooner or later, and I now take the responsibility of stating my entire relation to the criminal charge.

Let me promise, by saying that I did not know that the examination of charges against Mr. Brownell were going on before the United States Grand Jury up to the time my attention was attracted to it as I shall soon state. I never have spoken a word nor written a letter to Mr. Heney in my life time, nor sought in any manner to influence the District Attorney or Grand Jury in any investigation against Mr. Brownell or any one else; unless my professional and friendly advice to Fred Sievers, in the evening after his first day's appearance as a witness before the U. S. Grand Jury, makes me in some way responsible. Now I give the facts and I have abundant evidence at hand to prove their entire accuracy.

On the evening in question at about 8:00 p. m., Mr. Fred Sievers, who is my neighbor, at Gladstone, came to my home and asked for a private interview, and my advice, as to how best to extricate himself from a dangerous position into which he had unfortunately gotten himself in his testimony before the U. S. Grand Jury that day.

His statement was that a few days before this, without full reflection and being exceedingly anxious to please an old friend and employer, he had promised Henry Meldrum and Mr. Brownell to make certain statements before the Grand Jury tending to exonerate Mr. Brownell from criminal liability in the land fraud investigations then in progress, and especially as he was asked to make representation as to how certain affidavits connected with the survey were sworn to. I do not need to go into detail here. Suffice it to say he was importuned to make false statements and in an unguarded moment he consented to make them and he did. He had been before the Grand Jury all day and in his own language he said, "I have had a hell of a time."—"That man Heney has been on my neck all day."—"And the Grand Jury have been pecking away at me too."—"They know I have not been telling the truth and I know it too."—"I have always tried to be an honest man and keep my word and tell the truth and it grinds me to think that I consented to make these statements and have gotten myself into this trouble."

Now my vital connection with the indictment came about just here. Fred says: "Heney would not let me go today, and I have to go back to-morrow at ten o'clock and go on the stand again, and I want you to tell me what to do to get myself out of this trouble for I am afraid I shall be indicted." Much more was said but this was the purport of it all.

If I did anybody any harm or injury it was done at this point for I admit that my advice to Fred was very nearly in exact language as follows: "Fred, you have been led into a great mistake but there is only one thing to do, and that is when you go back in the morning, tell the whole truth and let the consequences be what they may. I submit that I could not, nor dare I tell him anything else and if this advice of mine to a young man whom I have known for more than thirty years, and who came to me in his distress, was in anyway responsible for the indictment against Brownell, I accept the responsibility with whatever consequences may follow."

Fred was in great trouble over the condition in which he found himself, but his manhood came to the front and he left me stating that he would go down next day and tell the District

Attorney and the Grand Jury the whole truth no matter who it helped or who it hurt.

In a conversation had with me later I ascertained from him that he had made a clean breast of the whole matter to Mr. Heney and the Grand Jury. How he had been importuned to make such certain false statements—his unfortunate consent, and who were the guilty parties and the truth about the entire transaction.

This no doubt, with other evidence in the possession of the Grand Jury had something to do with the indictment of Senator Brownell; but I submit that the responsibility for the indictment does not rest with me but with those who to shield themselves would insist on such a greivous sacrifice on the part of an over-generous friend.

And I submit also that in all fairness this friend, and he certainly proved himself a friend, ought not now to be called a "half-breed," nor held up to shame in Clackamas county. He certainly is entitled to our sympathy and pity, but never to abuse.

H. E. CROSS.

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by Howell & Jones.

RESULT OF EXAMINATIONS.

The Very Best Remedy for Bowel Trouble.

Mr. M. F. Borroughs, an old and well-known resident of Bluffton, Ind., says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. I make this statement after having used the remedy in my family for several years. I am never without it." This remedy is almost sure to be needed before the summer is over. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? For sale by Howell & Jones.
