STATE POLITICS.

There is less politics and political talk in this county just now than at any time during the past fifteen years.

Outside the county there is already a fight on among the state senators and representatives as to who shall be speaker of the house and who shall be president of the senate.

Several of the candidates have been whispering at the thresholds of the local representatives-elect.

Senator-elect J. E. Hedges has other troubles besides whom he is going to support for president of the senate.

In the senate Dan Malarky and E. W. Hodson are already making such a strong bid for the speaker's chair that it will be hard for either to back down out of the race.

FALSE IMPRESSIONS.

The Portland Chamber of Commerce has issued a pamphlet to advertise the Rose City and correct the impression that there is an abnormal rainfall in this region.

The intentions of the Chamber of Commerce are good no doubt, but the pamphlet, or that part of it devoted to rainfall, is a huge mistake.

There is as much rainfall in the Puget Sound country as in the Willamette Valley; there is more in Northwestern California, but you never see any Seattle or Tacoma literature apologizing for the rainfall in those cities.

If Portland will quit spending money on advertising literature devoted to rainfall comparisons, she will have more to advertise the thousand and one advantages of this section.

It is predicted that the next change in the cabinet will be the retirement of Victor H. Metcalf, secretary of the department of commerce and labor.

Macksburg correspondent seems to be getting a little jealous of Molalla lately. He says that Macksburg exports more to the square mile than Molalla does.

Molalla used to "export" but now she consumes and sells on foot the "cattle of a thousand hills." We know that Macksburg is all right for the simple reason that she is situated so near Molalla and used to be familiarly known as "Lower Molalla."

The Russellville correspondent should have attended the entire session of the wolf meeting and the assertion relative to the "coyote pup industry" would have been treated as premature, as the club's by-laws were adopted subject to amendments two weeks later.

Anyone now lawfully "relieving the treasury" will be carrying out the will of the organization, so send in the results of the "six dens of coyotes" before they older grow and get $3 a head for the puppies, instead of the $15.00.

WARDEN BAKER WRITES TO THE ENTERPRISE

Says There Were 70 Convictions During Eight Months—Many Depuities Sent to Clackamas.

The farmers were not as enthusiastic over the opening of the season as were the hunters, judging from the number of trespass notices sold by the Enterprise job office during the last few days.

The article in the Enterprise about the absence of deputies has brought a spirited response from State Game Warden Baker, the principal facts cited by him being as follows:

Records of the office of the State Game and Forestry Warden show 70 convictions during the last eight months, and imposition of fines ranging from $5 to $250, and totaling $2844.10.

The largest fine was $250, assessed for killing deer, but was not paid, the man going to jail instead.

The next largest fine, $200, was for dynamiting fish. There were several fines of $100 and $125 for killing deer. A few jail sentences were also imposed.

State Game Warden Baker states that C. M. Dick of Canby, Frank Hendricks of Oregon City and M. Shafer of Willamette Falls are deputy wardens of Clackamas county, and that he (Baker) has been "informed by one of the deputies that the Deputy District Attorney will not prosecute in many instances those who violate the game law."

In addition to the deputies named, W. A. Chamberlain of Eugene, an experienced deputy, was sent to Clackamas, according to Warden Baker, also Fred Beal and W. A. Mack of Portland, all of whom reported few violations and lots of birds.

Mrs. Elizabeth Calkins died at her home one mile east of Sherwood, September 26, aged 73 years and 18 days. Her maiden name was Hannah Elizabeth Kilburne. She was a native of Pennsylvania, her parents moving to Illinois when she was a child, thence to Salt Lake, Utah, in 1845.

There she married Sylvester Calkins in 1851. They returned to Iowa in 1854, and came to Oregon in 1864, locating first at Lafayette, thence moving in 1868 to the home where she died. Her husband died May 28, 1901; her father died at the age of 96 in January of the same year. She bore three children, two sons and a daughter, the latter dying while the family resided at Lafayette, but the remains now lie in Mount Pleasant cemetery. The son, Eli, unmarried, and Chauncey, married, both reside on the home farm. Three sisters, one brother and three granddaughters, besides her sons, survive Mrs. Calkins. Mrs. Calkins was a lover of and collector of keepsakes and heirlooms, and had a fine collection of rare old dishes and valuables over 100 years old and that crossed the continent twice. Her venerable mother visited her a few years ago.

The funeral was held September 28, the burial being in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

TOLD WIFE TO POISON HER HUBBY

SENSATIONAL ALLEGATIONS IN DIVORCE SUIT—IMPROPER ATTENTIONS AND CRIMINAL ADVISE

Because William Pinkley had made improper suggestions to his wife and had even gone so far as to advise that she poison him and get him out of the way of their happiness, Otto C. Klaetsch has commenced suit for divorce in the circuit court from his wayward wife, Leah Klaetsch.

Klaetsch alleges that his wife had left him several times since their marriage at Westport, Clatsop county, December 16, 1896, but that he received her back again several times. She continued in her practice and although the couple had two minor children as the issue of the marriage, she continued to receive attention from William Pinkley.

It is alleged that Pinkley wrote her advising that she poison Klaetsch and that the letter be burned. But after one of his wife's fly-away trips the plaintiff found the letter in the bottom of a trunk.

Custody is asked for the minor children, Margaret and Viola, and for the costs and disbursements of the action.
