

Saw and Hammer Altering Dr. McLoughlin's Old Home

The old home of Dr. McLoughlin at the head of Main street, opposite the woolen mills, is being remodeled into a more convenient and modern house. Parts of the house that were brought from England are being taken out and replaced with new parts. How this is regarded by strangers was shown, Thursday, when Dr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Wallace of Los Angeles visited the old house during a tour to points of historic interest about our city. "Nothing less than sacrilege," said Mrs. Wallace, "and I am surprised that the citizens here do not take steps to preserve their historic places both as a matter of duty and pride, and for financial reasons as well, for I am sure such places attract many visitors to your city."

Dr. and Mrs. Wallace themselves came to Oregon City because of its historic interest. They had read Mrs. Eva Emery Dye's book, McLoughlin and Old Oregon; being at Portland came to this city to meet the author of the book that had given them so much pleasure, and to see the places where the great McLoughlin lived and worked.

Under Mrs. Dye's guidance they saw the graves of Dr. McLoughlin and his wife. The great pioneer of this Pacific northwest, founder of our city, was buried in St. John's churchyard in 1857, and three years later his Indian wife was laid beside him. His stone bears this inscription: "A friend of Oregon and founder of Oregon City."

In the church a stained glass window dedicated to his memory gives a speaking likeness of Dr. McLoughlin. The old home is fully described in Mrs. Dye's book. The front room on the left of the large hall is where the old man died. It still contains the old-fashioned fire-place. Across the hall was his wife's sitting room. The narrow "colonial" windows on each side of the front door came from England when the house was built. It is a two story frame building with broad steps from the street to the door.

For Your Protection

We place this label on every package of Scott's Emulsion. The man with a fish on his back is our trade-mark, and it is a guarantee that Scott's Emulsion will do all that is claimed for it. Nothing better for lung, throat or bronchial troubles in infant or adult. Scott's Emulsion is one of the greatest flesh-builders known to the medical world.

A Most Worthy Article.

When an article has been on the market for years and gains friends every year, it is safe to call this medicine a worthy one. Such is Ballard's Horehound Syrup. It positively cures coughs and all Pulmonary diseases. One of the best known merchants in Mobile, Ala., says: "For five years my family has not been troubled with the winter coughs. We owe this to Ballard's Horehound Syrup. I know it has saved my children from many sick spells." For sale by Huntley Bros.' Drug Co.

R. A. Wilkinson Funeral.

The funeral of Robert A. Wilkinson was held from the family residence, Fourteenth and Madison streets, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. H. B. Robins officiating.

The deceased was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilkinson, and was born at Albany, N. Y., in 1874, coming two years later to Oregon City. He was taken ill last April and was just recovering when attacked by typhoid fever, with complications, which left him enfeebled. He battled bravely for life but death conquered. He returned Wednesday from a several weeks stay at Seaside. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of many friends.
