

CHANGES IN STATE SCHOOL LAW

Many New Provisions Will Go Into Effect in Oregon, May 25.

[The following synopsis of the changes in the school laws made by the last legislature has been revised by County Superintendent J. C. Zinser, who has an advanced copy of the school laws as amended. There are many important changes, and patrons as well as officers and teachers should read them. Note the changes in the compulsory education law and the steps to carry it out. The penalty for truancy may be both fine and imprisonment.]

There are a number of changes in the new state school law of Oregon which goes into effect May 25. These changes are of interest to all teachers and parents. The following are some extracts from the new law:

1. Only one second and one third grade certificate can be secured in the state.

2. Mental arithmetic has been dropped from all examinations for county papers.

3. After February first, 1908, all applicants for first grade must be examined in Literature and Physical Geography.

4. It shall be the duty of the state board of education to indicate at least one year before examination for certificate, the source or sources from which at least sixty per cent of the questions in Theory and Practice will be selected.

5. Teachers or the principal shall make monthly reports showing registration, attendance, tardiness and such information as required on the blanks furnished by the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

6. The school superintendent shall require teachers, before beginning to teach in any school district in his county, to register all diplomas and certificates not previously registered in his county and file a copy of the contract. Should any teacher fail to register diploma or certificate or file contract, said teacher shall forfeit the full amount of her salary for the time already taught. Should any school board fail to enforce such forfeiture the county superintendent shall deduct the said amount from the next apportionment of county school funds due said district.

7. The clerk shall refuse to draw an order for the teachers' wages for the last month until the teacher's register shall have been completely filled out, filed and approved by the clerk.

8. Eighty-five per cent of the county and state funds shall be paid to the teacher.

9. The county court is compelled to levy seven dollars per capita.

10. The annual census shall be taken the last week in November.

11. All school districts must secure a flag and keep it flying at or near the school house on all favorable days.

12. All districts must have at least four months school during the year.

13. Two or more school districts may be united for the purpose of establishing and carrying on high schools or grades above the eighth. Such schools are known as union high schools and will in no way affect the present organization of the district or the first eight grades.

14. School officers' convention or conventions may be held once a year. This convention may include the entire county or the county may be divided into districts. The chairman of the board is made the delegate, but in case he cannot attend, he must appoint some member of his board. Each delegate receives two dollars a day provided he attends the entire session of the convention.

15. Compulsory education law. All children between the ages of 9 and 14 years must attend school for the entire time school is in session in the district. All children between the ages of 14 and 16 must go to school or be engaged in some occupation, according to the provisions of the child labor law. Exceptions to these requirements are children in private schools, pupils physically unable to attend, pupils of 16 living more than one and one-half miles from school, pupils of any age living more than three miles from school and pupils under private tutors at home.

The different steps in carrying out this law are: 1. Appointment of truant officers, one or more in the county. One officer may be appointed for several districts. First-class districts must appoint their own. 2. First-class districts have power to call on regular police officers. 3. County superintendent furnishes truant officers with a list of teachers of his territory. 4. The clerk gives the teacher a list of the enumeration on the first day of each term, or immediately after the enumeration is taken. 5. The teacher compares registration with the census enumeration at the end of each month. 6. The teacher reports delinquents to secretary of the boundary board. 7. Secretary reports to truant officer. 8. The officer notifies parents or guardians that the children must be in school on the following Monday morning and reports to the teacher that the parents have been notified. 9. In case the children are not sent to school the officer makes complaint to the justice of peace. 10. Justice issues warrant and conducts trial. The punishment for truancy is a fine of from $5 to $25 or imprisonment from two to ten days, or both. Any officers, whose duty it is to help enforce the law, may be fined from $5 to $20 for failure to perform the duties incumbent upon them under this act. This includes the county court and school superintendent, who are members of the district boundary board, the teachers and school clerk.
