Observations of Harriman.

"I am not prepared to make any announcement regarding new lines. "What Oregon needs most for development is a different policy on forest reserves and some way of opening the land granted to military road companies. We will sell agricultural land to settlers, but not to speculators. The timber we will keep for ties and bridge material.

"I made a mistake in not providing new steamers between Portland and San Francisco two years ago. "Oregon, in August at least, has the greatest climate I ever found. "I know as much about Oregon as any one in the city of Portland.

"To obtain the best results, there should be a better feeling between the public and transportation companies. Railroad commissions are good things when not used for political purposes and when the Commissioners
