Several spokes in one of the front wheels were broken, and a piece of the seat was torn away by a tree; but down, down they went for 2000 feet, landing finally at the bottom of the hill with no bones broken, but badly scared and shaken up.

TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

We wish the correspondents to the Enterprise would send us a letter each week. We want news from every neighborhood each week and when no letter comes from our regular correspondent we find it necessary to pick up the news as best we can from some other source. But this is not as satisfactory as to receive a letter from a correspondent we know, and on whose reliability we can depend.

ANNUAL MEETING LOCAL CHAUTAUQUA

NEW BOARD OF DIRECTORS CHOSEN—WOMEN ARE GIVEN RECOGNITION.

The Willamette Valley Chautauqua Assembly held its annual meeting on Monday, at which time reports were made by the several officers of the assembly and the board of directors for the ensuing year chosen. Vice-president Dye was in the chair.

The report of Secretary Cross, as also that from Treasurer Caufield shows the assembly to be in good shape financially. With all bills paid the treasury will still contain about $300, which is more than a good showing when one considers the financial condition at the end of the session two years ago.

Since the inception of the movement in this valley the assembly has been working under the constitution and by-laws of the old Chautauqua organization, but some months ago it was decided to draft a new constitution and Messrs. Dye, Cross and Hawley were made a committee of three to that end. At the meeting Monday this committee was instructed to embody a rule providing for the election of thirty vice-presidents, to be chosen from the several counties and cities contributory to this Chautauqua. It was further provided that it will not be compulsory for these vice-presidents to be chosen from stockholders, but simply that they be friends and patrons of the movement.

The election of the board of directors resulted as follows: H. E. Cross, C. H. Dye, W. C. Hawley, J. E. Hedging, W. A. Huntley, George A. Harding, J. T. Apperson, S. G. Reed, A. F. Parker, C. B. Moores and Mrs. L. A. Additon.

The total receipts from all sources showed $7,699.52, and disbursements $7,248.89. The dining hall showed a loss of ten or fifteen dollars, the assembly not trying to make it a profit-sharing institution but operating it as a convenience instead.

The report has much of cheer to the friends of the movement. It is recognized that the crucial test to such an organization comes after the novelty has worn away, when it is left in the hands of its friends, and the work of the present year seems to promise that the friends of the movement are loyal and with enough of interest to insure great things for the future.

Principals to Punish.

The board of school directors held long session Wednesday evening and adopted rules and regulations for the government of the city schools. Several important changes have been made. Corporal punishment will hereafter be inflicted only by the principals, in the presence of one or more witnesses, either before or after school hours and on the day following the offense. The hours of the regular sessions shall be from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m., except in the primary grades. The first grade will close in the afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, the second grade at 2:30 o'clock, and the third grade at 3 o'clock. The daily work of pupils shall count one-third in determining a promotion, and the standing made in the examination shall count two-thirds in the final average of the pupils.

LOCAL TEACHERS ARE ALL CHOSEN

SCHOOL BOARD FILLS ALL VACANCIES—THE PORTLAND BOARD CONSIDERABLE OF A PIRATE.

The Portland School Board is considerable of a pirate. Notwithstanding the fact that it pays more money for teachers than is paid in many of the smaller cities surrounding it the board is often up against the proposition of a vacancy, and that in the middle of the school year. And when those times occur this said board has no hesitancy in going out and offering more money to teachers in these small cities to entice them away, even when it is known that the teachers chosen have contracts covering the balance of the year in question.

As a result Oregon City has often been compelled to fill vacancies that should never have occurred—vacancies that reflect no credit on the board who offers the tempting bait or the teacher who accepts it.

The local board filled its complement of teachers a few weeks ago but soon found two vacancies. Miss Maude Adair Rutherford of Vancouver, who was elected last June and assigned to the fifth grade, has just discovered she does not wish to teach in Oregon City. Miss Jennie Mae Sneider of Medford, who was Monday night elected teacher of the ninth grade, had her application in at several schools and has notified the local board of a prior election, which she will accept. Wednesday night the board chose Miss Helen G. Abbot of Portland as teacher in the ninth grade and Miss Retta Scoggin as teacher in the fifth grade at the Barclay school.

Miss Frances Myers, who has been teacher in the Eastham school, has been elected to the Harrison school in Portland, but so far has not given notice of acceptance. In case she does accept Mrs. Harrison of Portland will be assigned to her work in the local schools.

It is perfectly fair for a teacher without a school to make application to several, and then accept the first to elect her of the best one that so elects her in case her acceptance is made within reasonable time. And the boards all over the state concede this. But after a teacher has been chosen to a given position, and after due reflection accepts it, or after the year's work has begun, it reflects nothing to the credit of the teacher who drops out and starts in elsewhere just because a little more salary is offered. And if any school board so chooses it can stop the transfer, secure the abrogation of the teacher's certificate, and make it impossible for the teacher to collect wages for the balance of the school year.

But with all their troubles the local board has filled all vacancies and provided for the prospective one that may occur any day.

SHORT SPUR WILL CONNECT US

Eugene and Eastern Railway surveyors began Saturday morning running lines from Eugene to Albany to establish the line which will connect with the Portland-Salem road, giving a complete electric railway from Eugene to the metropolis.

The contract for $30,000 bridge to span the Willamette near Springfield, for the Eugene-Springfield suburban line, has been let to L. N. Roney, who will begin work at once. This bridge crosses the river 200 yards south of the Southern Pacific structure and will be a Howe truss, with concrete piers.

This is the road which can be made contributory to Oregon City by erecting a spur to the west, or continuing the present Willamette branch on a few miles further.

THE COURTS

Railway Asks Right of Way.

Suit has been filed in the Circuit Court against the City of Portland by the Mount Hood Railway & Power Company to condemn a right of way through the Bull Run reserve. The suit was filed locally to secure service on the city, and the papers were then sent to the Clackamas District Court, where the case will be tried. A few months ago rumors to the effect that the plans of the company would materially interfere with the city's water supply stirred up much public criticism, on the theory that in developing water power from the Bull Run River the company would use much of the water before reserved for the city's pipe lines.

The company asserts its chief desire is to secure a right of way through the reserve so that the Mount Hood terminus of its proposed line can be completed. The city officials are prepared to resist this suit of condemnation, and a prolonged legal battle is probable.

Can't Talk to Wife.

John Corley is up against the "real thing now." He has been so very, very bad, according to allegations by his wife, Nancy S. Corley, that the court issued an order restraining said John Corley from speaking to his wife if he should meet her on the street, or from interfering or annoying her in any way. This order followed the filing of suit today against Corley by Mrs. Nancy S. Corley, to whom he was married in Portland, April 2, 1906. She avers that April 17 of the year of their marriage while they were living at Cape Horn, Wash., Corley came into her room after she had retired for the night and told her to take her belongings and leave. The next morning she went to Boring, Clackamas county, where she has relatives. She remained there until the latter part of May when Corley urged her to return. She says he promised her he would abstain from drinking and would treat her kindly, but in two days he became intoxicated and threatened to take her life. Mrs. Corley says her husband has a vicious temper and is a desperate, brutal and cruel man.

Fairclough Estate Appraised.

The inventory and appraisal of the estate of the late Peter A. Fairclough has been filed in the office of the County Clerk. Asks Court for Child.

Tony Jenini today filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus for the possession of his daughter, Cophia, who is in the custody of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Mathews, of Macksburg. Jenini and his wife have had a great deal of trouble and on the charge that he found the mother in a compromising position, the father asks custody of the child.

Notes.

The resignation of Justice of the Peace J. W. VanHorn of Oswego has been accepted by the County Court.

The will of the late Peter A. Fairclough was admitted to probate on September 6. The estate is valued at $6000, a large part of which is stock in the Ogle Mountain Mining Company, of which he was president and general manager at the time of his death. The property is left to relatives of the deceased.

Hodges & Hodges of Gladstone have filed a suit in the justice court against C. Bartsch for $50.50, alleging that on August 13, 1907, the defendant employed them to dig a well, agreeing to pay a certain rate, which aggregated $125.50, and that only $65 of this amount has been paid.

Emil Wiese is the plaintiff in a suit against John Auwater, of Damascus, to replevin a potato planter, a hay car and other personal property.

John Bare has sued H. Bigelow and Newman & Wood to recover $122 alleged to be the balance due for slashing and clearing 12 acres of land. Attorney George C. Brownell represents the plaintiffs in all of these cases.

Suit has been instituted in the Circuit Court by Emma J. Buchanan against Charles Edward Buchanan for divorce. They were married in Oregon City, October 4, 1887, and Mrs. Buchanan alleges that her husband deserted her.

Walter Taylor, who was married in Aberdeen, Wash., October 8, 1895, instituted suit for divorce, alleging that his wife deserted him January 15, 1906.

Lodema McVicker Thursday filed a suit for a decree of divorce from John W. McVicker. They were married May 22, 1880, in Lafayette, Or., and she alleges that her husband deserted her July 13, 1906, which was 26 years after their marriage.

Guy Smith of Gladstone was given a lecture by Judge Dimick in juvenile court Thursday. The lad was accused of taking a knife that did not belong to him and when confronted with the charge is said to have confessed.

Suit for divorce has been filed by Jennie Bussey against Martin Bussey. They were married in Portland, Or., February 10, 1886, and Mrs. Bussey accuses her husband of deserting her March 2, 1905.

BRYAN ON ISSUES OF 1908.

Mr. Bryan was recently asked what he thought would be the most prominent issue in the next presidential campaign.

"I do not think any one can say thus far in advance," he replied. "Much depends on what Congress does in the meantime and what the conventions do. I think the question will run through all of the issues whether the Government shall be administered on behalf of the people or on behalf of a few who have been enjoying special privileges."
