JUST AN OPENING WORD.

It is only right and proper to announce at the outset that in the office of the Oregon City Enterprise there exists a new deal. With this statement as purely preliminary, the new publisher of this newspaper desires to take the Clackamas County reading public into his confidence to a degree. This is only fair. There are readers of The Enterprise who have been subscribers, faithful and loyal, since 1866, when the paper was born. This was 42 years ago. Changes in editorial control and management in late years have been many; let us hope they are at an end. The Enterprise has seen many summers of prosperity, and a few winters of adversity, but this last phase of its career has not been existing in recent years.

With a firm foundation, with the surety of hundreds of old friends throughout the length and breadth of Clackamas County, with every confidence in the farmers and business people to support a newspaper that will stand for something, with the reasonable expectation that the members of the Republican party will stand steadfast by the publication that is constantly advocating the principles they believe, we shall proceed to elucidate a few of the things we are going to accomplish.

It will be the constant aim of The Enterprise to cover its own field thoroughly in every detail. The people of Clackamas County are entitled to a newspaper that will give them all of the news of the sections in which they may reside. The primary purpose of a newspaper is to give the news. We are now perfecting the organization of a corps of correspondents who will cover the local field.

The Enterprise will consistently urge the people of this county to uphold the right in public life, as laid down by men of force and men of broad character, from Abraham Lincoln to Theodore Roosevelt. There is no room in this country for the cheap man, no space for the trader, no latitude for the parasite. It is true, perhaps, that some of them are here, but their elimination is only a process that is sure and ultimate.

There have been times when the Republicans of Clackamas County have wavered in their loyalty to this newspaper. To these men we say that there will be no room in The Enterprise for fractional fights. The ticket that is good enough for the majority of the Republicans of Clackamas, is good enough for us. This ticket will be supported from top to bottom, with clean and forceful statements, and there will be no lukewarmness about it. It is enough at this time to say that the members of the party have a right to expect such support, and when they receive it, they should appreciate it to the extent of bearing their good will in the right direction, always remembering that the up-building of a Republican newspaper will be succeeded by the strengthening of the party that it represents.

Clackamas County has splendid resources and great possibilities that are known to all of us. We need people, we need money, we need men for the work of development, and to newcomers we extend the glad hand of welcome, assuring them that what they seek is here, and they have only to reach out and grasp it.

The Enterprise is no spring chicken in the field of newspaperdom in the State of Oregon. It is one of the first, it is superfluous to say that it is here to stay. But this brief outline is presented with the assurance that the paper will be better, bigger, and broader, well worthy of the patronage it solicits from all classes, content to work earnestly and diligently in its chosen pasture of endeavor.

THE SCALP OF FULTON.

The effort of Francis J. Heney, Democrat, to besmirch the character of Charles W. Fulton, Republican, is creating widespread interest among the members of both parties in this State. Mr. Heney has evidently taken a contract to defeat Mr. Fulton for reelection and seems to be succeeding admirably, judging from the sensational accusations that he has and the fulsome praise that follows his remarks in the Democratic and imitation Republican press.

Heney, a bird of passage, a hired prosecutor, has brought no credit to Oregon. He has done his best to drag her name in the mire, and has not failed altogether. He blows his own horn, and with a loud blast of his trumpet, he draws up an indictment, tries and convicts his man, hikes to another scene of action, repeats the performance, talks publicly and incessantly on "good citizenship," keeps a reputation made under the shadow of indictment for three years, presumably having no evidence to give them a trial, and bathes four men until they are immune in order to convict the fifth, who is no more guilty than the four.

Yet Mr. Heney is sincere, so they say. "He is after the big fellows," so he says. Once in a while one of them escapes his clutches but even so, his political prospects are blighted and the finger of accusation is still uplifted and does not fall.

Charley Fulton has many friends here in Oregon. He has made a good record in the Senate of the United States. He has played politics, it is true, but how far he has stepped out of the beaten track is for Mr. Heney to prove, and not simply to mouth his utterances from the public platform to win the plaudits of a curiosity-seeking multitude.

HOPGROWERS COMBINE.

Organization of the growers of the Pacific Coast in order to prevent over-production and a consequent reduction of prices seems to be meeting with a fair degree of success. For several years the hop growers of Oregon, Washington and California have been laboring under unfavorable conditions, brought about through the eagerness of a hundred men to make money where one man had succeeded. The market was glutted as a result and the price dropped at a time when the supply was far in excess of the demand. It is now proposed to reduce the average next season by at least 10 per cent, and some of the prominent men in the association advocate a reduction of 30 per cent, believing this move will advance the price of hops to 15 cents per pound, which would net the growers a reasonable profit. The scheme is a large one, and probably has merit. Strenuous efforts are being made to bring all of the growers into the field, and the Oregon and Washington people are showing more of an eagerness to get in than are the California growers.

The hop men plan to control the output and its price and also to cut down the expenses of the growers to a minimum by buying twine, wire and bags in huge quantities.

There is no combination in restraint of trade here, but a legitimate endeavor on the part of farmers to obtain an honest interest on their labor and investment. There is no good reason why the proposition should not work out satisfactorily. Good faith must be shown on the start, and with this in mind, the rest will come.

Here in Oregon we have noticed a disposition on the part of many farmers to emulate the example of their neighbors. Let one man succeed in prune raising and others plant prune trees. The price of hops soars to 25 cents in a single season and the following year the product is immense. In the end diversity will be the rule. So many varieties of fruit and vegetables thrive in the Willamette Valley that the opportunities of the agriculturalist and horticulturalist are boundless. There is money in apples; men have grown rich in the culture of walnuts; the Oregon "spud" has produced its potato kings here in Clackamas County; top prices for hay usually prevail. There is plenty to fall back on. If hops go down, we can turn our attention to something that will profit. There are few limits to the marketable products that we can get out of the soil in the finest country on God's green earth.

The government of Clackamas County is no easy task, yet candidates for commissioner are bobbing up in almost every section of the county. Enos Cahill, of New Era, is one. J. H. Weyer, of Sandy, is another. Nixon Blair, of Killen, is a third, and now the name of W. H. Counsell, of Harmony, is mentioned. All of them are good, clean men, with nothing to blot their records. But, gentlemen, the job is no sinecure. It may look good from afar, but the aftermath is not so alluring. For further information ask any of the men who have held the office.

The political pot is bubbling, and a few weeks more will bring the candidates. They will not be so numerous, however, as they were two years ago when the direct primary law was new. And it is better that the aspirants should not be clamorous, better for their pockets and better for unity in the Republican party of Clackamas County.

A bat has lived for 106 years in a closed sealed vault. There are men not far from us who bat considerably and yet the police do not put them in a vault.

CAMPBELL FOR FISH WARDEN.

Clackamas County Man May Succeed Van Dusen of Astoria.

Reports emanating from Salem say that Master Fish Warden H. G. Van Dusen, of Astoria, is likely to lose his official head when the State Board of Fish Commissioners meets next week.

Upper River people have long been dissatisfied with Van Dusen. The Governor takes the view that the Master Fish Warden should be a man who can and will take an impartial view of fishing interests as between rival localities.

Then, too, Governor Chamberlain thinks that Van Dusen does not realize the importance of the closed seasons as a means of protecting salmon from extermination, and that he is not aggressive enough in enforcing the laws. In discussing the subject with several residents of this state, Governor Chamberlain says the Commission cannot give personal and exhaustive attention to the fishing industry, but must rely upon the information and advice received from the Master Fish Warden. For that reason he wants a man in the office who has no prejudices, so that the Commission will not feel obliged to make allowances for bias when considering his recommendations.

It is understood that Governor Chamberlain looks with favor upon the candidacy of W. P. Andrus, of Portland, as Van Dusen's successor. State Treasurer Steel is said to favor J. U. Campbell, of Oregon City. Secretary Benson is inclined to retain Mr. Van Dusen.

Feature of County Progress.

Portland Oregonian: Farmers and other progressive citizens of Clackamas County want a fair of their own—one that will be a yearly recurring delight to them and an advertisement of their abounding resources. Needless to say, they will have one, beginning next fall and becoming a feature of Clackamas County progress and enterprise for years to come. Preliminary steps for the organization of an association in this interest have already been taken. The rest will follow.

Mrs. Kathryn Ward Pope, who has been visiting in the city for a few days, left Monday for Eugene, to resume her work as instructor in vocal music at the University of Oregon.

R. M. Cooper was pleasantly surprised Saturday afternoon by his granddaughter, Mrs. H. E. Van Wey, at her home on Jackson street, the occasion being his 73rd birthday. He was supposed to have been invited to an ordinary dinner, when the members of his family met him in the hall with the glad cry of "surprise!" A delightful menu was served, and the evening was spent in pleasant reminiscences and music. Mr. Cooper was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts. There were four generations of the family present—R. M. Cooper, Mrs. A. Willet, Mrs. B. E. Moore and Cora Moore. Those present were: M. R. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. J. Willet, Mrs. B. E. Moore, W. H. Van Wey, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Van Wey, Miss B. Miller, Beth Cooper, Marion and Willard Ingram, Kate Cooper, Cora and Elva Moore.

The entertainment given Friday evening by the Saturday Club of the First Congregational Church in the church auditorium, was one of the most successful affairs in the history of the organization. Mrs. Walter W. Bruce, the dramatic reader from Portland, came fully up to all expectations and was repeatedly encored. Mr. Lagerson's clarinet solos made a decided hit, and Mrs. V. Harris' vocal numbers were heartily applauded. Miss Ivy Roake sang in her usual charming manner and the new male quartette was appreciably received. The financial returns of the affair were very gratifying. The entertainment was under the able management of Mrs. Eva Emery Dye.

The Irishmen's Club is arranging for an entertainment on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, in the evening, and the programme will include Irish dances and jigs and will be novel to the people of Oregon City. The affair will be held in the assembly hall of McLoughlin Institute.

George Pusey, superintendent of the sulphide department, and Henry Pusey, shipping clerk, who have been connected with the Crown-Columbia Pulp & Paper Company for many years, severed their connection with the concern Friday. Both men will probably be connected with the new mill of the Hawley Pulp & Paper Company.

SOCIETY

Willamette Development League gave a pleasing entertainment and sociable Friday night in the school building at Willamette. The League has been formed into two divisions, with Miss Bessie Capen at the head of one, and Miss Laura Bacon in charge of the other. The divisions are contesting for points, and judges have been appointed to pass upon the respective merits of the programmes given. On Friday, February 14, Miss Bacon's division will provide a programme. Last Friday night Miss Capen's division gave some very entertaining numbers. The Alldredge quartette sang several selections, Harold Swafford pleased the company with some whistling solos, and one of the most attractive features was a song by four little folks, Rosa Grimm, Bessie Eggs, Wallace Mass and Norman Olson. Mr. Alldredge sang two topical selections, playing his own accompaniment on a harp. Miss Nellie Richardson gave a recitation. Refreshments were served and the small fee charged netted sufficient funds to pay for some dishes for the league. Ernest Mass presided at the affair.

The bi-weekly meeting of the Derthick Club was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter A. Dimick, and an interesting programme was enjoyed. Mrs. Leonard L. Pickens read a paper on the operas that are now appearing in New York City and referred especially to Mme. Tetrazzini, in Verdi's opera, "La Traviata." Mrs. Pickens also talked about the life of Edward MacDowell, who died recently, and told of the place that his works occupy in the musical world. Mrs. John W. Moffett read a paper, written by Goeber, on "Carmen." The hostess served dainty refreshments.

The Derthick Club has planned a Valentine party for the evening of Friday, February 14, at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Canfield. The next afternoon meeting of the club will be held Friday, February 28, at the home of Mrs. O. W. Eastham.

LIVESTOCK TAKES AN UPWARD TREND

PATENT VALLEY FLOUR DROPS SLIGHTLY, BUT MILLSTUFFS ARE UNCHANGED.

This week's market report shows a raise in the prices of livestock over those prevalent last week. Steers that sold at that time for $3 and $4 per hundred are now commanding from $4 to $4.50. Cows, lambs and hogs have raised in proportion, while heifers that brought $3 are now selling from 50 cents to $1 higher.

Vegetables remain unchanged, the only change being in onions, which are still on the upward trend. This week's markets show a price of $3 per sack, as compared with the $2.50 that reigned last week. Hay and grain remain practically the same, the only noticeable change being a drop of five cents in the price of wheat. Patent valley flour has dropped from $4.95 to $4.90; otherwise the prices of flour and millstuffs are unchanged.

Poultry is holding its own this week, no changes being apparent. Dressed pork and veal command the same prices as last week, the former 6½ and 7 cents, the latter 8 and 8½ cents; but mutton is soaring, last week's prices of 8 and 9 cents being raised to 10 and 11 cents, while the Portland markets hold out for 12 cents. Lambs are still selling at 9 and 10 cents.
