THE GROWTH OF A NEWSPAPER.

The growth of a newspaper usually keeps pace with the growth of a town. Sometimes the newspaper, having unbounded faith in the future prosperity of the town, keeps a few paces ahead.

It is with this thought in mind that the Enterprise this week placed an order for a new cylinder press, which will cost close to $4000, and will give this office an equipment that cannot be equalled in Oregon outside of the city of Portland.

The business of The Enterprise is growing, and we expect it to continue to grow, and we intend to have the equipment necessary to meet this increased growth.

We take considerable pride in this plant of ours, and we take more pride in our production of the best newspaper that Clackamas County ever had.

ROAD SYSTEMS FOR NATIONAL FORESTS.

The office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture is to cooperate with the Forest Service in drawing up plans for comprehensive systems of roads and trails on National Forests.

For the last two years Congress has provided funds for permanent improvements on National Forests, and a large part of the money thus made available has been and is being used for road and trail building.

The object of securing the help of the Office of Good Roads is to make the work take the line that will not merely serve temporary convenience, but also count for most in the end.

During the present Summer an engineer of the Office of Roads will go over the ground on several of the Forests, and draw up plans which will be submitted to the Forester, and will serve to guide subsequent work.

National Forests are proving of great value both in the work of fire protection and in serving the convenience of the public.

FRAUDS THAT ARE NOT.

No man believes it is right for a prosecuting official to hold men under indictment for years, simply to use them as witnesses.

In the Booth case, a review of which is given in The Enterprise news columns, the situation is rightly summed up by the Oregonian in these words:

"No one expected a verdict of conviction against Singleton and the Booths, not even the prosecution, if common reports are to be believed; or, if the prosecution did look for conviction, it is not easy to understand why, for the Government had no evidence against R. A. Booth and Singleton—nothing more than its own suspicions, which could not be materialized into credible testimony; and it had very little more than the record of palpable official misconduct against J. H. Booth, who was receiver of the Roseburg Land Office, and who had endeavored to capitalize his Federal position into schemes for private profit.

"Why was R. A. Booth ever indicted? He was indicted because the Government officials were determined to 'get' him for reasons quite well understood in Oregon. He was indicted, and rested under indictment, thus being branded as a criminal for more than three years. This trial is, let it be hoped, the end of this sort of business in Oregon—a business that is certainly no credit to the administration of justice through the Government prosecutors, and it is an outrage on the men, Binger Hermann included, who have been for years denied their constitutional right of speedy trial."

A Mistaken Idea

Some people have an idea that in order to have a bank account they must have a large sum to deposit, that the bank does not care to be bothered by small accounts.

This, however, is not true of the Bank of Oregon City, which welcomes new accounts, whether of $1.00, or $1000, and the same courtesy and service is accorded the small depositor as those in more fortunate circumstances.

It is our object and wish to serve the public in financial matters in a manner that shall be satisfactory to all—old or young, rich or poor.

We want your banking business and will be pleased to have you open an account with us.
