THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR.

Don't sit down and fold your arms in resignation to that ancient and time-worn cry of the pessimist that business is going to the bow-wows because this happens to be the Presidential Year. If everyone did this we would surely all go broke. If you who are now reading this take that stand you will start a small circle of depressing influence on business that will widen and be augmented as the days and weeks go on and you with your wronged neighbors will suffer the consequences. But if you will throw off this old, silly superstition and get out and PUSH, talk sanely, act sanely, dig for old business, create new business, cast off that chief mourner expression you will start a circle of active optimism that will return agreeably surprising results.

This country of ours is too big, too solid and too sound at the core for any one party or man to send it to everlasting destruction. It may make a difference which Bill you vote for, but when Bill has taken his oath and settled down in the White House, you will wake up and find that business is wagging on, that the world still owes us a living but that we have to dig for it. The sun will shine just the same, the rain will fall and the seeds for this and next year's crop will grow just as well as ever they did. If you get busy and do your duty you won't starve, but if you wait to see whether it is to be Bill T., or Bill B., that is the lucky man, your larder and your pocketbook will grow empty.

Wake up in the morning with a smile, keep the smile on all day. Tell your friends that times are good. Don't say that even the weather is depressing. If you can't say something good about the weather let the subject alone. It's a mighty poor subject anyhow. Study the political situation of the country with a view of voting as an intelligent voter should. Form your opinions now and be ready to stand up for them. That is your duty. But whatever you do, don't say that times are hard, that money is tight and everything will go to pieces if this or that thing don't happen. Forget it. Remember this: Times are what you make them. Everyone has a telling influence on the conditions of things. If you have none, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. You are the one that is to blame. Wake up and get busy.

THE REAL BOOSTER.

On this subject, the Brownsville Times writes as follows:

"There is much talk these days of boosters and boosting, much of it that is backed by the real work along that line, and a good deal of it that is purely hot air."

"The real booster in a town is the man who, always has a good word for that town and its institutions, the man who, when a stranger is within the gates of his town will exert himself to speak a good word for the place."

"The real booster is always to be found lending his financial and his moral aid to any project which has for its object the betterment of his community, and one who is never found shaking his head wisely and questioning the motives of the men who are trying to do something for his town and consequently for him."

"The real booster seldom stands on the street corner and bemoans the fact that the town is going to the bow-wows. He does not have time to sit around and complain while doing nothing to make things better."

"No, the real booster, the man who's entitled to the name, will tell you that his town is the best one on earth."

"He will always be found on the firing line, and if he has a kick, because business is dull, he keeps it to himself, and lets you think he is doing more business than anyone."

"The real booster contributes to the uplifting and betterment of his town and her people; he takes his local papers and advertises in its columns. He is a genial, energetic, whole-souled individual, whose life is lived that others are made happier and better. Here's to him. May his tribe increase."

All of this is most true and yet in the last analysis this does not really define a Real Booster. The real booster is the farmer whose farm is up to the scratch, where the buildings have the necessary coats of paint, where the fences are clear of weeds, the tools in their sheds and not camping in the weather waiting for the next year's work. The real booster in the rural community is the man who takes pride in his farm, be it large or small. This man's fruit is just a little better than his neighbor's. He has something to exhibit when the time for the county fair comes, and the sightseer does not view his place as does the Arkansas Traveler.

The real booster is the man of city property who takes a pride in seeing that his place is neat and tidy. There is no pile of dirt and tin cans at his back door, his small garden is free from weeds and his lawn is a carpet of green.

The real booster is the merchant who knows how to keep his clerks off the counter, whose windows attract the passer-by, whose stock is never allowed to grow dusty. This man sees to it that he is never without the staples that his customers call for and makes it a point to get the wanted extras. He knows the comparative values of different kinds of stock and does not stoop to substitute an inferior article because Mrs. Jones does not come for the goods herself.

The real booster is the woman who sends her husband to work in the morning with a good wholesome breakfast, whose house looks "Homey" and tidy both outside and in and whose children show maternal care without being trussed up in frills and clothes that they dare not spill. This is the woman that does not answer the door bell in a gown that would make the rag bag and the wash tub ashamed. This is the mother and wife who makes the evening home coming and staying home worth while.

These are the people who make living worth while and who make the town or community attractive to the home seeker and prospective buyer and builder.

Boost and the world boosts with you; knock and you'll become a dyspeptic.

ORGANIZATION OF FIELD DISTRICTS, FOREST SERVICE.

Plans for the Forest Service field headquarters which are soon to be established in the west are being rapidly worked out in detail. Each headquarters will be modeled after the Washington office. In all there will be six district headquarters, one located at each of the present inspection district headquarters—Portland, San Francisco, Albuquerque, Salt Lake, Denver, and Missoula, Montana, or some other points equally well or better located for the purpose.

At the head of each office there will be a District Forester and an Assistant District Forester. Under these will be experts in charge of the various lines of work. A Chief of Grazing will have charge of range matters. A Chief of Products will handle the preservative treatment of timber and strength tests and study market conditions. A Chief of Lands will look after such matters as land examinations. The Office of Lands deals with questions involving the validity of claims asserted under the public land laws; applications for special use of the resources of the National Forests; changes in boundaries of Forests; and the examination of lands applied for under the Act of June 11, 1906, for agricultural settlement.

The Forest Service, however, never passes on the titles themselves. That is entirely a matter for the General Land Office to decide. In the cases of applications for homesteads under the Act of June 11, 1906, the Forest Service is called upon to decide whether the land is in fact more valuable for agriculture than for timber, and if it is, to recommend its listing as open to entry and patent. In the case of claims the Service ascertains whether any facts which seem to show that the claim is not a legal one, in order that National Forest land may not be unlawfully taken up. But it rests always with the Land Office of the Interior Department to decide whether the title should or should not be granted. The branch of Lands in the district Forest Service organization does not mean any new assumption of land business.

There will also be in each district a Chief of Silviculture, who will have charge of timber sales, planting and silvical experiments, and a Chief of Operation. The latter will supervise the personnel of the Forests; the permanent improvement work, through an engineer in charge; the accounts of the district, including receipts, disbursements, and bookkeeping, which will be directly supervised by an expert accountant; and the routine business of the district.

In each of the lines of work the management will be in the hands of a man who is a specialist and who has had thorough experience both in the West and Washington. The foresters and clerks at each district headquarters will number about fifty.

The establishment of these field districts will bring the Service into more immediate touch with the public. It is merely the completion of the movement, started some time ago, to have the Forests administered as far as possible by men actually on the ground.

The change will not affect the investigative work of the Service, which will center, as hitherto, in Washington. Mr. Pinchot is expected soon to name the men who will fill the various positions.

SOCIETY

Mr. A. A. Price, a prominent business man of this city, was united in marriage to Miss Sadie Sylvia Tolpolar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Tolpolar at the residence of the bride's parents, on Adams street, between Fourth and Fifth, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Dr. Block, of Portland, officiating. The ceremony took place on the veranda, which was enclosed for the occasion, and the background of flowers, vines and ferns formed a beautiful bower. During the marriage ceremony Mr. Price and his bride stood beneath a magnificent wedding bell of carnations. To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Essie Block, the bride, attended by Miss Esther Sagel, of Portland, and the groom by his brother, Henry Price, of The Dalles, took their places preceded by the flower girl, little Sadie Michaels, of Portland. After Dr. Block had pronounced the words that made the happy couple husband and wife, "Mondeus's Wedding March" was played. After Mr. and Mrs. Price had received the congratulations of the many guests, refreshments were served, and in the evening an elaborate wedding supper was enjoyed, before the departure of the bridal couple to San Francisco, where they have gone on their honeymoon. The bride wore a handsome Princess gown of white net over white tulle, with trimmings of Irish point lace, and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations. The maid of honor wore a gown of pink messaline with trimmings of lace. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Ruth Kern, of Portland, which was thrown from the veranda. There were about 60 guests present, and the gifts to the young couple were many and handsome.

The regular meeting of the Rebekah Lodge was held in the I. O. O. F. hall Friday night, when Miss Hazel Frances was initiated into the mysteries of the order. After all business was transacted a social time was enjoyed. The members of the I. O. O. A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbons, of Bull Run last Wednesday, when their daughter, Miss Zell was given in marriage to Mr. C. W. Stuthers, Rev. Reese, of Pleasant Home, officiating. The bride was beautifully gowned in cream colored nun's veiling, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Winnifred Roake, formerly of this city, was bride's maid, and Mr. Jewel Bond acted as best man. The home was prettily decorated with Oregon Grape and cut flowers. After the wedding dinner was served the bride and groom left for an extended trip East, amidst a shower of rice. Only immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony. The bride, who is well-known in this city, where she made her home for some time, is one of Clackamas County's prominent school teachers.

The Woodmen met in regular session at Woodmen hall last Friday night, and while in the midst of their work a terrible commotion was heard in the hallway. The sentry, Edward Waldron, opened the door to investigate, and was taken captive by a large throng of women, and after calling lustily for help several of his comrades ran to his rescue. Mr. Waldron escaped the clutches of his assailants, and the doors locked. After the session the Woodmen were surprised to find the women still waiting, and the doors of the assembly room were thrown open, where it was found that the Ladies of Soli Circle, W. O. W., had prepared a surprise, and the tables were laden with delicious eatables. A social time was spent until a late hour.

A. A. Price, whose marriage to Miss Sadie Tolpolar took place in this city on Sunday, August 16, gave a farewell stag party to his bachelor friends and to some of the married men Thursday night. Mr. Price entertained in a royal manner, ably assisted by Charles W. Robison. The party was given at the Eagles' Hall, and the amusements of the evening were cards, games and music, and toasts were given by many of the guests. During the evening a banquet was enjoyed, consisting of all of the delicacies of the season. At the close of the affair the guests sang "Auld Lang Syne" and departed extending to their host the best wishes and the hope for a bright and happy future. Mr. Price's guests were Judge Livy Stipp, Joseph Goodfellow, George Hall, Walter Beach, Forbes Pratt, Charles Goettling, August Rakel, Jack Bacer, Charles Pope, Dr. C. H. Meisner, Dr. L. G. Lee, Henry Stratton, Charles Robinson, A. R. Price, of San Francisco and Louis and Leo Swirsky of Portland.

After the marriage ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. White left for Portland, and from there they will go to Seaside, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will make their home at Gladstone, where the groom has a neat cottage in readiness for his bride. Mr. and Mrs. White are well known young people of this city, where they have made their residence for several years.

The social given by the young people of the Baptist church Friday night, was a very successful affair. A program consisting of music and recitations was taken up the first part of the evening, and was followed by games and ice cream and cake. In a potato race, the prize was awarded to Ross Eaton, and Frank Welsh won the prize in the peanut race.
