(Continued from page 5.) Canned fruit and jellies. A. A. Pease—Dried prunes, fresh prunes. Mrs. J. Y. Humphrys—Fresh and canned fruits. W. B. Stafford—Five varieties of squash, four varieties of potatoes, onions, beans, garlic, snap peas, pumpkins, grain. Mrs. Ralph Miller—Jellies, six varieties, cucumbers. Mrs. Bert Clark—Canned fruit. Mrs. Jane Thomas, potatoes. J. Partlow—Egg plant and peppers.

Milwaukee Grange exhibit was in charge of O. E. Freytag and J. I. Johnson. The fair and vegetable exhibit was from the Milwaukee Grange Fair held two weeks ago. All of the exhibit was not brought to Canby, and it was a disappointment to many that it was not. The canned fruits, jellies and seedwork, which attracted so much attention at the grange fair, were not there. Mr. Freytag had a large display of fruits and vegetables, many of which took the first premium at the fair at Milwaukee. J. J. Johnson, of Milwaukee, had an exhibition of Mammoth squashes, citrons, water melons, musk melons, and many varieties of vegetables. The Lambert cherry in a large glass jar, placed in preservative by O. E. Freytag, attracted a great deal of attention. The cherries were large and firm. The grain exhibit was also good. Exhibition of Milwaukee, had on the exhibition sweet potatoes raised on his place at Oak Grove. The peppers and onions raised on the Heitkemper place, were also among the exhibits. Mr. Freytag, Mr. Johnson and J. H. Dowling deserve credit in the interest they took to bring the exhibit so far, and had no assistance in their arrangement of the exhibit. A large flag was also among the decorations.

The southeast corner of the building was the art exhibit of Mrs. Anna Dedman, of Canby. The dark background, the beautiful painting of this accomplished artist. Mrs. Dedman had pictures from still life, portrait, flowers and scenery, and much praise was given her work by the visitors at the fair. Among those which attracted the attention in their arrangement of the exhibit, Mrs. Dedman had pictures from still life, portrait, flowers and scenery, and much praise was given her work by the visitors at the fair. Among those which attracted the attention in their arrangement of the exhibit, Mrs. Dedman had pictures from still life, portrait, flowers and scenery, and much praise was given her work by the visitors at the fair.

A. Koerber, the implement and hardware dealer of Canby, had an exhibit of stoves, cream separators, and farm implements. The exhibit was in charge of C. Koerber, who presented hundreds of visitors with souvenirs for the occasion. Mr. Koerber is one of Canby's thrifty business men, who has built up an immense business in his line.

The booth adjoining Mr. Koerber was occupied by Burnmeister & Andersen, who had a large display of phonographs, and who favored the visitors with many selections. All day the booth was thronged with the crowd who came to listen to latest selections. Mr. Andersen was in charge of the booth, and made several good sales during his stay at the fair grounds. Souvenir pins were presented to the visitors. The Columbia and Victor machines were on exhibition and the musical selections proved to be one of the chief attractions in the big exhibit building.

C. T. Bates, another of Canby's young business men, who took an active interest in the County Fair, had one of the most attractive booths in the building. The booth was in red, and with the display of paints, breakfast foods, groceries, etc., formed a center of attraction to the visitors as they came into the main entrance.

Mr. Bates closed his store in the afternoon of the fair, and showed a loyal spirit by attending.

The A. C. Newell Nursery Company of Damascus, had an exhibit near the front entrance, and Mr. Newell gave to the visitors nuts and apples. The nuts raised by this company are large, and the most in firm and unusually sweet. Mr. Newell also had an exhibit of illustrations of apples and nuts that he has in stock.

The Enterprise office of this city, was in charge of Mrs. Nan Buchanan of the Enterprise staff, and more than a thousand people registered. In this booth was a large display of bookwork, posters, magazines, stationery, and other printed work issued from the office in Oregon City. Papers, magazines and blotters were distributed to the public. The booth with the background of American flags, Oregon grape and autumn beauty, with bright colored pennants, formed a very attractive corner.

One of the pleasing sights in the building was the floral exhibit in the northeast corner of the auditorium. The flowers were the property of Mrs. William Knight, Mrs. W. R. Porter and Mrs. W. Kesselring. Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Porter were awarded premiums.

Along the wall of the building in close proximity to the flower exhibit was the general exhibit of fruits and vegetables. Every day during the fair this exhibit was admired by hundreds of people. The rosy cheeked apples and the other delicious fruits and vegetables were displayed in a most attractive manner. The apples and grain of A. J. Lewis in this collection were excellent. Mr. Lewis in his collection of grain, which was used for the background, had the white and red wheat, two bunches of gray oats, two bunches of white oats, two bunches of timothy grass, two bunches of orchard grass, two bunches of oats, and received the first premium on grains and grasses. Mr. Lewis' apples attracted no little attention. They were highly polished and were evenly packed in the boxes. He had on exhibition the finest Bellflower, Northern Spy, Gravenstein. Mr. Lewis received the first premium on Baldwin, first on Bellflower, first on the Northern Spy, second on the best three boxes and first on the Gravenstein. Mr. Waldron received first on the best three boxes of apples, and his collection in this department was among the best. Mr. Lewis and Mr. Waldron were awarded premiums last year on their apples at the County Fair. C. W. Swallow, another of Clackamas County's farmers, who is among the enthusiastic fruit raisers, had an exhibit of a splendid variety of grapes of four varieties, Warden, Niagara, Delaware, Moore's Diamond, for which he received the first premium. He had eight varieties of winter pears, and four varieties of apples, King, Clavis, Bismarck and Kay. Mr. Swallow received first premium on King, Bismarck and Kay. The Winter Banana apple raised by Mr. Shrock on his farm at Hubbard, were large and of a rich color, and were among the apples on exhibition that attracted the attention of the visitors. Mr. Shrock is one of the county's prominent apple raisers, and takes a pride in exhibiting his best fruit on any occasion like this.

F. Hampton, of Canby, had a large display of plums, prunes, dry and fresh vegetables that covered about ten feet of space. Mr. Hampton is one of the few of Canby's farmers who brought fruit and vegetables for exhibit. Many of the farmers of Canby who did not exhibit fruit and vegetables are already planning to do so on a large scale at the fair next year.

The juvenile department was near the center of the building and occupied a large space. The seeds from which the vegetables were raised by the young people, were given to them by County School Superintendent T. J. Gary, who has been active in interesting these young people in the fair. Many took advantage of Mr. Gary's kindness, and their exhibit was a credit to any community.

The Sherman Clay Music School, of Portland, was well represented by C. LeNoir. Many handsome pianos and organs were on exhibition, and daily musical selections were given by Mr. LeNoir on the $500 Euphonio piano player piano, which attracted large crowds. Mr. LeNoir, who possesses a tone voice of rich quality, favored the visitors at the fair with many of his selections, which were greatly appreciated. He was accompanied by this musical instrument, which beautifully blended with his voice. Seventy-year-old, roadster, T. L. Turner, first; W. M. Robinson, Oregon City, R. F. D. Mrs. A. J. Lewis, of Maple Lane, was awarded the special first premium for the best exhibit of canned fruit and jars named in the Economy and the most in firm and unusually sweet. The same place was awarded the second premium on canned fruit and jars.

W. P. Weismandel, who drew the plans of the building and presented them to the Association, had a force of men, who understood their work, and the building, although a trifle dark, was a big improvement on that of last year, when the building at Gladstone had no floor, and many of the exhibits were damaged by the dust. The booths were partitioned off, and gates used at the entrance. The counters, which were not in evidence last year, were also planned by Mr. Weismandel, and gave to the exhibitor a chance to display his goods to a great advantage this year. The well, with its pure water, was also one of the conveniences on the ground. As the ground is new the dust was a bad feature, but this is to be overcome as the intention of the Association is to plant the ground in grass by next year's fair.

Mrs. Charles Wait, of Canby, who had charge of the Domestic Process Department, and Mrs. J. L. Waldron, of this city, in charge of the Ladies' Textile department, demonstrated interesting activities and showed excellent taste in the arrangement of the exhibit in their departments. The officers of the fair association were indeed fortunate in securing the services of two such talented women.

The marshals for the fair were G. W. Kesselring, J. A. Graham, H. C. Gilmore and Louis Grrazier, who say that they never saw a more orderly crowd of people in a large gathering as at the fair. These men are all well known in Canby, and are held in the highest esteem by all, and their selection for marshals was heartily endorsed by all. The women, who also deserve special mention, in helping the ladies of the M. E. church in serving meals to the large throng on the grounds: Mrs. Zeek, Mrs. J. A. Graham, Mrs. M. J. Martin, Miss Anna Porter, Miss Marlon, Swanby, Miss Harriet Bates, Miss Florence Snell, Rev. W. Weber.

Secretary T. J. Gary, Judge Waite, Thomas F. Ryan and George Lazelle are deserving of much credit in the success of the fair, and through their untiring efforts the most successful county fair held in Clackamas county closed Saturday night with an address by Dr. Withycombe.

Thursday's Races. The first race was between Bazinski, Lady B and Birdie C, and resulted as follows: Bazinski first; Lady B second; Birdie C third. One-half mile; time 54 seconds.

The next was a slow trotting race by four Clackamas county horses as follows: Jack, G. Whipple, owner; Nig, D. Cassel, owner; Geo. Wait; Jennie, Tom Killip. The first prize was for the slowest horse, and was won by Geo. Wait.

THE INDIAN GIRL CUCOCOOKEE ALEEMOO

SINGING BIRD OF MORNING

COMPILED AND CORRECTED BY WM. PHILLIPS, AUTHOR OF NIRVA, THE ORPHAN GIRL; THE ONWARD WAVE, SPIRIT MINNIE'S STORY, ETC.

Summer birds soon returned, and their sweetest notes were heard again. Wild flowers soon began to bloom, and the bee was on the wing.

And Lucella was busy with her garden, flowers and with the fowls of the barnyard, while she was preparing the soil for the summer crops to grow. But I needed help, and Joe had all the work at home he could do.

But providence, it seemed, had laid a deeper plan. In a few days a young man came sauntering down the road towards our house with rather unsteady steps, but with steady on determination was behind it. He was plainly but neatly dressed, and wore the air of one who had seen, or was seeking better days.

"Sir, can I assist you with your work the while?" "You can stop with us awhile, and I will pay you for your work in the field. What is your name?" The young man blushed slightly at the query, but replied:

"My name is Alfred, sir. I have no other name." "This was rather a peculiar condition, however, I introduced the young man to Lucella as 'Alfred.' Lucella hesitated a little, seemingly listening for the second name, but managed to say good evening, and 'Come in, Alfred, where you are wanted, if not of good education, and at our request gave a concise statement of the history of his life as far as he knew it.

His first recollection was, he was picked up in the streets of a city called New Orleans by some rough looking men and placed in a large building, among other small children, with nurses to attend them. This building, he learned in time, was called 'A Home for Orphans,' where he remained until old enough to earn his own support. Then he drifted away from the city, and falling in with some miners finally brought up on the Pacific coast where he remained ten years in the employ of a rancher. The rancher sent him to school three years of the ten, but dying, left Alfred to wander again.

"Fate" or "luck" led him north, and he found a place where he was to stay, where some miners finally brought up on the Pacific coast where he remained ten years in the employ of a rancher. The rancher sent him to school three years of the ten, but dying, left Alfred to wander again.

that by virtue of nature's laws existed between Aleemoo and Alfred—a perfect harmony of soul- vibrations. And my recollecting the fact of Aleemoo's soul emotions touched a harmonious point in Alfred's nature and caused to overflow again in dewdrops of love.

Though a dusky maiden on one side, a son of civilization on the other, Lucella accused Alfred of being in love, but he denied it saying, "I am but a waif in the world and of unknown parentage. If I were in love I could not offer myself to one as pure in heart as Aleemoo." A "spell" again came over me and I saw an epidemic fever in a large city which swept thousands away, and children were left to wander the streets, uncaared for, and getting on rapport with Alfred's aura, I traced a magnetic line from him to this stricken city, then followed it from the city in its long winding course until the day he came to our home. The relation of the vision gave Alfred hope, and he said, "So." Again Lucella accused Alfred of being in love. Again the accusation was denied, but Lucella assured him that falling in love was like falling off a log, we cannot help it in the one case, nor yet in the other. But I know not my surname, how could I get married without that name?"

I advised Alfred he had a legal heart in regard to marriage. If he heart said no before that time she would promptly tell him. If yes, she would inform him at once.
