WOOD PULP AND SAW MILL WASTE.

To insure a pulp wood supply to meet adequately the future needs of the country seems one of the most important of the many forest problems of the United States. Statistics collected by government experts, however, show that there are possibilities in the field of invention for the relief of the drain on the country's remaining pulp wood forests by devising means of utilizing saw-mill waste.

It is estimated that there are 4 1/2 million cords of slabs destroyed in refuse burners of the lumber mills of the country each year. The wood used for pulp last year amounted to approximately 4 million cords, about a quarter of which had to be imported. The mill-waste is based on a recent canvass of some of the larger mills of the country by the United States Forest Service, which established the interesting fact that mills having an aggregate cut of 5,440 million board feet had a final waste of 1,870,000 cords of slabs after the best had been used for lath. Assuming these mills to be representative, it is seen that there is still considerable waste in forest products at the mill even after the earnest efforts of lumbermen during the last ten years to bring about a closer utilization of the whole tree.

These figures make it look as if American inventors, who are performing wonderful feats in other fields, should get down to the consideration of methods to make these waste slabs available for the pulp makers. Work along this line would also be likely to show the way for utilization of thousands of tons of saw dust which are now wasted each year.

It is true that some utilization is being made of mill waste at present, but in most cases it is only the larger and more modern plants that are even making any attempts in this line. Then, as it is, the plants which use the waste, after laths are made, often waste the sawdust, and those which use the sawdust waste the slabs. The slab residue from the lumber cut of the country is estimated to amount to about 14 million cords, of which 6 million, with an average value of $1.70 a cord, is sold for fuel, 3 1/2 million burned by the mills for fuel, and 4 1/2 million sent to the refuse burners. This last figure shows the enormous quantity of forest product that is pure waste. The iron furnace slag heaps have been seized upon by the brick maker, and the screening dump of the coal mines has become a valuable source of raw material for the briquette manufacturer. Experts say that it may prove possible to make just as good use of waste heaps of the lumber mills if slabs and sawdust can be converted into pulp.

REVENUE RECEIPTS DECREASE.

That there is a wave of prohibition sweeping the country is shown in the falling off of the internal revenue receipts of the Treasury Department and the Government, to say the least, is surprised. Liquor dealers expected hard times in their trade but the internal Revenue Bureau, as far as its personnel is concerned, is quite independent of internal revenues. The clerks of that gigantic office will be paid whether they collect anything or not. They were not, therefore, on the lookout and had no suspicion of the great monetary loss that the government would sustain. A big deficit is being created in the government resources and Congress will have to take up the matter at the coming session and cover the loss by imposing other revenue taxes. There was a deficit of two millions for October and large deficits will follow in succeeding months as the prohibition movement spreads. It is said that distillers and wholesale liquor dealers have lost so much already that they cannot stand any further taxation and remain in business. The total loss in revenues since July has been seven millions of dollars. The loss on beers and other fermented liquors in September amounted to $1,500,000. There are some other curious and significant losses given in the internal revenue figures. These losses would indicate that hundreds of men have quit playing cards because the government revenue loss on cards was over nine thousand dollars. That there is a loss from this source is all the more remarkable when it is considered how many hundreds of thousands of women have taken to "bridge."

However, we still read in the news columns of some of the city newspapers that the consumption of liquor is going right along, and that there is no perceptible reduction in the manufactured supply, despite the steadily increasing dry territory.

To grow old gracefully, to find the heart becoming more mellow with the passing years, is something everyone should seek after. Such a life's evening is like a lovely sunset whose parting rays and glorious tints flood the earth with beauty.

President Diaz, of Mexico, who has the habit of practically re-electing himself, to the great satisfaction of his people, must regard with mingled wonder and pity the strenuous times presidential candidates in this country have to undergo.

Perhaps the president-elect might save himself a lot of worry if he would let the newspapers choose his cabinet for him. They are evidently willing to do it, but the trouble is, that no two lists of appointees exactly agree.

ESTACADA.

The chief event of the Autumn in educational circles was the educational meeting held in the M. E. church, November 19, by County Superintendent T. J. Gary and State Superintendent J. H. Ackerman. Over 400 people were in the building. The programme of the evening was as follows:

Solo, Mrs. H. A. Williams, Estacada; recitation, Miss Rose Closser, Springwater; cornet solo, L. E. Bell, Estacada; recitation, Miss Doddie Lovell, Currinville; song and drill, primary class of Estacada school, Mae Stevens, teacher; address, Superintendent T. J. Gary; address, Superintendent J. H. Ackerman. Mr. Gary explained the purpose of these meetings and defined his position on the union high school question. Mr. Ackerman made a plea that the home and school should be brought closer together, that the teacher and parent should enjoy more of each other's confidence. He spoke also of the change he favors of distributing school money according to the number of teachers employed, and that the county be made the smallest unit for school work. His address was well received. This meeting is one of a series being held in the county and is a departure in school work.

Guy Hunt has a force of men improving the road from Porter's to Palmater's settlement.

John Telford, of Oregon City, is now agent at the O. W. P. Station here, having taken the place of C. P. Kelly. This is the third Telford, who has been agent at this place, two brothers having had the position before Mr. Kelly took it.

Miss Mary Womer visited with friends Saturday and Sunday in Portland.

Last Sunday a crew of dagoes, who were on the section near Cazadero, got into a free for all fight. They had been drinking and when the quarrel began they drew their knives and began cutting each other up. One of the fellows had to be taken to a Portland hospital to be treated as he had several cuts on his person. His assailant has not yet been arrested, but it is thought he will soon be in the custody of the sheriff.

Warren Barr was an over Sunday visitor in Portland.

E. S. Womer of the Estacada Progress, and Paul Womer were in Portland Saturday on business.

Mrs. W. H. Heylman, of Spokane, Wash., arrived Wednesday morning to visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Heylman for a few weeks.

While Mrs. Tim Linn and Mrs. Rawlins were driving home from Garfield their horse became frightened and became unruly. Mrs. Linn jumped out of the buggy and received a very badly sprained ankle, otherwise nothing serious occurred.

Henry Guldenzopf, son of William Guldenzopf, of Cazadero, while showing a few tricks on the Portland fairgrounds, fell striking on a piece of wood. He received a scalp wound, and had to be taken to Dr. Adix, who patched up his head.

E. P. Scott bought two lots from D. Bridenstin in Estacada's first addition, and will begeton shortly putting up a house. The house will be a story and a half structure with all modern improvements.

Robert Currin, of Currinville, who had his leg broken sometime ago, was in Estacada Friday. Mr. Currin uses crutches and manages to get along nicely.
