An interesting programme was given by the pupils of McLoughlin Institute. The net proceeds of the bazaar are something more than $1000 and the fair was the most success ever given by the church. Saturday evening the hall was packed to its utmost capacity. The comedy, "A Great Catastrophe," was presented, and those taking part did admirably well. MISSING MAN FOUND

NORWEGIAN RESIDENT OF GLADSTONE WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN LOST.

J. Hjelsing, a Norwegian who owns property in Gladstone, and who has been missing for several weeks, was found Saturday morning in the Willamette Hotel, where he has been ill. His condition is very favorable and he will be out in a few days.

Mr. Hjelsing came here two months ago and on October 15 purchased three acres at Gladstone from Attorney H. E. Cross, the consideration being $900. Hjelsing had money and paid cash for the property and made a deposit of his funds in the Bank of Oregon City. He is about 55 years of age and a bachelor, and he started to build a cottage on his lots. Working daily, he attracted the attention of his neighbors, the Andersons, until one morning, about four weeks ago, Mrs. Anderson noticed that the work on the house had ceased. She informed William Hammond, who is associated with Mr. Cross, and Mr. Hammond made some investigations, finding that Hjelsing had left his tools under a door in the yard, as though he intended to return very soon. Mr. Cross inquired at many places in Oregon City for whereabouts of the missing man, but could secure no information, and he commenced to entertain fears for the safety of Hjelsing, which culminated in that thought that the body of the man found last Saturday near Milwaukee might be Hjelsing. Saturday morning, however, Mr. Cross resumed his investigations and found Hjelsing at the Willamette Hotel.
