GROWTH OF A COMMUNITY.

Just a small portion of the history of Mulino, with residenters, and schools.

First we will tell the readers of the enormous growth in population of our great city, Mulino.

We have in our little burg now 40 resident houses in an area of one mile, which mos. have sprung up in the last few years. Also a great change in the old residents which have been here for years. New families moving in, which of course, some of the old residenters don't boast at all, to some of their society.

Some are very quiet, peaceable citizens, while others are certainly a drag down to the community.

One thing our people have not got wise to yet, and that is, electing new citizens in our public officers. That's an old fault of ours; as soon as a new man comes here, you will see some of the old gents begin to prick up their ears. Before long he is down in Mud street with a little flask in his jeans. Election, that's the game of the day then. Well, finally he's elected. A pretty smart educated man he is. Well known in the county. Run close against his opponent in a large office of the county; he's just the man we've needed. Well, he does fine for a while (a very short while). Finally the pot begins boiling; it's trouble here, then it's trouble there. He lifts on his burden, it's getting heavier. He's handling yours, mine and some one else's business. He raises it, gets it up and then he falls; his second attempt is repeated with the same result.

He finally mutters in a very low voice, "I'm cowed, what shall I do?"

He finally decides on a proposition. "I'll move to a new community, where I ain't known."

So take heed fellow citizens and don't think like the little fellow does with a toy, because it's new it's better.

Next we will introduce out school in to the columns.

We have a school here with thirty pupils including a few ninth grade kids, which is certainly a down-fall to our school. It was understood when this ninth grade was taken in our school, that they would be no trouble whatever to our teachers.

Have they been? Yes! They've proved themselves a fake to the whole school. Why? Because they imagine themselves too far advanced for any teacher who teaches a country school.

It's a natural fact that when a small pupil has anything against a teacher, he or she will go home and tell their father and mother.

But it has gotten to be a habitual fact that when a larger pupil has any thing against a teacher; they not only go home and tells their parents a lot of trash, but they lay off a day and writes a. (I call it a letter just now for I have no other name for it) letter to the Hon. Board of Directors. The letter of course, is taken to school. The teacher is then called to one corner of the school house, and the pupils driven out of the school house in the wind and cold. The little fellows finally decide to build a bon fire to keep from freezing. Two hours and a half the bon fire is kindled, when the pupils are dismissed and told to go home.

But next what have they done with the letter? It is taken and read by the teacher, in a laughing, sneering manner, who states at the close, "I'm really surprised at the ignorance of some people."

Next our ninth grade pupils start a high school of their own, which at present is being taught by the mother of a couple of the highly educated pupils.

HIGH SCHOOL SCORES

OREGON CITY AGGREGATION GETS ONE PLACE KICK BUT LOSES GAME.

Four to 21 was the score of the football game on Willamette Falls field last Saturday afternoon between the teams of the Oregon City high school and the Third Presbyterian Church, of Portland. The visitors had it all over the local men, who received some encouragement in the opening of the game, for in the first minute of play the Presbyterians fumbled, Oregon City regaining the ball. Moore dropped back for a place kick, and the pig skin sailed true between the goal posts, scoring four points for Oregon City. After this effort, there was nothing doing for the high school, and the Presbyterians played rings around their opponents. This is the first time the Portland boys have been scored against this season, and they have played 18 games.

The line up of the high school was: Avison, right end; Bowen, right tackle; Caufield and Welsh, right guard; Gard, center; Snidow, left guard; McClure, left tackle; Gillett, left end; hart, quarter; Logeson, right half; Moore, left half; Seller, full back.

Rye and Indian Pancakes.

One pint milk, one teaspoonful soda, two eggs, a little salt; mix firm enough to cut off with a spoon in boiling lard with half rye and half Indian meal; molasses to sweeten.

Steak Stew.

One round steak, cut into pieces of the desired size, then fried in drippings. When well browned sprinkle with salt, cover with hot water and simmer gently for one and one-half hours. Thicken the gravy and serve.

Quince Honey.

Four large quinces; three pounds of granulated sugar, one pint of water, alum the size of a pea; put the water, sugar and alum in a kettle, boil and skim; put in the quinces and boil for ten minutes, then turn into jars and seal.

Aunt Ibbie's Pudding.

Pare, core and quarter tart cooking apples, using enough to cover the bottim of a buttered baking dish. Make a sponge cake batter according to any favorite formula and pour over the pieces of apple in the pan. Bake in a moderate oven until the fruit is soft enough to be easily pierced by a straw. Serve with hard sauce. Vanilla, lemon or spice will do for flavoring.

Cheese Fondu.

Put into a double boiler a tablespoonful of butter, a cupful of milk, a scant cupful of fresh, soft bread crumbs and two cupfuls of cheese, grated. Cover and cook until all ingredients are blended and creamy. Add two eggs, whipped light, and stir until the mixture thickens; put in a pinch of cayenne and a teaspoonful of salt and serve on toast or crackers.

Apple Biscuit.

To one pint of light bread sponge add one-quarter cup of molasses, one tablespoonful of lard and graham or whole wheat for a soft dough. Beat vigorously or knead circumspectly, and finally work in a large cup of chopped apple, (greenings or russets), cut in bits as large as the end of your finger. Shape in muffin pans, sprinkle with brown sugar and let them stand until very light before baking. Good either warm or cold.

Soup Meat Balls.

Put cooked soup meat, cold boiled potatoes and onions in the food chopper, add pepper and salt to taste, form into balls, press flat and fry brown.

A Dainty Breakfast Dish.

Toast your bread light brown, butter and salt. Beat the white of egg stiff and pile on the toast, scooping out a little round center; into this drop the whole yolk. Set in the oven and brown again. Put bits of butter and salt and pepper on the egg and serve on individual plates.

Graham Bread.

Set a sponge as for white bread. Let it stand in a warm place all night, and in the morning work into it enough graham flour to make a good dough and add to it three scant tablespoonfuls of molasses. Knead thoroughly and make into loaves. Put into greased pans and set to rise until light, then bake in a steady oven.

St. James Salad.

Press the required amount of cooked rice into a buttered border mold; set on ice to chill; when serving unmold on a bed of cress or other greens; fill center with cooked peas, beans, (wax and flageolet), potatoes cut into cubes sliced carrot, cauliflower, button onions or other vegetables; dress with mayonaise and whipped cream.

Cream Cheese.

Allow a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of unflavored rennet to every quart of milk, and when you have a solid curd turn into a bag and let it drip. It may have to hang for a day before the whey ceases to drip from it, but when this stage is reached take the curd out, chop it fine, and put into a cheese box and press two hours. Wrap in tissue paper or in tinfoil. Change bag at end of twelve hours should the curd take that length of time to drip.

Diced Liver.

One pound of calf's or lamb's liver, one-half pound of bacon; cover with water and simmer very gently for two hours, or until thoroughly tender. Drain and cut in small cubes, return these to the fire and cook for ten minutes, seasoning with salt and pepper and tossing frequently, that they may brown lightly and evenly. Serve on strips of hot buttered toast, moistened with the liquor in which the liquor in which the meat was cooked. Chile or Worcestershire sauce should be offered with savory supper dish.

Making Perfect Butter.

Butter may be made from either sweet or ripened cream. While the former has a delicate flavor, it lacks the aroma of butter made from soured cream.

The latter is ready for churning as soon as it gets thick and slightly sour. A housekeeper should have a dairy thermometer to assist her if she wishes perfect butter.

The best temperature at which to churn is from 58 to 60 degrees. This is determined by suspending the thermometer in the cream.

If too cold, place the jar containing the cream in a pan of hot water and stir until the thermometer goes up over 58, says Mrs. Telford. In summer, cold water is used to lower the temperature if the cream is too warm.

When making butter in summer the churn should be rinsed with cold water. The beating movement should be regular and not too rapid.

As soon as the butter comes, which will probably be in ten or fifteen minutes, draw off and pour cold water over it in the bowl; then add a teaspoonful of salt to each quart of cold water as it is poured over.

When this is done put the butter in a bowl, work it a little with wooden paddles and set away, covered with a linen cloth for two or three hours. A tablespoonful of salt may be worked into each pound of butter then.

After the salt is wrked in, when it is required, the paddle should again deftly work the butter until all the buttermilk is extracted. Care must be taken not to destroy the grain.

Shape the butter in any form preferred and place on the ice until ready to serve.

The Marriage Age.

The marriage age in Austria is 14 years for both sexes; Germany, the man at 18, the woman at 14; Belgium, the man at 18, the woman at 15; Spain, the man at 14, the woman at 12; Mexico, with parental consent, 16 and 18, otherwise 21 for both; France the man at 18, the woman at 15; Greece the man at 14, the woman at 12; Hungary, Catholics, the man at 14, the woman at 12; Protestants, the man at 18, the woman at 15; Portugal, the man at 14 the woman at 12; Russia, the man at 18, the woman at 15; Saxony the man is 18, the woman at 16; Switzerland, the man at 14, the woman at 12.

The Soul Reader.

Acording to a new oracle, human beings are divided into two distinct categories, the free individual and the collective type. The free individual bears the imprint of absolute value; the collective type is indelibly marked with the signs of relative value. It is chiefly through the eyes, the mirrors of the soul, that a new occultist reads the depths of our inner natures. If the eye is luminous, the mind is full of light; if the eye is troubled, vague or dull, the individual is somber and shadowy. The clear, transparent and profound eye reveals the genius of the sower or charmer; the hard and cold eye shows the power of the dominator, of the director or the vanquisher.

To Kill Cut Worms.

In India the formula used by the government for poisoning cutworms is 4 pounds of white arsenic and 8 pounds of sugar in 6 gallons of water, used to moisten 80 pounds of fine-chopped straw. Small quantities are dropped at the bases of plants.

The Rehearsal.

Here on life's little stage to empty stalls,
Clad in bright tinsel or in armor gray,
The footlights dim and shadows on the walls,
We weave the comedy or tragic play.

With calm, clear eye the Master watching stands
To mold our efforts and our words attune;
Censure stings not when taken from His hands,
His commendation is our priceless boon.
Whether the sunlight falls or misty rain,
Rehearsal hours to fit us still go on,
So we may make our coming not in vain
On the immortal playground at the Dawn.

Never use tarred rope for strings to hang meat by. Tar has a very penetrating odor.

Do you you know that light weakens the strength of vanilla extract? For that reason keep it in a dark place.

Pumpkin seeds are very attractive to mice, and traps baited with them will soon destrop these little pests.

Mica in stoves is readily cleaned by taking out and thoroughly washing with slightly diluted vinegar.

Do not invite only the prosperous relatives to your Christmas dinner and leave out those who "can't get turkey every day."

Do not cook cranberry sauce too long, and do not add to much water. The finest sauce can be made from one quart of cranberries with one cupful of water. Boil for ten minutes, then add two cupfuls of sugar. Stir well and set away to cool.

On mild days in winter give the cellar a good airing. This not only keeps mold from developing and makes the whole house more healthful to live in, but it also helps to keep the floor timbers in good condition. Rot may develop pretty rapidly in these timbers in a damp, poorly ventilated cellar, and in consequence danger or loss follows.

Let us stand right by Santa Claus and the Christmas giving. He has made the world brighter, better and happier. His work is not yet done. As long as there is a poor lonely heart anywhere in the world; as long as there is a man or woman who needs to be cheered up; as long as there are boys and girls to love,—so long will there be something for this Saint of the Big Heart to do.

Birds of several species can be kept around the farmyard all winter, such as chickadees, downy, hairy and red-headed woodpeckers, redbirds, blue-jays, etc., if food and shelter are provided for them. The food should include nuts, which may be chopped or broken into small pieces; wheat, and cracked corn, beef suet, bread-crumbs and table scraps. They may be shy at first, but if these things are put daily in the same places they will become tame. If you begin to feed them and thus encourage them to stay with you, you ought to keep it up without intermission, since they have counted on your charity.

Women don't make fools of men—they merely assist nature.
