WILD BIRD PROTECTION.

The National Grange Believes in Protecting Our Feathered Friends.

The following resolution was handed up to the national grange at its Hartford session from the Connecticut state grange, and it was approved by the national body:

Whereas, It is conclusively shown that the wholesale and widespread slaughtering of wild birds throughout the United States is a positive and dangerous menace to agriculture through depriving the farmer of the aid of the creatures that would otherwise destroy harmful insects and the seeds of noxious weeds, we respectfully and earnestly request the national grange to urge on the various state, county and subordinate granges throughout the country that they make this matter an important department of their general work and in every way strive to create a sentiment of latitude and enforce legislation in behalf of the protection of the feathered friends of the farmer, so necessary to his welfare and such an attraction to country life at large.

If it comes to me, why, I shall feel all the more highly pleased and shall do my best to be worthy of the honor as a candidate and if elected as chief executive of the state."

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y.
From Correspondent New York State Grange

PAST AND PRESENT.

A Founder of the Grange Writes About Its Early Struggles.

I have frequently been asked if our Order is up to the standard it was contemplated by the early workers in establishing it. When we take into consideration that forty-two years have passed, over a generation, during which time the greatest progress in education and inventions any civilized nation has ever made, it stands to reason the Order has improved in many respects.

In those days it was the first systematic organization the farmers had ever known. When it got a good headway a perfect stampede followed. We had a few able men and women among the leaders, but it was soon beyond control, and a reaction followed. Today the sons and daughters of many of the ancient members are now leaders in the work. In the meantime no end of similar societies have been introduced, lived a short time and disappeared. "Co-operation" has been the great hobby. To a certain extent it works fairly well, but it has its limits. We saw a grand failure in this line in the Farmers' Alliance, and if any of our members want a good illustration of "co-operation" let them buy a little book for a dime entitled "The Great American Pie Company" and have a good hearty laugh.

The principles, educational and social and strictly fraternal, have not changed, but the systematic rules that now govern in the organization of subordinate granges insure a permanency that was lacking in the early days. The great improvement in schools in the rural districts and the grand advantages of the agricultural colleges are making their influence felt. Rural mail routes, thousands of local telephone lines and facilities of trolley lines are placing the farmers of today far in advance of those of forty years ago. Another grand institution in which we are all directly interested is the department of agriculture. In 1863, soon after the time when the management of Isaac Newton, its location was in the basement of the patent office building. It was a standing joke for congressmen and a resort of Botany Bay for disappointed office seekers. Today, under the remarkable management of Secretary Wilson, it is, with its many branches, the largest department of our government. The secretary can well say he has built his own monument. In every state we see its benefits in the experimental stations, and we all appreciate the bulletins that are issued to us gratuitously. We may well say the department is part and parcel of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry. Both have grown up together, and both are working for the direct benefit of the farmer.

CLEVER DETECTIVE WORK.

Constable Miles Finds Stolen Property of Mr. Moffitt.

Through persistent and clever detective work Constable Miles has succeeded in restoring valuable stolen property to the owner, Mr. Moffitt, whose home is up the Clackamas river near the Brethaupt place. During the latter part of September Mr. and Mrs. Moffitt went to Eastern Oregon, returning just before the holidays, and finding that a typewriter, four guns, a 44 revolver and a suitcase filled with clothing had been stolen, and the house broken into.

The first of the property was secured when J. R. Reese was arrested on a charge of stealing Lum Stevens' clothes from the Electric Hotel. Reese broke into Stevens' room and not only took the clothes, but wore them. He told his "steady girl" that the clothes had been sent by his mother, and they were about to leave town and be married when Reese was arrested. He pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary and went to the penitentiary for two years.

Constable Miles was anxious to recover the typewriter. He found that Reese was the criminal who ransacked the Moffitt dwelling, and that the best shotgun had been given to Manager Joyner, of the Royal Restaurant for a board bill, and sold by him to Chet Elliott for $10. Elliott surrendered the weapon. Last Tuesday Miles went to Salem and made a trip out to the penitentiary to see Reese, who consented to tell the truth. He said the typewriter had been checked at the parcel room at the O. W. P. station in Portland at First and Alder streets, but the check was lost. Miles came down and found the machine just where Reese said it was. Five dollars charges were paid and Mr. Moffitt's property was returned to him. The typewriter had been at the waiting room since October 2, and would not have been recovered but for Mr. Miles.

Licenses to Marry.

Licenses to marry have been issued by County Clerk Greenman to Mattie J. Hohn and S. H. Tate, Freda Duns and N. L. Kirchem, Myrtle Gray and William C. Dental, Sidney J. Fore and Minnie A. Hughes, Anna May Porter and Alfred G. Smith, Linda Kees and Fred G. Bullis, Vina Moehake and Henry Staben, Charles Courtney and Miss A. L. Smith. The latter couple was married by Justice of the Peace Samson; Louise Brandt and Ben Baxter; Elizabeth W. Smith and James C. S. Hoy; Nellie Braham and J. J. Russell, of Portland.

Organize Athletic Club.

Last Tuesday afternoon the boys of McLaughlin Institute held a meeting for the purpose of forming an athletic club. Frank J. Loneragan was present and talked and gave the lads some wholesome advice along athletic lines. Following the organization these officers were elected: Charles Freeman, president; John Busch, vice-president; Benedict Rotter, sergeant-at-arms. Charles Freeman was chosen to represent the Institute, with John Busch as alternate, at a meeting to be held at the Clackamas County Court house for the purpose of organizing an athletic league, to be composed of the various schools of this city and Clackamas County.

Captain Eli Gives Instructive Lecture.

The lecture given by Captain Eli at the Congregational church last night was one of the most instructive and humorous lectures ever given in this city. The subject was "Capturing the Leviathan," and the subject was well handled by the lecturer. The Congregational orchestra played several selections during the evening. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Saturday Club. About $40 was the net proceeds.

Reform School Boy Captured.

Superintendent Looney, of the State Reform School, came down from Salem Friday and left on the afternoon train with Paul Vanderpool, who escaped from the institution and wandered out to Molalla. H. L. Phelps, who operates the Sawtell farm, telephoned to Sheriff Beattie that an escapee was there, and Constable Miles went out and brought in Vanderpool, who was sent to the reform school from Douglas county. The lad is about 15 years of age and had been working at Molalla for the last 10 days on the teazel farm.

Scanlon Will Probated.

The estate of the late William Scanlon has been probated and the will was administered Monday. Mr. Scanlon was a respected resident of Beaver Creek and died a few weeks ago. The estimated value of his property is $1000, all of which is bequeathed to his widow, George C. Brownell is attorney for the estate.

BARLOW.

The diphtheria scare is nearly over here. School has opened again, after being closed for two weeks—no new cases, but the quarantine has not been raised from Mr. Sager's or Mr. Davenport's houses.

The two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Saged died with diphtheria. The parents and brother of the child have the sympathy of the neighborhood in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. Scovring, who is visiting her brother and sister, Mrs. Andrus and Mr. Melvin, has been very sick, but is recovering.

Fred Jesse has come home from Portland to help his father on the ranch this year.

Mr. Sager, the former renter of Mr. Jesse's place, has bought Rev. Davenport's place and will move in the spring.

Mrs. Susie Chase, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Quint, and sister Mrs. Irvin, left Monday morning for home. Mrs. Chase was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Ona Correll. They arrived in Barlow January 1st and had the pleasure of seeing an Oregon blizzard, but were disappointed as they expected to be able to pick roses and green vegetables. But we admit the joke is on us and what Oregon winters are, but we are sure the ladies were very much disgusted and will return to their homes in Iowa with the thought "Iowa is good enough for me, for when it did not snow in Oregon it poured down rain and the wind blew a hurricane." Come again ladies when it is nice and we will show you what the roses will do in mid-winter.

Mrs. Quint is no better.

A euchre club has been organized here with about 24 members. The club meets every Saturday evening.

Misses Ida and Olga Howe, who have been home for a month's vacation, returned to their work in Portland Sunday evening. They are both working at the millinery trade. Miss Hattie Irwin accompanied her aunt and cousin as far as Portland, where she will visit her cousin Dell Irvin and friends a few days.

Leonard Parmenter has returned home.

LODGE PUTS IN OFFICERS

ARTISANS HOLD LARGE INSTALLATION AT REGULAR MEETING.

ORDER SHOWS GROWTH

Session is for Those Unable to Be Present at Last Installation—

Social Night is Held Once Each Month.

At the regular meeting of the Artisans on Thursday night at Woodmen hall, the officers who were not present at the installation a few weeks ago, were installed by R. J. Goodfellow.

About 50 were present, and much interest taken in the proceedings. Two candidates were initiated. At the next meeting after the regular routine of business, a supper will be served to the members. Past Master Artisan A. M. White was unable to be present Thursday night on account of illness, but installed several officers at a recent meeting. Mrs. E. L. Thomas was chosen Master Artisan, this making her third term. Mrs. E. H. Cooper and J. A. Tufts were elected to the offices of secretary and treasurer, making their seventh terms. The other officers are Clara Burns, superintendent; Mrs. Minnie Donovan, inspector; Pauline Schwartz, senior conductor; Mrs. Mary Harvey, junior conductor; Mrs. B. F. Linn, master of ceremonies; J. W. Willett, warder; Augusta Lutz, instructor; Oscar Woodfin, musician; R. J. Goodfellow, Mrs. S. A. Gillett, field commanders.

To interest members of the Artisan Lodge, a social night is given each month, and this has been a great benefit in securing new members into the organization. The lodge at present has about 400 members in good standing. All of these members are very enthusiastic in working for the good of the order, and it is probable that many applications will be filed before the close of this month.
