

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

RECLAMATION IN THE WEST.

The Senate Committee on Irrigation has according to advice from Washington, completed the draft of a bill providing for an issue of certificates of indebtedness or bonds to the amount of $30,000,000 for land reclamation projects in the Far West. Payment of these securities will be guaranteed by the Government out of the reclamation fund. The enterprising and energetic statesmen of the West have been eminently successful in securing government aid for irrigation projects and the reclaiming of arid wastes is popular with both political parties. Upon the principle that whatever makes for the good of one part of the country makes for the good of the entire country there should be no sectional opposition to liberal appropriations. But if the government is to continue to finance liberally irrigation projects in the Far West it should be equally generous in providing for the reclamation of vast areas of swamp land in the East and South. These lands once reclaimed would be most valuable for agricultural purposes.

In an address which Governor Hughes of New York delivered during the recent conference of the governors in Washington he discussed the relative responsibilities of the state governments and the national governments. He agreed with President Taft that there must be "team-work" between state and national governments to assure the accomplishment of desirable results in government. He declared that national activities inevitably will widen but that the future prosperity of the country must largely depend upon the efficiency of state governments. These annual consultations, he believes, should be conducive to the bringing about of uniformity of state laws and that in cases where absolute uniformity may not be expected causes of friction may be avoided by comity of action. He declared that the "significance of this conference lies in our recognition of the fact that to make our system of government answer its intended purposes we must encourage the development of state comity without the loss of state prerogative." Here, he said, are forty-six commonwealths dealing with substantially the same problems of government, and he argued that from the interchange of views should be evolved not merely a nearer approach to uniform legislation and a better system of interstate comity, but, with respect to governmental machinery there should be devised the best state government possible.

As on numerous former occasions when internal strife threatened to temporarily disrupt the Republican party some strong man has arisen who was able to command peace. Thus in what promised to be a disastrous situation, when regulars and insurgents were struggling with might and main against each other, President Taft appeared in the field of strife and presented a treaty of peace which was eagerly signed by the combatants. From now on the internal struggles will cease until the President's legislative programme have been enacted and the party has a firm platform upon which to stand before the country in the coming Congressional elections.

An instance of the advance of realty values in Portland during the past 50 years was brought up this week when the corner of Fifth and Morrison streets sold for $405,000 and an additional $110,000 was paid for the transfer of the leases. Peter W. Severson, who sold the property, owned it for 51 years. It was literally forced upon him as apparently of little value. He was then owed a week's wages by the owner of the property, who also borrowed Severson's shot gun and lost it. The man who held the lot offered the property in lieu of the week's wages and the missing weapon. Severson demurred, but finally was forced to accept the lot to cover the double debt.

Modern commercial activity is emphasized by the progressive spirit of the Medford Commercial Club. It has a membership at present of 562 and when one realizes that there is an initiation fee of $5.00 in addition to the monthly dues, one gets a better appreciation of the reason why people hear so frequently of the Rogue River city.

State-wide interest is shown in the development congress to be held at Eugene February 11 and 12. Commonwealth Day, the twenty-first anniversary of the admission of Oregon as a state, will be celebrated on February 12. Questions of general interest, such as the conservation of the state's resources, extension of irrigation, country conditions, and educational subjects will be taken up.

ELECTRIC HAS GOOD SHOW.

Handcuff Manipulator Returns to Oregon City.

After an absence of three years, Edward C. Marshall, the well known handcuff manipulator returned to Oregon City with a capable company of vaudeville people for a week's engagement at the Electric Theatre. The young magician's work has set the town agog and nightly many have been turned away unable to gain admittance to the playhouse so popular has this company been. The most talked of feature is the "Flight of Tattika," an improved trunk mystery that has been the source of much argument about town as to the way Anderson and Roberts scored heavily in a singing and talking act which abounds with clean cut material. Tom Martello is a wonder, an impersonator and Eddie Van keeps his audience howling with his funny talk and cartoons.

Starting Friday night Marshall will present his famous handcuff act in which he challenges any local officer to produce a pair of cuffs he cannot escape from. He will also escape from an insane straight jacket in full view of the audience.
