WHAT SHOULD PAY.
Judge Webster is "whooping it up" for good roads in various parts of the state. At Roseburg recently he is reported as saying:
"Every one knows that macadamized roads increase the value of every foot of land through which they pass. Let me build the roads 15 miles from Roseburg in every direction, and I will add $50 an acre to the value of every acre immediately tributary to the road."

About 250,000 plural votes were cast in the recent British elections. As the great majority of those votes were cast for the conservative party it is estimated they enabled that party to win about thirty seats which, but for those votes, would have been carried by the liberals. One enthusiastic voter having votes in different constituencies managed to vote in six constituencies in one day. To achieve that feat he traveled 400 miles by automobile. It is not unlikely plural voting will be done away with by the present parliament. A bill to that effect was passed by the commons last year but was thrown out by the lords.

A judge in Peoria, Illinois, has decided that a man is justified in beating his wife if she refuses to get his breakfast by four o'clock in the morning. That judge must have got his idea from Russia where it is righteously believed that a man must occasionally beat his wife to convince her of his love. Still it is to be hoped for the sake of humanity and domestic peace and love that the Peorian judge stands alone in his decision. The prospect of four o'clock breakfasts and an occasional thrashing by way of diversion would not be very alluring to young women contemplating matrimony.

People cannot help growing old. Youth, manhood, old age are the successive steps in life. But it rests with the individual to decide upon the kind of old age he will have. Some people get crusty, crabbed and cynical as old age creeps upon them. That is all wrong. Old age should be marked by mellowness of disposition, a giving forth of the richness of experience, and by keeping in sympathetic touch with the present. Such age is in reality a continued youth, and when at last the end comes it is like a glorious summer sunset.

A healthier moral tone is evidently asserting itself in Chicago. It caused the abandonment of the notorious first ward hall, has secured 74,000 names to a temperance petition, and has led the mayor to strike a heavy and, it is hoped, an effective blow upon the evil resorts of the city. Such moral progress is heartening to the cause of moral reform everywhere, for what is being done in Chicago can be done in any city in the land, and in most of them it is needed.

Love, or the profession of it, has some queer ways of expressing itself. A week or two ago a man in France was arrested for having kept his wife chained to the wall of her room for two years. He pleaded that he did it because he loved her and was jealous. He must be of the same stamp as those infatuated youths who shoot their sweethearts because they love them so much.

The Treasury Department at Washington has decided that a hen is a bird. Of course everybody had supposed it was but the official decision leaves no room for doubt. If the government will now kindly decide whether it is the hen that lays the egg or the hen that hatches out the egg that is the mother of the chick an acute and long-standing question will be settled for all time.

One of the religious denominations of this country has had a large amount of its funds stolen by a dishonest official who pleads in defence that he gave the money to charity. He seems to have been a kind of religious Robin Hood who robbed the rich that he might give to the poor. Some of the multi-millionaires of the country appear to act on a different principle. By stifling competition and restraining trade they artificially raise the prices on necessities of life and so plunder the masses that the rich may become even richer. The dishonest official will probably go to prison; the dishonest millionaire will probably retain his freedom and continue to draw big dividends.

Hogs broke all former records in the Portland market late last week, when the remarkable price of $11 a hundred pounds, live weight, was paid by local packers for the best Eastern Oregon porkers. This price was not only the highest ever paid here in the memory of packers but leads the whole United States for the last half century at least. For about one week Portland has had the distinction of leading the whole United States in being the highest priced hog market. When hogs went to $10.10 and $10.25 last week, it was thought the limit had been reached but the jump to $11 shows the scant supply of high class porkers in this market and the strong demand.

The reclamation of 42,000 acres of land in Oregon by the national government will be followed by nearly 150,000 acres more. The total cost will not be more than $39 an acre on an average, but will create land values to more than $100 an acre. The entire cost will not equal half that for a dreadnought. Every dollar of the reclamation fund will return to the treasury. Every dollar of the dreadnought will sink in a scrap pile.

What a lubricant in daily life is courtesy. In the social world it prevents misunderstanding; in politics it enables opponents to disagree without anger; in business it is invaluable. It is the virtue which, so far as it is used, helps the wheels of life to revolve without friction.

John D. Rockefeller has stocked part of his park at Pocantico, N. Y., with 2000 partridges. Does that mean that when they have bred sufficiently he will reach out after the game bird market and corner it?

The pleasantest kind of a task will prove distasteful if we take it up in a wrong spirit. On the other hand a hard and difficult duty will seem comparatively easy if we approach it with cheerful determination.

One spark of fire is worth more than a whole heap of ashes, one single grain of wheat is worth more than a mountain of chaff, and one good deed is infinitely better than any quantity of empty promises.

No man is ever crushed down by the burden of today. It is when he piles on top of today's burdens that of tomorrow he finds the weight too great to bear.

This amount will be used for the L. T. L. During the afternoon little Laraine Lee favored the guests with instrumental selections. Mrs. Lee was assisted in the entertainment of her guests by her sister, Mrs. Ed. Braddi.
Mehair Brought Here.
J. S. Yoder and son, L. B. Yoder, prominent farmers of the southern part of the county, were in this city on business. L. B. Yoder brought into the city 100 pounds of mohair, which netted him 25 cents per pound. This wool was of fine quality, some of which was six inches long, and was the first that had been taken from the goats. Mr. Yoder purchased these goats one year ago, and they are clearing off the land where they are enclosed so that when Mr. Yoder is ready to place this land under cultivation much labor will be saved.
Booster Meeting a Success.
The booster meeting of the Canby City at the City Hall on Saturday afternoon was a decided success. Thomas Richardson, of Portland, who is considered to be one of the best boosters of the state, gave an address. He spoke on the advantages of the town in having a Commercial Club, and in his address laid special stress on the future of Canby when the land will be irrigated, that the crops will be increased many fold, probably from $10 and $100 to $1000. But it is necessary for all to work in harmony to accomplish this and Canby is considered to be one of the garden spots of the county of Clackamas, if not the state, and it should be the duty of all to try and build up the town. It was through the organization of the Commercial Club of Hood River that the property of that town brings good prices. C. F. Romig, who recently came here from Idaho, also spoke during the afternoon.
A committee of nine was appointed at the meeting to make arrangements for the organization of a similar club in Canby. Those composing this committee are R. S. Coe, Leroy Walker, A. M. Vinyard, J. A. Cobb, Emil Gordon, C. N. Wait, John R. Newton, C. F. Romig, W. H. Bair. This committee will hold a special meeting in the near future, and elect the officers.
There was a large attendance, but owing to the fine weather it was impossible for many of the farmers to attend as they are making good use of their time by plowing. All are in favor of such an organization being formed in Canby, and announce their intention of becoming members.
Allen Sells Interest in Market.
F. E. Allen, who has been connected with W. H. Lucke in the meat market at this city, has disposed of his interest to Carl Lucke, the firm name now being Lucke Bros. Harry Vanguard,
