Well-filled is not always well fed.

Egg-Eating Hens, The habit of egg-esting is usually most prevalent at this season of the year, just after the shows are over and others of the hens are laying the first eggs of their spring clutch. In the case of show birds, they often contract the bad habit in the exhibi-tion hall, because when they are penned up in small coops and lay an egg they have nothing to occupy their time but to peck at the egg until the shell finally gives way. In the case of hens or pullets just beginning to lay the first eggs of a new clutch, they are more liable at this time than any other to drop an occasional soft-shelled egg, and nothing has a more pro-found effect than these in teaching flock of hens the egg-eating habit.-
