SOCIETY

One more new member was added to the Woodward family last Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Woodward, 312 Madison street, when Miss Grace Shatzman, of Molalla, and Dudley Woodward were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by W. W. H. Hanson, who was an old time friend of both families.

The bride wore a beautiful dress of white silk and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Maude Woodward, a sister of the groom, was dressed in pink silk and carried pink carnations. Frank Howard acted as best man.

The Woodward family was represented by five generations, and if all had been able to attend the wedding there would have been seven generations now living, all of the last being natives of Oregon. The bride also is an Oregonian, being born and raised in Molalla.

The bride and groom were serenaded by a merry crowd of the many friends of the groom, and after the usual customary proceedings were performed they left on a short honeymoon.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hanson, R. O. Woodward, of Turner, Or., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kleppin, of Portland, Misses Bessie Clark, Helen Pollock, Anna Woodward, Katherine Roach, Maude Woodward, Carrie Shatzman, of Molalla; Clarence Osborn, Frank Howard, Claude Hall, Bradley Woodward, Kenneth Woodward, Jim Kernea.

The last dancing party of the season to be given by Milton Price will be given on Saturday night, May 23, when Farmer's full orchestra of six pieces will furnish the music for the dancing. Two Prizes are to be given. Mr. Price has given a series of dancing parties in the Army hall during the winter, and they have proved to be most successful affairs.

FARMER LEGISLATORS

Are Farmers Qualified to Serve in Legislative Bodies?

A Thoughtful Article on a Very Timely Subject, in Which the Writer Maintains that the Farmer is Eminently Well Qualified to Serve His Fellows in Lawmaking.

(Special Correspondence.)

First—Is the average farmer qualified to act as a legislator? I have discovered in life that we know most about the business in which we are faithfully engaged. If this is true the farmer knows most about the farm. He is, as a rule, a man of sound common sense, honest and has a pretty clear vision of the needs of his own vocation. He is accustomed to look into matters very close, as the income of his family depends so much upon the judgment he shows in his affairs. These traits make him eminently well fitted to serve his fellows in the making of such laws as would best conserve the interests of the agricultural class.

The farmer of today is often as well educated and is as wide a reader as his professional brother. While his hours of labor are often longer than the city man's, yet tradespeople, physicians and men of most professions in the town not only have hours as long or longer, but, in addition, have the lure of the club and the play to attract as well as a wide round of social functions to respond to, all of which take time. He reads little except the papers. His farmer brother is more accustomed after the day's duties are done to remain with the family and take time to inform himself upon all the events of the day as well as to store his mind with better things of the magazines and periodical literature.

Second—If it is desirable to have farmer legislators and capable men can be found, why are they not elected?

Because, as a rule, the farmer has been so busy attending to his own affairs that he has not taken time to become a part of "the machine" and has cared little for the intrigues which make a man capable of pulling the right wires to win in caucuses and carry delegations. He may be dependent upon to do the right thing for his party when the party puts up good men, but he may not be a factor to deal with and who must be conciliated. The politician knows which way to throw plums to keep the men in line who must be reckoned with to make the party win. The farmer vote has always been regarded as sure. Politicians feel sure of that any time.

Two men, commenting upon the wit of nationalities as they rode along the highway one day, agreed to prove the assertion of one that the Irishman rode up to the fence, near which a typical son of Erin was working, and said, "Pat, if the devil should come along here and could take his pick of us three, which one would he take?" Without a minute's hesitation Pat replied, "He would take me." "How do you make that out?" they asked, to which Pat promptly replied, "Sure and he's certain of you two fellows any day." The politicians have felt sure of the farmer vote any day. They have conciliated the lawyer, merchant and man of every rank, whether of high order of manhood or not, to get his influence, but the farmer has been chosen because they did not feel they needed to recognize him to keep his vote.

Third—Should the grange endeavor to secure a larger representation of farmers in the state and national legislatures?

I am not sure that I have a decided opinion on this point. The country would be better served if the men who come closest in contact with the tilling of the land were to form a more considerable part of its legislative bodies. I am quite certain. But that the grange, state and national, should be an organization back men is a question of some doubt in my mind. We should certainly do all we can to create a sentiment in favor of farmer representation and as individuals see to it that we use all our influence and power to bring to pass such results.

Should Women Vote?

If they did, millions would vote Dr. King's New Life Pills the true remedy for women. For banishing dull, fagged feelings, backache or headache, constipation, dispelling colds, imparting appetite and toning up the system, they're unequalled. Easy, safe, sure. 25c at Jones' Drug Co.

SCHOOL NOTES

Superintendent Tooze addressed the students in Assembly on Wednesday morning, May the eighteenth. He advised the students to make it a matter of great pride to leave good grades on the school records. Then he talked of the need of definite plans on the part of students—not the aimless drifting that wastes money and time.

The High School baseball team once more scored a victory on Saturday from the Gresham High School team. This time the game was played at Gresham. The score was 7 to 5.

On Monday afternoon, May the twenty-third, the preliminary try-out for the declamation contest in the Clackamas County School League was held in the Presbyterian church. Those who competed were: Evadne Harrison, Mae Smith and Eula Schuebel. All three of the contestants showed good dramatic ability and Mae Smith was chosen to represent the High School in the League contest. The judges were: O. D. Eby and Messrs. Gallogly and Beale.

The preliminary essay contest for high school representation in the Clackamas County Oratorical League resulted in the choice of Marian Money. The grammar grade of the Eastham school will be represented in the County Declamatory Contest by Ineta Dixon. The Barclay grammar grades will be represented by Roberta Schuebel in declamation and by Alice Miller in essay. In this latter contest there were six aspirants. Superintendent F. J. Tooze has been invited to deliver the Commencement address at Parkplace, but is obliged to decline on account of the date conflicting with O. C. H. S. Commencement.

Death of Ethel L. Noe.

Ethel L. Noe, daughter of J. N. Noe, died in Woodburn May 12, 1910. She was born near Needy, Clackamas County, June 23, 1894. The interment will be in Zion cemetery at Canby, where her mother was laid to rest eighteen months ago.

Little Ethel had many friends, for she was one of the sweetest of children. To know her was to love her. To her relatives her death is a sad loss.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by the agreeable, aromatic Ely's Cream Balm. It is received through the nostrils and cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. Druggists sell the 50c. size. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment till relieved.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for cattarrh trouble, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation.
