

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the chain of life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

My Big Bird

It Flies Above Savages and Hills Them With Terror.

By F. A. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Having worked a couple of years on an improvement for a flying machine, keeping my models securely locked to my barn that my devices might not be stolen by other aeroplane inventors, and having perfected them, I desired to try them. Not having confidence either in my fellow inventors or the practicability of patents I determined to take my airship to some unpopulated country, attach my new machinery and make the necessary tests where, if they were successful, I alone would know about it. From San Francisco I shipped on board a vessel bound for a certain island in the Pacific ocean, and after a few weeks' voyage landed where I might experiment to my heart's content without fear of losing the benefit of my inventions.

I brought with me such modern contrivances as might be useful to me and some that would enable me to conciliate the natives among other things. I had a phonograph machine, toy gyroscopes, an electric hand lamp, a fieldglass and some fireworks.

Having at my request been put ashore at a point where there was no human being to be seen I spent the first day putting together the parts of my aeroplane and equipping it. My fuel oils, etc. I placed under a projecting rock, storing also my belongings, including meat and drink. That night I slept under the ledge where my machine on to a declivity by which I expected to get my start I took my seat, let go, rolled down the incline and began to rise.

Having attained a height of 1,000 feet I devoted myself for a few hours to my improvements to the exclusion of all other surroundings and had the satisfaction to find that without exception they worked beautifully. That which I set most store by, a "brake," acted to a charm. Perhaps such an implement worked in so thin a medium as the air may not be considered practicable in any form. This is not so. I produced an attachment that stopped my machine within four lengths. Another matter I had attached to was one for keeping the machine on keel. I had observed the maintenance of a fixed plane of revolution by the gyroscope and applied the principle to my wings.

One thing I did that no other aeroplane constructor has ever done. I made it look like a bird. I used a single plane on each side shaped like a gull's wings, thus giving my machine the semblance of a bird. Fancy, then, suggested a post-board and the painting of the whole in varied colors. Having satisfied myself that my inventions were each and every one a success, I permitted myself to look beneath me. My eye at once struck large numbers of the natives of the island running about in wild commotion. By those looking up at me I could discern the cause. Evidently the bird monster was at the bottom of their excitement. Some of them were scampering away as fast as their legs would carry them, others were hiding in caves and under rocks, while some were vigorously digging holes to bury themselves in.

Thinking to take others unawares, I rose higher and sped over a number of twenty miles. Seeing a number of natives about a fire, I watched them. I could see that some were bound, while others were helping fuel on the fire. Feeling sure that cannibals were about to make a repast upon human beings, I drew near enough for them to discover my presence above them. They seemed to be paralyzed with astonishment. Sinking to a point about fifty feet above them, I shouted to them to unbind their prisoners. Not understanding my language, they were all the more frightened. I seized my phonograph and, pointing the horn at them, turned on the whoops of American Indians. Hearing such sounds from the throat of an enormous bird seemed to put vigor into their legs, and they ran in every direction.

Descending, I unbound the prisoners, who as soon as their limbs were loosed dropped on their knees before me and buried their faces in the dirt. I raised several of them, desiring to communicate with them, and in order to invite their confidence, gave them some trinkets. Then I took my phonograph from my aeroplane and set it going with a darky song. One of the natives pointed to himself, then to the phonograph, as much as to say, "There is a man in there." Going to the box, he looked down the horn to see him, then put his finger in, drawing it quickly out to prevent its being clutched. Not seeing or feeling anything, he looked at me and put his hand within a few inches of the ground to denote the height of the pygmy supposed to be in the box.

Having amused the simple creatures for awhile with the phonograph, I took up a toy gyroscope and set the wheel going. This to them was far more wonderful than making a man sing in a box. They could conceive of a mile of a man being in the box, but they could not conceive of a wheel revolving with but one axis, supported at any angle I chose to put it. Every one of them dropped on their knees before me, and by the motion of their lips I knew they were worshipping me. I tried to stop them, but, finding it impossible to do so, I gave up the job and, dragging my aeroplane to a slope favorable to getting a start, rose over their heads and flew away. Some of them gazed after me in wonder, while others kept their faces on the ground.

I crept about the wonder of various groups of natives. Finally I discerned two lines of men engaged in combat. They were so intent on killing one another that they did not see me till I was nearly over them. Then one after another looked up at me, and, forgetting the human enemy in the monster bird, they took to their heels, gradually disappearing as they obtained cover.

It was now beginning to get dark. I sat over different parties, but too high to attract their attention. Finally, seeing a dozen men tied to stakes, I descended to get a nearer view. They were evidently prisoners taken in battle, who were to be roasted alive and eaten afterward, for under each was a pile of wood, some of which was already lighted, a small flame curling up near their ankles. It was too dark for them to discover me, and the ground was not favorable to alighting, so, taking up a roman candle, I lit it and bombarded them with the balls. Looking up and seeing the dim substance of a huge bird hovering over them vomiting fire balls, they fell on their faces.

I called to them till they looked up and made signs to them to unbind their prisoners, which they did, and as soon as the last man was loose I drove the wood to disintegrate away at the point of another roman candle. Then I rose, firing rockets as I ascended with a view to striking terror into them, hoping that they would consider themselves forbidden by the god bird from further retreating to their captives.

I then returned to where I had left my supplies and after purchasing of a supper rolled myself in my blankets under the shivering rock and went to sleep.

The next morning after taking in fuel and oil I sailed away again. By this time some of the natives had got sufficiently accustomed to me to consider me amenable to attack and made attempts to bring me down. Suddenly while making some adjustments which took my attention a great stone passed within a few feet of my aeroplane. Looking down, I saw a tribe who were working a machine that looked like a Roman catapult. They were directly beneath me and about to throw an oblong stone. If it hit me it would break my aeroplane. Not daring to risk taking time to rise out of range, I picked up a stick of dynamite and dropped it on them. I saw dust, smoke and fragments, and after the two first had cleared away looked for the natives and their catapult. Where they had stood was a capacious hole in the ground.

Observing a native village beneath me, I determined to descend among them and remain with them till they had got used to me in order that I might commune with them. When yet some distance away I could see them standing together watching my approach. The first evidence of their solicitude was when I came near them and began to descend. Then they all ran away. But when I had sighted I waited patiently till they should come back. Presently I saw heads peeping at me through the long grass. The children came first, the women next and last the men. I worked with them some time in order to establish communication, showing them my wonders. Riggling a telephone, I told a man to go some distance away and I would make his wife talk to him. Having arranged matters for him, I placed a receiver at his ear and, going back to the woman, motioned her to talk through the transmitter. At the first words spoken the man dropped the receiver and looked about him as though he expected to see his wife near him.

Then I established a wireless and placed a man between the two extremes. He could hear the clicking at both, one in keeping with the other. He looked about for some connection, but, finding none, ran away from me and the machine.

To cap the climax I took a little child from its mother's arms and set it beside me in the machine. The mother was frantic, though by signs I endeavored to make her understand that I would bring her child back safely. I think she believed I was a supernatural being and was about to fly up to heaven with the little one. No one dared oppose me, and, rising to the air, I flew away. When ten minutes later I returned and placed the babe in its mother's arms she fainted for joy. Then I was sure she had expected not to see it again.

Confident as to the safety and docility of my mammoth bird having been established, I was besieged with requests for a ride in the clouds. But it would have been impossible to choose between the applicants, so I was obliged to refuse them all.

Returning to my landing point on the coast, I picked up what I desired to take away with me, then rising, looked out for a ship. Seeing one some forty miles distant, I flew for it. It happened to be an American steamer, and the captain called to me, inviting me to alight. I made a safe descent on to the roughest part of the deck and at once covered my recently tried devices.

I am now waiting the result of applications I have made for patents, and so soon as it seems safe to do so will announce inventions to the world which will make aviation far safer than it has been heretofore.

Miss Anna Krueger and Miss Fay Vie Thers left on Saturday evening for Lebanon, where they will spend a week with friends.

Stanley Wang and Otto Krueger spent Sunday in Portland.

Miss Florence Spencer, who was one of the contestants in the recent Oregon City Enterprise contest, was one of the fortunate ones, and was awarded a $50 credit check on one of the stores at Oregon City.

J. F. Mitts, of this city, is in Oregon City, assisting in the work in the recorder's office, while Deputy Recorder Lloyd Williams is out on his campaign.

Mrs. James Evans, who has been spending a week at Seaside, Oregon, where she was called by the illness of her cousin, has returned to Canby. Mrs. Evans' cousin is much improved.

The grass along the railroad track in this city was this week set afire by the employees of the company, and the flames were carefully watched until all extinguished. This prevents any conflagration in the summer time when the grass is dry, and any fire that would start there would probably cause a great deal of loss to property.

Candidates to Enter for Queen.

The voting for the queen of the Clackamas County Fair commenced this week, and the polling places are at Cobb & Dillingham store in this city, or at G. A. Harding's, L. E.
