

CONCENTRATE UPON DIMICK

JUDGE LOWELL URGES PEOPLE TO UNITE ON A SAFE CANDIDATE.

SPLIT MEANS BOWERMAN

Sure! Way to Elect Clackamas County Man is to Join Hands in Preventing Division of the Vote.

It is not alone a question of assembly and anti-assembly, it is a question of progression against retrogression. It is a question of whether the new order of things shall continue or the state shall go back to the old. I believe that the people of Oregon want to remain in the new era.

This is the way Judge Stephen A. Lowell, in a Portland paper, views the political situation in the state at the present time.

"In my belief the anti-assembly forces should concentrate on Grant B. Dimick for governor and put him in nomination," continued Judge Lowell. "In my belief it is necessary for the retention of the new order of things political in Oregon to beat Jay Bowerman for governor. It is not a question of men. It is a question of principle. Jay Bowerman is a personal friend of mine. I admire the man, but if he were to be put in the governor's chair he would have a machine built before the end of his term that would put the old machine clear in the shade."

"Bowerman was raised in Marion county. He plays the game as he was taught to play it in Marion county in the old days. He is a machine man and to elect him would be to fasten the assembly on the state for a generation to come. It is necessary to beat him, therefore, in my opinion, and the only way to do it is to concentrate on Dimick."

"The spirit of insurgency is in the air," continued Judge Lowell. "What has been shown us in California, in Nebraska, Kansas and the other states that have pointed the way during the past two weeks, is in the air in Oregon. This is an insurgent state. The people here want the new order of things. They want to escape from the old. And it is well for them to do so."

"Therefore, I say that the issue here goes beyond the question of assembly or anti-assembly. It is a question of the insurgent against the regular, the new against the old. Those opposed to it are fighting that effort."

"Out over the state the sentiment is strongly against the assembly, and I have been in close touch with different sections. The people of the state generally do not want to retrograde. They want to advance."

"But the Bowerman strength is a certain and definite strength. It is lined up and will stay that way until the votes have been cast. To defeat this strength it will be necessary to concentrate. A split vote means the nomination of Bowerman, and for that reason, believing Mr. Dimick to be the strongest of the candidates in the field against Bowerman, I urge that a concentrated effort be made to nominate him."

"Up in my country they look on Dimick as a safe man who would make a safe governor. He is stronger there than the other candidates. I have been urged to become a candidate for the nomination for governor. But I do not intend to get into the race. I believe it would further split the vote and make the nomination of Bowerman just that more certain. Ben Selling has been urged to run, but his business affairs will not allow it, as I understand. Judge Webster has also been urged, but I understand that he has refused to become a candidate. But I believe that the surest way at this late date, is to join hands in helping one candidate, and that is what I intend to do. I trust, with success."

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by all dealers.

TEACHERS ARE STUDYING.

Miss Grace Grafton Goes From Oregon City to The Dalles.

Miss Grace Grafton, who taught the third and fourth grades in the West Oregon City schools last year, and who was re-elected, has resigned to accept the position of manual training teacher in the public schools of The Dalles. Miss Grafton is a graduate of one of the State Normal schools of Minnesota and has done special work at the Oregon Agricultural College. Some of the work in sewing and raffia produced by her pupils last year was on public exhibition and elicited much favorable comment.

Miss Pearl Bailey, of Sherwood, is the newly elected teacher of the third and fourth grades in West Oregon City. Miss Lill Schmidt, the primary teacher, will also be instructor in manual training for the girls.

Among prominent teachers of Clackamas County who attended the summer session of the Oregon Agricultural College, were Miss Mary Matley, of the Oregon City High School; Miss Ida Mae Smith, of the Oregon City High School; Miss Lill Schmidt, and the Misses Applegate, Miss Belle Matley, of this city, and a teacher at Willamette, have been in Chicago doing special work in art, oil and watercolor this vacation. Miss Matley is highly gifted with the brush. She is now visiting in the Central States, en route to the Pacific coast.

OVERDOSE OF MORPHINE.

Unknown Man Picked Up in Unconscious Condition.

An unconscious man was found lying near the railroad track near the bunkhouses of the Japanese employed by the Southern Pacific Company, at the rear of the Weinhart building Friday afternoon in an unconscious condition. Dr. Norris, county physician, was summoned and the man given medical treatment, but he was too far gone, and passed away at a late hour Friday night. It is thought that the man took an overdose of morphine. There was no clew which would lead to the man's identity, and the body was taken to the Holman & Myers undertaking parlors.

The man is described as five feet, eight inches tall, weight about 145 pounds; hair mixed with gray; sandy moustache, with about two weeks' growth of beard. In the pockets were found 60 cents. The man is a stranger in the city, and no one remembers of having seen him before.

Direct Primary Candidate for Clerk.

In placing before the people of this county, for their consideration, my candidacy for the Republican nomination for the office of county clerk for this county, and desiring to serve the people in this office, which is regarded by the voters and taxpayers as one of the most important of the county, I beg leave to make to you the following statement:

I have had three years' experience as deputy in the office of the county clerk, during which time I have put forth my best efforts to learn fully all the duties and the work pertaining thereto. I am deeply sensible of the importance which this office imposes, and am fully confident of my ability to conduct and discharge the duties most satisfactorily, and so stating, I desire that you personally know that I shall be most grateful for your assistance and support. I trust that you will duly consider the fact of my practical experience and ability and give me your support and vote at the primaries, September 24, next. I will, if nominated and elected, give the people of Clackamas County a clear, economical and businesslike administration and prompt, just and courteous treatment.

QUEEN VOTE ON FOR FAIR

RULER OF CLACKAMAS COUNTY FAIR TO BE SELECTED BY PEOPLE.

YOUNG WOMEN IN RACE

Beautiful Robes to Be Presented to Lucky Girl Who Will Hold Sway at Canby For Three Days.

The voting contest for the queen to preside over the county fair at Canby, September 29, 30 and October 1, started Monday morning, the voting places being at L. E. Jones' Co., Harding's drug store and Huntley Bros. Company.

This is the first time in the history of the fair that a queen is to preside and it is proposed to make it an annual affair. The queen is to be treated in a royal manner during her three days' stay at the fair grounds, and she will be dressed in a beautiful robe that will be presented to her. A throne is to be constructed for her. Any young lady in the county is permitted to enter the race, and many names have already been suggested, among them being the following: Miss Grace Marshall, Miss E. A. Aldridge, Miss Margaret Brown, Miss Beryl Long, Miss Kathryn Stinson, Miss Minnie Schatz, Miss Eleanor Williams, of Oregon City; Miss Iva Harrington and Miss Ada Hulbert, of Gladstone; Miss Elaine King, of Pleasant; Miss Myrtle Holmes, of Parkdale; Miss Josie Curran, of Elyville; Miss Olivia Johnson, Miss Strieb, of Milwaukie; Miss Clara Morrey, Miss Hazel Hungate, Miss Mamie Cutting, Miss Zella Adams, of Molalla; Miss Nellie Yoder, of Hubbard; Miss Ora Lee, Miss Pearl Handgren, Miss Cora Sandness, of Canby; Miss Hattie Irwin, of Barlow. Candidates will also be represented from New Era, Oswego, and Oak Grove. The public coronation will take place on the fair grounds Thursday, September 29, and a special program given. The votes are to be sold at one cent each, and each season ticket sold is entitled to 50 votes, and with each share 250 votes. It is probable that the stores of this city will close on Oregon City day, as a special train will be chartered to take those wishing to attend. Many attractions are offered this year.

SURVEY WILLAMETTE FALLS

Party of Government Engineers Come to Commence Operations.

Chief Engineer Thompson, of the United States Engineering Department, accompanied by a party of 15 men, arrived here Saturday to commence a survey of the Willamette River above and below the Falls for the purpose of determining the best site for locks, for which an appropriation of $600,000 has been made by the United States government and the State legislature. The party will be here for several weeks and they brought along a barge, with a house for sleeping and eating accommodations. Surveys will be made three miles above and three miles below Willamette Falls.

KANNE STUNG TWICE.

Must Pay Court Costs and Loses Suit Against School Board.

August Kanne, who filed a suit for divorce against Wilhelmine Kanne last week, was ordered to pay into court $500 for attorney's fees and court costs and $50 per month temporary alimony.

Kanne's attorney in his suit against the directors of the Harmony school district agreed to dismiss the complaint. Kanne attempted to prevent the directors from collecting a tax that had been levied, but Attorney G. L. Hedges demurred on the ground that the tax had already been levied and that it would be collected by the sheriff and not by the directors. It is unlikely that Kanne will institute suit against the sheriff to enjoin the collection of the tax.

Hongkong the Luxurious.

Hongkong, with its luxurious hotels, its princely clubs, its rich and industrial banks, housed in splendidly constructed and beautifully designed buildings, its shipyards and graving docks able to care for the largest vessels; its miles of warehouses bursting with wealth; its yellow sailed boats laden with silks, tea, sugar and precious porcelains; its commerce almost as great as that of New York; its botanical gardens hung amid delightful villas overlooking a harbor that is a city in itself and that boasts 10,000 inhabitants; Hongkong, with its wonderful temples of ornate work, its plots of a hundred acres, its French cathedral, its forts, garrison and naval life, its happy valley race course—all at the feet of white man's civilization. Supreme from the peak on which it rests, its well bred nobility it looks across at the world Asia, whence it springs.—W. J. Aylward in Harper's Magazine.

How 'Thon' Would Work.

'Thon' is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a suffix which the English language has thus far had the fortune to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows: If a parent desires to speak thus of his or her, as the case may be, child then the or she should take 'thon' then, her or it across 'thon's knee. Then 'thon should remove 'thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the responsibility of 'thon's conduct, 'thon should apply the slipper to that portion of 'thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been designated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above how 'thon' effects great civilization.—Littell's Living Age.

HONOR McLOUGHLIN'S NAME.

New Townsite on West Side of Willamette is Christened.

In memory of the father of the new townsite which has sprung up on the west side of the Willamette river here is to be called McLoughlin. The promoters have been working for some time on the plan and have now completed the surveying and laying out of the blocks and streets, and the same will extend along the west bank of the river for nearly a mile toward Portland, and will also run back up on the hill for some distance. The location is unusually beautiful and commands a magnificent view of the surrounding country, with mountains always in view. It is expected the lots and acreage will be put onto the market at an early date. Numerous inquiries have been made and reservations asked, so that it appears that many residences will be built in the near future. The new electric line on the west side to Portland will skirt the tract, and everything points toward a very lively settlement.

The Sting of a Bee.

An eastern fable tells of a potentate who demanded that there should be brought to him the stings of a thousand bees killed in some one of their colonies had dared insult his majesty by stinging the hand of royalty. When they were brought to a busy golden throne the king was so amazed to find that a thousand of the hypodermic points made such a little mass that he issued a manifesto to the effect that thereafter no person without the bounds of the kingdom should complain at the sting of a bee. The lesson of the fable is that petty annoyances hurt because they are exaggerated in the mind that when they are seen in their actual proportions they are so slight as to merit only contempt. How much comfort would come to the majority of persons if they could but see the tiny sting of the bee stings that lead them to acts of petulance, words of anger, expressions of reproach. The few sting annoyances have caused lifelong breaches of friendship. They have broken up families and caused anger and resentment to take the place of love and fealty.—Baltimore American.

The Mississippi of Streets.

A street is like a river, with its mud current carrying all manner of drift between its banks of residences or shops on either side. And if this simile be appropriate then New York's Broadway is the Mississippi of streets. Probably no other avenue in the world presents so many contrasts in the fustian and jettison it carries from Harlem to the Battery. Every type of manly—uprooted saplings from farms and orchards, proud pulled craft in silks and satins—may be described in the surging mass. Banker and boot black, the swaggering swell and the draggled dervish, walk shoulder to shoulder—rush, rather, for Broadway is a mainstem, the emboliment of New York's bustle and hurry, the place where nothing can stand still. Fiechard and Harding Davis once said that everybody seems to be trying to reach the bank to have a check cashed before 3 o'clock.—George Seibel in Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Queer Collateral.

"Here is a fact as strange as it is true," said an Egyptologist. "Mummies in ancient Egypt were used chiefly as collateral."

"When an Egyptian wanted to borrow he gave his father's or grand father's mummy as security. Some times, if he required a large sum, he gave his father and both grandfathers, and he would even throw in the mummy of his mother-in-law if she fortunately happened to be in a mummified state."

"Joking aside," the Egyptologist continued, "what I tell you is the truth. An Egyptian was not permitted to borrow without pledging the mummy of some near relative. It was deemed in Egypt both impious and infamous not to redeem so sacred a pledge as that, and he who died with a family mummy still in pawn was himself buried in unconsecrated ground.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Postage Stamp.

Consider the postage stamp. It says nothing regarding the difficulty of the task assigned to it, but by dint of close application it usually gets there; also it delivers the goods.

Again, if one isn't enough to carry the thing through, two or more by working harmoniously together see the thing to a finish.

No matter if the (small) matter be weighty, it puts a good face to Washington on it and goes directly to the point. It gets ticked and stamped with wealth, and men admire its fair features and oftentimes give it more to carry than the postal union allows. But, in spite of all this, it sticks unflinchingly to the matter in hand by virtue of the fact that it knows that it has good backing.

Its stick-to-it-ness is worthy of emulation by you—Judge's Library.

Water Colors.

Water color painting was gradually raised from the hard, dry style of the eighteenth century to its present brilliancy by the efforts of Nicholson, Copley, Sandby and others. The Water Color society's exhibitions began in 1865 and may be said to mark the real beginning of modern water color painting. The great master, if not creator, of the art was the celebrated Turner, of whom we read so much in the works of John Ruskin.—Exchange.

How Did They Were.

"I see you enjoy a number of old men."

"I do."

"How old are they?"

"Too old to be interested in canoeing or mandolins or race horses or girls or tennis. That makes them fine for work."—Washington Herald.

Rather.

The submerged item appeared in a French newspaper: "There was found in the river this morning the body of a soldier cut to pieces and sewed up in a sack. The circumstances seem to preclude any suspicion of suicide."

HON. GEORGE C. BROWNELL, who created a sensation in local political circles by declining to enter the race for State Senator.

Aaron Burr's Grave.

Aaron Burr died at Fort Richmond, Staten Island, Sept. 14, 1836. His remains were conveyed to Princeton, N. J., where, according to his request, he was interred at the feet of his father and grandfather. Both his father and grandfather were presidents of Princeton college.

Concerning the tombstone which marks his burial place, we quote from the history of his life in 1790: "Some efforts were made and some money subscribed soon after his death to procure a suitable monument, but the project failed. For nearly two years the spot where he lay was unmarked when one morning it was discovered that a small very substantial and not unimpressive monument of granite and marble had been placed during the night over his remains. No one in the town saw the monument erected or knew anything whatever respecting it. There was no inscription in the vicinity capable of explaining the work. The stone bears the inscription: Aaron Burr, born January 6, 1756, died September 14, 1836."—Philadelphia Press.

The Presidential Salute.

One explanation of the reason for adopting twenty-one guns as the presidential salute is that there might be maintained a uniformity in national salutes. Great Britain having in the distant past adopted twenty-one as the number for the royal salute. Of the many surmises as to why the number twenty-one was settled upon we mention two—first, that twenty-one was the number of years lived by English law as the age of majority, second, that seven was the original salute and three times seven would signify one seven for each of the divisions, England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland. It is asserted that the United States adopted this salute to signify to the mother country that her child had reached his majority and was prepared in law to inherit the land and to this end fired the "gun of 1776," the figures of which year, 1+7+7+6, equal 21.—Philadelphia Press.

Underground Hotels.

An extraordinary note is that in the sewers of Paris, immediately below the Church of St. Madeleine it was built and is conducted solely for the benefit of the sewer workers. Nearly a hundred men are provided every day, and for the sum of $2.91 a man can be comfortably housed and fed for a week in this gigantic drain pipe.

Very similar is the hotel which caters for visitors to the coal mine of St. Pierre at Mons. It is to be found at the bottom of the mine, 288 feet below the earth, and is carved out of solid coal. The electric light on the glittering black walls, which have been left unimpured, is extremely effective. Large reception and bed rooms splendidly fitted up are provided, and the hotel even boasts the luxury of a swimming bath.

Mark Twain as "Attraction."

A girl who was a stranger to Mark Twain once found her way into his Bermuda home with the hope of getting a sight of the author. She came suddenly in contact with him and frankly explained her errand.

"Have you seen the crystal rare yet," he asked, "or the aquarium?"

"No, I came to see you first," she answered.

"Well, you shouldn't have seen me first," he answered. "I run in opposition to the crystal and the aquarium. But they're not sharks to me. I'm lost better I give them their money's worth. But you should see them. Then you'll appreciate me."

This was said in his most earnest drawl and with only a sparkle of humor in his keen blue eyes.—Chicago Tribune.

Striking It Rich.

"Did you ever strike it rich prospecting?"

"Only once," replied the westerner. "I was going along a trail in the mountains late one afternoon when I saw the gleam of metal. Hastening to it, I found—"

"Silver or gold?"

"Tin. It was a matchbox, full too. And I had been out of matches since my early morning smoke."—Philadelphia Ledger.

RUN OVER BY INTERURBAN

JOHN GLISAN, OF OAK GROVE, INSTANTLY KILLED BY ELECTRIC CAR.

CORONER TAKES CHARGE

Unfortunate Man Came From Hood River Four Months Ago—Leaves Family of Wife and Four Children.

John Glisan, of Oak Grove, was run over and killed shortly before nine o'clock Tuesday night by a south bound electric car of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co. between Green Point and Clackamas bridge. Glisan was in Oregon City and had been drinking. He evidently tried to walk across Clackamas bridge and then started back to Oregon City, for when the car approached him he was walking in a southerly direction.

Motorman A. A. Reek saw Glisan alight of his car and whistled for a clear track and Glisan drove off to one side, but suddenly walked back into the center of the track and the car struck him, killing him instantly, and passing over his body. Reek stopped the car with the emergency brake and with conductor C. S. Cowan made an examination of the unfortunate man, and then the car proceeded on to Oregon City and Coroner Holman was notified. That official took the car back to the scene of the accident and the body was brought to the morgue, where an examination of his papers disclosed his identity.

Glisan came from Hood River to Oak Grove about four months ago and purchased a valuable place. He has a wife, one son and two daughters. He was about 50 years of age. Coroner Holman held an inquest.

SCHEME TO SAVE INTEREST.

Council Proposes Charter Amendment Relating to Tax Levy.

The city council has passed a resolution, authorizing the submission of a proposed charter amendment at the coming election. The amendment relates to the municipal tax levy, and while it is not calculated to raise money nor to increase the levy, provision is made for elasticity in the distribution of the funds raised by city taxes. The present charter provides that seven mills may be levied for general purposes and three mills for the permanent street improvement fund, but the city must place the money derived from taxes in each fund pro rata with the levy for each purpose. This condition is just what the council seeks to remedy, as there are times when there is a surplus in the permanent street improvement fund, and under the plan proposed this money could be used to pay off general fund warrants and reduce the interest. With the proposed amendment the city will not be able to increase the levy to more than 10 mills, but it will permit a reasonable and economic distribution of the funds raised by taxes.

PRIZES FOR GOOD APPLES.

Commercial Club Offers Cash Premiums for Best Fruit.

The Oregon City Commercial Club has offered $20 as first and $10 as second prize to be given for the best exhibit of apples from Clackamas County at the apple show to be held in Portland this fall by the State Horticultural Society.

Now is the time for the growers to be getting ready for the different exhibits and they should keep in mind the show in Portland, so that this county will be represented with a good exhibit.
