The county medical examiner fears that Richeson will not live to face trial on the Linnell murder charge.

It was recently reported that the wealthy Edmunds family of Hyannis, a fashionable suburb of Boston, had turned against the minister. Richeson was engaged to wed Miss Viola Ed munds at the time of his sensational arrest two months ago, and the girl's family were staunch in their support of him at that time. The changed at titude of the Edmunds, coupled with fear of the result of the tightening coil of evidence about him, is believed to have prompted Richeson's attempt to end his life. Richeson stabbed himself in the groin while his guards were being changed at 2:30 o'clock this morning Physicians declare the wound could not have been inflicted by a man of normal mind.
