POULTRY FANCIERS

Secretary Lazelle, of the promotion partm ni of the Commercial Club ander the auspices of which the poul try show was given, said Monday that more than 1,200 persons attended the exhibition. The money taken in for admissions paid all expenses though the promoters had expected to have to put up at least $100. The success of the show has re sulted in the organization of the Oregon City Poultry Association, which will give an exhibition annually. The association already has a membership of forty, the membership fee beeing $1, and it is expected that the number will be quadrupled before the next show is given. The following offic ers have been elected: S. S. Moore, resident; George J. Hall, vice-president; M. J. Lazelle, secretary and treasurer. The officers and Elmer Dixon and Dr. M. C. Strickland compose the executive board. All persons interested in the raising of fowls
