Men, Confident They Would Be Rescued, Says They Were Not Alarmed While In Deep Prison.

AMADOR CITY, Cal., Feb. 8 .- The sixty-two miners who were entombed in the Bunker Hill mine were rescued today. The men were taken out through the main shaft, all alive and well. Not a single man was hurt or even hungry.

There were emotional scenes begrimed miners, who had been heldl prisoners for nearly twenty-four hours were brought to the top of the shaft in an improvised skip. As they step-ped from the mouth of the mine wives and mothers clasped them and cried for joy.

The miners, most of them Austrians and Italians, took the situation coolly.

Assured that relief was near, they said they slept well on the 200-foot level last night. They were not even worried.

The telephone lines were not severed and the men were told how the rescue work was progressing.

This morning loaves of bread and ham and bacon were thrown into the large 16-inch' blower used for pumping air into the mine. The air cur-rent was so strong that it caught up the loaves like mere straws and whisked them to the miners, whose appetites had begun to grow keen.

The mouth of the shaft is in bad condition, but Superintendent Hoskins announced repairs would be started at once, and that the mine will resume operations within ten days.

The Bunker Hill cave-in occurred shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A skip loaded with rock was being hoisted to the top of the mine. On top of the load rode Shift Boss Hoskins. He stepped from the cage when the collar of the shaft was reached and the skip started on up to the dumping place.

When near the top of the gallows frame, the cable parted and the skip, heavily loaded with rock, shot down the incline track and jumped from the regular course. The skip struck the edge of the collar of the shaft, smashing timbers and causing the collar to collapse. The debris filled up the shaft to a depth of from 40 to 60 feet. shutting off the escape of the men in the mine.

In a few minutes the wildest excitement prevailed and soon hundreds of people, including the wives and families of the entombed workmen, had collected near the mouth of the

Davis was present and quickly stretched a rope around the shaft so that those engaged in the shaft so that those he bindered rescue work might not be hindered. It is still probable that some men have been killed at the bottom of the shaft by falling debris.
