GUARDING ITS PREROGATIVES

In speaking of the changes made in the British and French general arbitration treaties a Washington dispatch says: "The action of the Senate is a victory for Roosevelt ideas over those of Taft."

President Roosevelt had an experience similar to President Taft's in this respect. He was defeated by the Senate in an attempt to push general arbitration treaties with England and other powers to ratification which, as the Senate thought, might infringe on its right to have a voice in determining the fate of such pacts.

It must be remembered that the Senate is the most powerful second chamber in the world. It has a larger sway in the government than any other assembly of its class. And none of its privileges will be surrendered. It has even usurped the power to frame revenue measures out of the new, although the constitution expressly reserves this right for the House of Representatives.

When Col. Bryan intimated to the Democratic politicians that he was not much of a coffee drinker he did not mean to convey the impression that he would never pass his cup again.

OUR "RIVAL" TO BE

It has remained for a split-county booster to tell us through the columns of the Oregonian that we have a rival, or that we fear rivalry. The time is the future, the place is Estacada and the girl is the creation of a new county.

County division was pretty well settled two years ago, by the people of Oregon by an overwhelming vote, yet there are communities that have aspirations, and seek to convince their people that a separate county government can be maintained without an increase in taxation, already too high.

"The movement for the division of Clackamas County and the formation of a new county out of the eastern part, with Estacada as the county seat, has been renewed. A meeting was held at Estacada Thursday night when a number of addresses were made favorable to the new county movement. Other meetings will be held at central points and if sentiment is favorable in Eastern Clackamas County, petitions will be prepared for circulation and a vote asked for at the general election.

GOLD AND FOOD PRICES

Director of the Mint Roberts says the increased production of gold has some bearing on the cost of living. But that the world-wide advance in food products is not likely to be materially reduced soon.

A common error in Mr. Roberts' opinion, is to compare the quotations of the 1896 depression with that of other periods. He considers the prices now obtained by farmers more of a legitimate average. Farmers have been raised from poverty to prosperity, and their land values have increased to correspond.

In a recent issue of the Oregonian was an editorial on Colonists of a type which Oregon cannot have too many, people who do not practically prefer to stay in town. The ones referred to seem to have had definite plans, before leaving their Eastern homes and on arrival showed great anxiety to settle down and commence work.

"We shall be glad to chronicle the arrival of such settlers in any section of the state. They are the kind of people that Oregon needs and the kind that need Oregon, since they will find a wide and varied field for their endeavor.

"Let a man come to Oregon with his family having a definite location and purpose in view and with means enough to settle himself, even in a small way, in his chosen vocation, and he will be from the first a satisfied and useful citizen."

We will add to the above that this is the class of people for whom our city and county are advertising; to whom we extend our offer of "come and do likewise," whether he be farmer, mechanic or laborer. We are not asking for the aimless wanderer who expects something for nothing. We want workers for a lazy man will never be satisfied here.

Seven different candidates for president are maintaining headquarters at Washington. Running for office is getting to be one of our national pastimes.

It is remarked that though men may come and men may go the government runs right along. Rather say that men will come and men must go. Nature has never provided for an indispensable individual.

A Colorado baby has been born with four teeth. In the era of cartridge biting this would have been called a sign of war. Perhaps it means now that the cost of living is to be reduced or defied.

Any sort of popgun tariff bill can be put through the Democratic House caucus but fortunately for business the Senate and president have the power to overrule the raw experiments in playing politics.

THE LETTER

Amanda's been home visitin' We wished that she might stay. The house is awful lonesome. Since our daughter went away, I notice Josh doesn't whistle much. No more lively tune; An' he seemed sort of tucked out When he came in at noon.

Sez he, "I guess I'll saunter to The mail box just to see If Amanda's sent a letter. Er a card to you and me. 'Twill rest me more Samantha dear Than sittin' in a chair 'I'd be uneasy thinkin' Of that letter waitin' there."

A lump in my throat choked me As I saw his hopeful smile— What if he's disappointed When he's walked that weary mile? Oh I wish I might whisper To the dear hearts that must roam, "Don't forget to write real often to The weary ones at home!"

Why, there's Josh a gettin' back So soon—it's not yet one I know he's got the letter for He's comin' on the run. He's wavin' it—yes, it's from her Oh, ain't it big and thick! "Samantha put your glasses on," Cries Josh, "An' read it quick!" SAMANTHA OF CLACKAMAS COUNTY

Baseball—the king of American sports is knocking at our front door and will receive a hearty welcome in Oregon City. Smith, Stokes, Long and the rest of last year's diamond experts are ready for the season to begin, and no doubt the Oregon City baseball team will keep up its splendid record established in past years. Probably the most important item which comes up each year is the securing of new uniforms, bats and other necessities. It has been the custom in the past to solicit financial aid from the business men of the town to help defray the cost of these necessary items and perhaps the hardest task of the team manager is the asking of financial help, as, at the best, it is rather embarrassing to go from man to man asking for money.

In order to render all possible assistance to the boys in their worthy cause the Enterprise presents a plan whereby they may secure an adequate sum of money necessary to fully equip the team with new uniforms, bats, and a goodly supply of balls. Let the team nominate one of their popular players as the base ball team's candidate in the big Enterprise automobile contest now running, and with every member of the team working and boosting for their candidate the winning of the big automobile will almost be an assured fact. The new Ford will be awarded to the entrant having the most votes by June 5th and every citizen in the city will join the ball team in their efforts to land the prize. The auto represents $750 cash, and no doubt the machine will be immediately sold for over $750, which would be ample to outfit the entire team with the best of everything. The team deserves and needs the support of the people of this city and this plan would be a unique way for the people to show their appreciation of the team by supporting its candidate in this mighty interesting race. $750 would really be more than would be needed to properly equip the team but the balance of that sum could be used in improving the ball grounds. If the boys want to put up a presentable appearance this season, this opportunity to obtain a new, complete outfit merits consideration. With the backing of each member of the team, it would only be a matter of a few days till the team's candidate would be able to make a creditable showing in the standing of the candidates.

Just nine more days in which to win the $15 merchandise certificate on the J. Levitt store! Every day now counts, but Saturday will be the "red letter" day of the present appeal contest when the candidate polling the most votes will receive 2,000 free votes. Each of the six leaders in the race are determined to win the prize but 30th and interesting developments are promised in the course of the next few days. Miss McCord and Sheahan already have one victory to their credit, which apparently makes them all the more anxious to annex another prize. Wilson and Brown are also out to win this time, and the result is very uncertain. Next Saturday, the free vote day, is sure to bring out a bunch of "reserve ballots" as the 2,000 free votes are desired by every entrant.

Every day now sees more new automobile appearing on the street which only intensifies the desire of every entrant in the race to "make good" and become the happy owner of a Ford, now waiting a claimant at the Elliott garage.

TAFT LAUDED AND COLONEL SCORED

Tariff To Be Settled. Mr. Fulton said that Taft was the only President who realized the importance of settling the tariff question in a business way. His tariff commission, the speaker declared, would see that the interests of all the people were subserved when the schedules were prepared. There would be no haphazard work in the future.

"I admire the independence shown by the President in his appointments to the judiciary," said Mr. Fulton. "Regardless of party or personal interests he selected the man he thought best for the position. This is as it should be. He named Mr. Justice White a Democrat, Chief Justice, because he knew him to be the best man for the place."

"But one of his greatest achievements has been in the line of securing universal peace. The president, who preceded him, however, does not agree with Mr. Taft. He seems for some reason to think that Taft's policy is impracticable and undesirable. He seems to think the spirit of patriotism would be wiped out if wars were eliminated and peace reigned. I do not think so."

"I do not believe in modern times we have had a man who sizes up with Mr. Taft in all respects. His predecessor has forced himself in the ring. He is a candidate of his own volition and suggestion. As he said 'He has thrown his hat into the ring,' and has followed it."

"I regret to feel that Roosevelt's position in history will not be so large or great as it would have been had he not been guided by a vaulting ambition, but by patriotism. But he has exhibited to the country that self-aggrandizement and ambition are dearer to him than his country. He is willing to destroy sacred legends and convictions to advance only his personal ambition. But no man however great, however deserving shall serve more than two terms as President. It is a belief and a tradition founded on the wisest statesmanship. Washington foresaw the danger, and though urged to be a candidate for a third term declined. He feared a monarchy, Jefferson could have been nominated for a third term, but he declined."

The speaker to illustrate how indelibly the idea was fixed in the minds of the American people called attention to the mistake that was made in the case of General Grant. The hero of his country, the man idolized by all, led by unwise friends to try for a third term was beaten though every man in the convention loved him, said Mr. Fulton. With such a man unable to overcome popular sentiment on the subject the speaker drew the inference that Roosevelt, too, must fall.

"History will repeat itself again," continued Mr. Fulton, "So long as the fire of patriotism burns within the American breast, I sincerely regret that Mr. Roosevelt has allowed ambition to overcome his sense of patriotism. It is the duty of every citizen who loves his country, who has its interests at heart to assist in guiding the ship of state from the rocks."

Mr. Fulton quoted statements of Roosevelt, in which he said he would not be a candidate for another term, or a candidate in 1912, and illustrated by them how the Ex-President's mind had gradually drifted from what he had once believed to be the right course.

Ex-Governor Geer who chanced to be in the city, and was not scheduled for an address, said: "No man has been so big in the past, no man is so big at present and no man ever will be so big in the history of this country that his services will be demanded as its chief executive for a third term."

"Four years ago I was an ardent advocate of the nomination of Taft not only on account of his splendid record in various capacities he had served the public but because I was whom I admired greatly, as the best equipped man who had ever aspired to the presidency of the United States. In those days Roosevelt's judgment was better than it seems to be at the present time and Mr. Taft has not only made good, but he has proved himself a wonderfully clear-minded man toward hysterics and a safe counselor for the common people."

32 ARE KILLED IN BOILER EXPLOSION

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 18.—At least thirty-two men were killed and parts of their bodies strewn for blocks when a big passenger locomotive in the Southern Pacific shops blew up here this morning.

The locomotive stood in a square formed by the cooper-house, blacksmith shop and roundhouse, all of which were wrecked. A part of the locomotive crashed into a house, several blocks away and seriously hurt a woman.

Twenty of the bodies have been identified, but what is believed to be twelve more is little more than a tangled mass of fragments of human flesh and bones that probably never will be separated.

These fragments were found jammed into crevasses about the wrecked building in the streets, and entangled in the machinery of the shops.
