

WATCH STAHL AND DOON THIS YEAR

Young Baseball Leaders May Spring Big Surprise.

PILOT TWO STRONG TEAMS.

Philadelphia Club Looks More Nifty Than It Did This Time Last Year—Boston Team Ought to Give Athletics a Good Run.

On looks Charley Doolin and Garland Stahl have two mighty beautiful looking young baseball outfits. Jimmy McAleer, who never had much luck as a manager, and Horace Fogel, who was never rated very high as a baseball editor, appear set to encounter huge gods of luck as baseball presidents. All of which shows that our world is a funny, funny world.

The Phillies have an unmistakably big chance to capture the National league championship. Doolin's first mount might have gone merrily waltzing over the plate a year ago if he had encountered anything like as much good luck as he encountered poor fortune. The clever Charles' layout is even niftier looking this spring than it was last April. Alexander and Chalmers have delivered; Luderus has proved a hitting first baseman. If not a fielding first baseman, and time has shown that Doolin put it over Herman Griffith, Fogel et al. when he made that gigantic swap with Cincinnati.

Doolin acted like a regular pilot last season. His mistakes were few and there was absolutely nothing to indicate that he was going to blow as the director general of this crack young team. So there is little, if anything, to worry about in his case. He is a star hitter, a star catcher and a star hustler, and also the satisfactory skipper to all outward appearances. He has a truly good looking squad. The Cubs, the old class of the baseball world, were heard shot to pieces.

The Cubs will be lucky to finish in the Big Four.

The Pirates are not the great team they were in former seasons.

Giants May Not Come Back.

The Giants had all the luck last season, and of course they will get that same mastery ride. Just the same, it is doubtful if they will come back. That whipping the Athletics gave them last October won't do them any good. Then the mighty Matty must remain as good as ever, and Marquand must duplicate his 1911 record. Doolin looks to own a better squad than McGraw, and the dope chart will show that the Phillies were whaling the Giants with a beautiful regularity last summer up to the time that Doolin experienced his long run of misfortune.

As for Stahl, the other young skipper who is showing us his wares, he has had a lot, an awful lot, put up to him. First, he must make good with a team that looks mighty good. Secondly, he has to prove to be the owner of a wonderful executive base ball noddy, as no manager in either major body is surrounded by so much smart talent as the Chicago flunkey McAleer, president, is a wise cove, even if James never had much luck as a manager. McLox, treasurer, is one of the coming wise boys of the game. Taylor has ever been conspicuous. Stahl has got to handle this trio as well as his ball players. Then, thirdly, Stahl has got to make back himself as a demon bingle maker and a demon first sacker.

Stahl is of high type, as well educated and nicely polished a man as there is in baseball. He mixes well with his players. His early form, both as a manager and player, is very O. K.

Turenna's Equivalent.

A French historian remarked to a gathering of distinguished men that no fewer than eight marshals of France were created to take the place of the great Turenna.

"That is not extraordinary," some one immediately declared. "It takes a deal of silver coin to equal a gold one."

MINE WORKERS TO HOLD CONFERENCE

NEW YORK, May 4.—Officials of the United Mine Workers of America who have been in conference here two days, issued a call yesterday for a general convention at Wilkesbarre, Pa., on May 14, to consider the tentative agreement entered into by the subcommittee representing the operators and the miners, which was rejected Thursday by the full committee of the miners.

The convention will be urged to empower the committee of 10 to enter into a second joint conference with the operators and conclude an agreement, subject to ratification by a referendum vote of the miners.

Delegates to the Wilkesbarre convention will be chosen from 400 local unions in the three anthracite districts. If the tentative agreement of the subcommittee which was signed by President White and three district presidents, is approved, the 170,000 men now idle will return to work at once. If the convention rejects the tentative agreement, it is expected by the leader that the committee of 10 will be empowered to enter into a second joint conference, which, Mr. Greene said, already had been arranged for, and to conclude an agreement subject to ratification by referendum vote.

John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, and now vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, participated yesterday in deliberations of the mine-workers' representatives over the course to be pursued in dealing further with the operators for increased pay, recognition of the union and other changes not included in the provisional agreement rejected Thursday by the joint conference of operators and miners.

Mitchell conferred with State Senator Green, of Ohio, who represents President White, of the miners, and with the district presidents. None of the conferees would discuss the deliberations.

President Baer, of the Reading Railroad, told the miners that he considered the full committee of miners morally bound to stand by the action of the subcommittee, and that until the question had been submitted to a referendum vote of the miners the full committee was in no position to ask for further concessions from the operators.

GOMEZ IS NAMED PROVISIONAL HEAD

EL PASO, Tex., May 4.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez was formally proclaimed provisional president of Mexico today by the rebels, and established himself in Juarez.

Gomez paid a visit to Juarez today at noon, and was received by the rebel officials, who escorted him to the custom-house. The officials then wired to Gen. Orozco to ascertain if they should hold him or release him. He was then virtually a prisoner.

S. A. Bentley, an American refugee from Coahuila, today told a story of torture which he said had been inflicted on himself and C. W. Richards an El Pasoan, in the Juarez jail. The Americans were released last night after 21 hours of confinement, during which, Bentley declared he was hit on the head with the butt of a pistol and hung up by a rope several times. In proof of his story he showed a great lump on his head and abrasions around his neck.

Bentley and Richards were passengers on a streetcar Thursday night when cartridges placed on the track behind them exploded. The Americans and two Mexicans were the only male passengers and they were arrested and taken to jail. On the person of one of the Mexicans, according to Bentley, cartridges were found. He was beaten to make him confess that he was acting for the Federals. Finally he was shot and then hanged until death came to his relief. This occurred in the presence of the Americans.

When Bentley protested against his arrest, he says, Hosea Orozco, a nephew of the rebel commander-in-chief Pascual Orozco, became enraged and beat him with a revolver. Richards said nothing and escaped more easily Bentley was then hung up for a moment.

Orozco, he says demanded that he confess to being a spy, and let him down. This was repeated several times in an endeavor to secure a confession, the American declares. At last his jailers gave up the attempt, and last night he and Richards were released through efforts of Mrs. Richards.

BISHOPS DENOUNCE WALL STREET TRADING

MINNEAPOLIS, May 3.—"The American people are too far advanced longer to be restricted by church rules as to what their amusements shall be. The rules prohibiting dancing, card playing, gambling and going to theatres, circuses and horse races therefore should be abolished."

This is the gist of a report presented today to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the board of bishops.

In recommending this radical change the 24 active bishops stipulated that the church, however, should not be indifferent on these subjects, but that the people should be left to judge for themselves what is right or wrong in amusements, having before them only the injunction of John Wesley which forbids "the taking of such diversions as cannot be taken in the name of the Lord Jesus."

The bishops declared the church related its opposition to theatre-going and gambling, but the rule in force since 1872 could not fix a point between the "lurid and the stock market."

The bishops' report was delivered by Bishop Earl Cranston, of Washington, D. C., and it formed the second section of the Episcopal address, the first half of which was given the day before.

"We would joyfully acclaim the day when every Christian would abstain from the amusements which have been prohibited, but we can repress our conviction that Wesley dealt more wisely with the danger."

"The bishops therefore recommend a return to the consistent treatment of this subject by Wesley and we deem more earnestly because we are dealing with the American people and are in the 20th century."

HOMER DAVENPORT CARTOONIST, DEAD

NATIVE OF OREGON, WHO GAINED WORLD WIDE FAME, VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA

FREQUENT VISITOR TO OREGON CITY

W. W. H. Samson and Noted Artist Were Schoolmates and Close Friends—End is Sudden

Homer Davenport, world famous cartoonist, who died Thursday of pneumonia in New York City, was well known in Oregon City. W. W. H. Samson, justice of the peace, was a schoolmate of Mr. Davenport. Mr. Samson says that the famous artist was not unlike other boys, and that he followed his natural bent. Although reared on a farm he abhorred farming, and early showed an ability to draw. Mr. Davenport, upon his frequent visits to Oregon, always came to Oregon City to see his schoolmate, Mr. Samson.

Homer Davenport was born at Silverton, Or., March 8, 1867. He was brought up on his father's farm and as he took much delight in telling in later days from the lecture platform, he was utterly worthless as a farmer's son. Hoeing potatoes and milking the cows never appealed to Homer; he put in his spare time and a good deal that couldn't be spared, according to his father's notions of running a farm, in drawing pictures of animals, pet roosters, the hired man and his father on the barn door in chalk.

Homer's father and everybody else about Silverton considered him totally lacking in the essentials to any kind of success. They thought he had no brains and said so. His first act that impressed them all with his ability was becoming drum major of the Silverton band. McKinley Mitchell, now a prominent Portland produce merchant living in Gervais, near Silverton, and managed the Gervais baseball team. In games with Silverton, Davenport would turn out with his band and sometimes would umpire the game.

Davenport achieved his first great success when he visited Portland for the first time in 1884, when Cleveland was running for President, and at the head of the band led a big Cleveland procession through the streets.

Davenport broke into the newspaper game as a combination artist and reporter for the Oregonian about 1890, his career on that newspaper was short and crisp. He was "fired" because he could not draw a stove.

After that he returned to Silverton, much disheartened and began to raise game chickens. But through disheartened he had not lost confidence in himself and was sure that if he could get to San Francisco he would "make good." Raising the money to go on was his big problem, for his father and friends would not advance him a cent. Finally he went to his closest friend, McKinley Mitchell, who tells the story, and told him he must buy some game chickens.

There were exactly 100 of the fowls and Mitchell gave Davenport a dollar apiece for them, most of which Davenport spent on clothes. At Davenport's suggestion, Mitchell raffled the birds, the best fighters of which Homer had named "Sullivan," "Heenan," "Dempey," and so forth, after his favorite prize fighters and got his money back. For years after that Prairie life of these birds, French, English and the descendants of those fowls are undisputed champions.

Davenport went to San Francisco and managed to get on Hearst's Examiner in 1892. They found he could draw horses pretty well and sent him over to the race track. He made good there, and was sent to New Orleans to cover the Dempsey-Fitzsimmons fight. After that his rise was rapid.

Davenport's first big hit as a cartoonist in San Francisco was his picture of Sam Rainey, who was one of the two big Democratic bosses of San Francisco by virtue of his control of the fire department, would never let the newspaper camera men photograph him.

One day the Examiner sent Davenport to the fire house where Rainey made his headquarters to sketch him after several photographers had failed. Davenport calmly got in front of Rainey, took out his paper and began to sketch him. This made Rainey so frantic that he turned in the fire alarm, and had Davenport forcibly removed by the entire fire department.

"There's another fellow who could not get my picture," he exulted after Davenport's exit. But the next morning the Examiner had a likeness of Rainey that made the firefolk gasp. Rainey was a man who had developed in breadth about twice as fast as he had developed in height. It was all there in the picture—that and every minute characteristic of Rainey—so true a likeness that it almost spoke from the paper.

Not long after that, in 1905, Davenport had developed so much that Hearst took him to New York. His fame as a cartoonist dates from his cartoons of Mark Hanna in a dollar mark suit before the campaign days of 1896 through Davenport's cartoons.

Davenport told McKinley Mitchell in later years that after he made his first dollar-mark cartoon of Hanna, Hearst told him he had made the mistake of his life. "I was so sure of my idea and that it would talk, and so I worked over it, that I could have cried when Mr. Hearst said that," Davenport told his friend. A week after that Hearst had entirely remodeled his opinion.

Another famous cartoon of Davenport's was that of the giant figure of trusts in 1899. His work caused a movement to pass an anti-cartoon bill in New York in 1897.

DAVENPORT OBSEQUIES TO BE HELD MONDAY

SILVERTON, Or., May 8.—arrangements have been made to hold the funeral of Homer Davenport at the Silverton opera house at 2 o'clock next Monday. It will be in the order of a family funeral. Homer loved Silverton dearly and the town loved him every citizen regarding him as one of a great family. Mrs. Jean Morris Ellis of Portland, a particular friend of the Davenport family, will deliver an address. The procession will go on foot from the opera house to the cemetery, the pallbearers bearing the casket upon a bier. Nothing elaborate is proposed; simplicity will characterize the ceremony.

The Silverton Concert band, of which Mr. Davenport was a member in his younger days, will play at the funeral. Other members of the family are expected to arrive from Pasadena, Cal., the latter part of the week. A son is accompanying the body.

DEMOCRATS TO NAME OFFICERS SATURDAY

O. D. Eby, Chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee, has called a meeting of the committee in Willamette Hall next Saturday morning. The committee, who were elected at the recent primary, will elect a secretary and chairman, and a state central committeeman. H. G. Starkweather, present state committeeman, is being urged to again accept the office. The Republican committee at a meeting Saturday elected Frank Jagger chairman, William Hammond secretary, Lacy Stip state central committeeman and W. A. Dimick, congressional committeeman. E. P. Dedman, of Clackamas, was elected to fill the vacancy on the Republican ticket for county recorder, due to the disappearance of Lloyd E. Williams, who was nominated in the primary, despite his absence from the city.

TRIES IN VAIN TO AID DROWNING BROTHER

Roy Pelkey, of Teasel Creek, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Pelkey, prominent Clackamas county residents, was drowned near Molalla Monday afternoon, and the funeral services will be held this afternoon, the interment to be in the Adams cemetery.

Mr. Pelkey, who was twenty-one years of age, was employed by the Morrison Lumber Company, and was working on a boom of logs when he fell into the water, and was drowned before help could be given. His brother, Eugene Pelkey, and Herbert Engle, who are employed by the sawmill company, made heroic efforts to save the young man's life, and had narrow escapes from drowning. The body was recovered from the mill pond about thirty minutes after the accident.

Mrs. Pelkey, the young man's mother is the daughter of W. R. and Harriet Bagby prominent Oregon pioneers. C. W. Bagby of Oregon City, is an uncle. Besides his parents Mr. Pelkey is survived by three sisters, Mrs. John Stuart, Mrs. Grace Davis, Mrs. Henry Russell, and three brothers, Eugene, Charles and William Pelkey.

MANY ARC LIGHTS TO BE INSTALLED

COUNCIL PLANS HAVING OREGON CITY RIVAL "GREAT WHITE WAY"

DARKNESS TO GET SOLAR PLEXUS

After Slumming Expedition Mayor and City Fathers in Grand Chorus Say, "Let There Be More Light!"

As a result of the efforts of the Mayor and several members of the city council Oregon City soon will be one of the best lighted cities in the state. At a recent meeting of the council, several members, including Mr. Tooze, suggested that inasmuch as the city had grown a great deal in the past two or three years and many streets had been improved more arc lights should be installed and others should be moved to more desirable locations. Mayor Dimick and the members of the council made several trips of inspection in automobiles with the result that it was decided by a unanimous vote to give the city a better service. The electric company has been notified of the work that is planned and the lights will be installed at once.

The incandescent light at Eighth and Moss Streets in Greenpoint will be replaced by an arc light on a pole sixty feet high. Lights will be installed at Ninth and Center streets, Third and John Adams streets, Thirteenth and Center streets, at Washington street and the Abernethy, at Eleventh and Jefferson streets, at Twelfth and John Quincy Adams streets, at Twelfth and Van Buren streets, Twelfth and Taylor streets, Sixth and Madison, on Molalla Avenue between Everhardt & Hall's store and Welsh's Lumber Yard. The light at Tenth and Taylor streets will be removed to Ninth and Taylor and the light in front of Mrs. Chase's home on the bluff will be moved to Sixth and High streets.

The light at Eleventh and Jefferson street and the one at Twelfth and John Quincy Adams street will be of great benefit to persons living near the high school.

ANDRUS IS NAMED HEAD OF CARRIERS

The rural mail carriers have organized a branch of the Rural Mail Carriers of the United States. There was a good attendance from various parts of the county, and much enthusiasm was manifested at the meeting. Quarterly meetings will be held in various places throughout the county. After the meeting a banquet was served by the wives of the carriers.
