SALMON WAR STARTS ALONG WILLAMETTE

What promises to be one of the merriest wars for fish supplies is started along the Columbia and Willamette rivers.

The action of a Columbia river packer in sending his fishermen to the Willamette this year, where they are getting the bulk of the salmon supplies, has so enraged Portland wholesalers that they have begun to retaliate by invading the lower river.

Since the Columbia packers have invaded the Willamette field the wholesalers have decided to go to the Columbia, and have already secured a boat which is running from St. Helens to Portland. Another boat will be put on to secure supplies further down the Columbia.

All sorts of prices are being paid at Oregon City for salmon. While packers say they are not paying above 70 a pound, the value quoted along the Columbia, wholesalers say that they are offering 80, and would secure the bulk of the fish if packers were not offering that much or more. In any event most of the Willamette salmon is going to packers.

Mr. Watenpaugh was born in Catawago County, New York, and left there when about two years of age with his parents for Cass County, near Elgin, Ill., where he remained until the beginning of the Civil War, when he enlisted in August 1861, being a private in Company B, Thirty Sixth Illinois Cavalry. He was wounded at the battle of Murrenboro, in 1863. After being discharged he returned to his home near Elgin in April, and in June, 1863, he married Miss Margaret Bartlett, who was a native of New York State.

Mr. Watenpaugh came to Oregon City by way of the Isthmus of Panama in 1867, and lived in the state ever after except one year, when he lived in California. He was a resident of Salem before coming to Oregon City. He was well known in Clackamas county, and was a member of the Methodist church for many years.

GEORGE MILES' BODY IS FOUND

FATHER AND COMPANY G MEMBERS GO TO BEACH TO MAKE IDENTIFICATION

MILITARY FUNERAL IS PLANNED

Young Man Disappeared Day Troops Broke Camp And Became Lost In Dense Woods

F. A. Miles, deputy sheriff, said Tuesday that he believed the skeleton found near Columbia Beach was that of his son, George, who mysteriously disappeared August 14, 1911, while the troops were encamped there. Mr. Miles with William Shannon, corporal of Company G, of which Miles was a member, and Cal Price, a member of the company left for Astoria Tuesday night. A telegram was received by Mr. Miles from the coroner at Astoria giving the information that the skeleton was thought to be that of his son. The skeleton was found by a party of real estate men Monday afternoon in the timber about a mile from the Lewis and Clark River and about five miles from where the young man was last seen by anyone who knew him. Members of the company say the young man wandered from camp while suffering from mental aberration, and the theory is that he got lost in the timber and perished.

The national guardsman disappeared the day before the company broke camp and although a thorough search was made for him, no trace was found. Upon the return of the company to this city, Mr. Miles, Captain Hidy and several other members of the company went to Columbia Beach and searched the entire neighborhood for the young man. Upon his return Mr. Miles said he was confident his son had become lost in the timber or swamps in the neighborhood. The coroner promised to notify him if a body was found. A strange coincidence is that the skeleton was found exactly nine months after the man disappeared.

If the body is that of young Miles it will be given a military funeral.
