LINGERIE FROCK WITH SILK COAT.

The lingerie frocks of high degree have adorable little taffeta coats, which make them very dressy for afternoon occasions.

The model illustrated of Venice lace and cream net has a coat of green shot taffeta trimmed with white ball buttons, and the upper bodice of net has long sleeves of green taffeta.

THE NO GLOVE MOVEMENT.

Rings With Large Settings Responsible For Change.

There is an old saying that a French woman dons her gloves in the privacy of her boudoir, an Englishwoman while coming down the stairs, and the American tugs on her gloves when halfway down the street. And if this is so it would appear as though for once the Parisians are imitating their American contemporaries.

The no glove fashion is particularly noticeable in Paris, where many smart women are carrying their gloves in their hands instead of putting them on. The gloves they carry are exceedingly fine suede ones in beautiful tints of biscuit, ecru and tan.

For some little time past women have been flouting the old inexorable law that the hands should be covered in the evening, and at the theaters and the less ceremonious parties the wearing of gloves has been on the decrease.

There is also a new liking for duck-foot yellow gloves, which several years ago were exceedingly modish. These are worn for morning walks.

The reason assigned for the no glove movement is the fact that rings with very large gem settings are fashionable, and muffs are exceedingly popular. It is customary to take to the theater a large muff, in which the hands are buried. But the gloves must be there, too, loosely carried in the hands after the manner affected by men.

Crepe de Chine Underwear.

Each year the return of summer brings us something new in the way of undergarments. This year's innovation is to be crepe de chine, and there is no doubt that it will be exceedingly cool and comfortable. We will find all our old favorites developed in this material, combinations, princess slips and nightgowns, and they will all be glorified. Pink is the favorite color, though garments are found in all the delicate shades, while the more elaborate affairs, and likewise the more expensive, are decorated with flowers, rosettes and wreaths made of chiffon and ribbon.

The more simple and practical garments are lace trimmed, cissy being the favorite, as it is on the fine undermuslin, though Irish edging and ribbon are used.

M'GRAW WORKS HIS OWN SYSTEM

New York Manager Has Substitutes Equal of Regulars.

WINS WITHOUT HIS STARS.

Utility Men Show Up as Well as the Men They Replaced in Several Games—Team is Well Fortified in All Positions.

By TOMMY CLARK.

A short time ago a New York baseball critic exhibited much joy over the fact that the Giants did not have Bakers, Cobbs, Wagners, Lajoies or other stars of the infield or outfield. At the time it seemed that a commission on sanity should be appointed to examine the dome of the writer who penned such an idea. That was before the subject was given careful thought. Now we are willing to admit that it was pretty wise "dope" which the Gotham scribe handed out.

Don't jump at conclusions, folk. Of course Johnny McGraw would grab Cobb, Baker, Wagner and Lajoie. He would immediately replace men who are regulars on the Giants now with any of the stars mentioned. The fact remains that McGraw does not have any of the four 300 batsmen and brilliant performers in all departments. Therefore McGraw has worked out a system of his own.

Larry Doyle is not only the regular second sacker of the New York team, but he is the captain. Yet when Larry was injured recently Shafer was placed at second and in batting and fielding did equally as good work as Captain Doyle. In other words, Doyle is not a star, and therefore it did not require a star to fill his shoes.

During that same period Fletcher, regarded as the regular shortstop, was hurt. Again McGraw was prepared. He had Groh, a young player, who filled in at short field. It was difficult to notice the difference.

Now, on the other hand, take Cobb away from Detroit and what is the result? Well, it has been pretty generally agreed that the Tigers have lost 25 per cent of their offensive powers. Some writers insist that Ty is 50 per cent of the attack. Mack is usually well fortified in substitute material, but either Collins or Baker is such a loss to the team that it is noticeable.

When a capable manager like McGraw can develop a team made up of rather mediocre material with substitutes for every position just about as good as the regulars he is better fortified than the manager who has a team built around three or four stars and no substitutes who can take the place of those stars when they are lost through injury or illness.

The title of the "hard luck manager" belongs to Charley Doolin, leader of the Philadelphia Nationals. Last season injuries to several members of the

THEIR ABSENCE LOST FLAG.

Happened in 1906, and Cleveland Was Only Eight Points Behind the Leaders, but Loss of Stars Weakened the Team.

Larry Lajoie, the Cleveland American star second baseman, sympathizes with Managers Charley Doolin of the Phillies, Harry Wolverton of the Yankees and Roger Bresnahan of the St. Louis Cardinals because of the crippled condition of their teams.

"Yes," said Lajoie, recently, "they are having their share of hard luck. When I saw their lineups in the morning papers I wonder that they manage to win now and then. And it takes me back to the days of 1906 when we won a double header at New York, went into second place only eight points behind the leaders and in pulling off that trick lost five players in the two games.

"I really think that no club ever met with as hard luck in a double header as we did that day. First Harry Bay, who had been going splendidly, dislocated his knee. He had been our lead-off man, but that accident practically ended his big league days. Claude Rossman was spiked in the hand, Harry Bemis strained himself, and then one of Bill Hoeg's wild inshoots caught Bradley on the wrist and broke it. That started Brad toward the minors. Barbeau took Brad's place, and one of his wild throws hit Stewart on the hip and chipped a piece of his hip bone.

"But we won those two games and took down a percentage of 600. But, as far as winning the pennant was concerned, we were out of it, for we began to lose consistently. You see, Nig Clarke already was out of the game with a broken finger, and in the second game at Boston following the disaster at New York Tuck Turner had his thumb put out of commission.

"So we had to line up with Rossman with a spiked hand on first, Flick on second, myself at short and Barbeau on third. Jimmy Jackson, Hess and Conzleton took care of the outfield, while Buebe and Klitzredge, neither of whom could throw at that time, did the catching. That just shows you how quickly a team that has a chance to win the pennant can be turned into a club that has to fight to keep out of the second division. Yes, I surely sympathize with Doolin, Bresnahan and Wolverton."

Three Methods of Derision.

There are very few allusions to storks in Latin authors, but one of these is interesting. The birds have a curious custom of snapping their bills, making quite a sharp noise. Young and old birds, both during and after the breeding season, constantly do this. In the writings of Peristus there is a reference to this habit. "There are," he says, "three favorite ways of deriding a man—by putting the hands beside the head like asses' ears, by putting out the tongue like a dog and snapping the fingers against the palm of the hand like a stork's bill." The first two methods of mockery are plain, but what was the cause of the last?—Notes and Queries.

CHARLEY DOOLIN, MANAGER OF THE PHILLIES.

Phillies and himself probably robbed him of the pennant. This season the flux, hoodoo, voodoo, or what not, has been pursuing the team without rest. Recently there were eight members of the team out of the game at one time.

Greater than the value of contact with facts is the value of responsibility. In a man's life it is the arrival of some responsibility which arouses the powers and makes durable the qualities of manliness. The effect of responsibility is instantaneous. It is like a magnet in its power to charge the individual with the faculties needed for the matter in hand. A light is generated among the fragments of information. Even after a systematic education these fragments seem to lie in the mind in a chance order until this light appears and shows them ready for use; then abilities develop which never would develop, even with practice, without responsibility.—Atlantic Monthly.

HOG SUPPLY STRONG WITH STEADY PRICES

There was a liberal run of hogs at North Portland Thursday and prices were fairly steady. One sale was again made at $8 but the bulk of the offerings of quality are ranging from $7.75 to $7.90. The demand was good and considerable stock was moved early.

Total run for the day was 495 head compared with 387 last Thursday, and 28 head this day a year ago.

Chicago was steady for hogs during the day with a run of 18,000 head compared with a similar number a year ago. Price remains stationary with tops at $7.85.

Kansas City hogs were steady with a run of 7000 head for the day.

A nickel was added to the hog price at South Omaha, tops going there at $7.70. Run for the day was 13,800 head.

PRICE OF WOOL IS BOOSTED IN PORTLAND

Portland mills, with hurry up orders for supplies, are bidding up the price of wool in the Willamette valley, and as high as 22c a pound is being paid for extra choice.

Movement at Willamette valley points is increasing considerably and the trade is absorbing all offerings. The mills are interested practically entirely in the better grade stock, and are not seeking the coarse fleeces. For that reason, while extra choice is quoted as high as 22c, the lower grade stock is not moving above 18c, with medium to fine at 20c.

Interest in the wool market in eastern Oregon and Idaho is increasing. Little noise is being made by dealers in making purchases in order to secure other supplies before growers become aware of the improved demand.

DEMAND FOR OLD POTATOES GROWS

There has been a much heavier movement of old potatoes early this week. Sales are now the heaviest of the season to date, and this is causing some believe that a slight advance in the price may be forced at a later date.

Good stock is commanding bids at 75c percent in the country, but most of the offerings are not so good and are not bringing more than 75c on the cars here. In fact, some purchases were made by hawkers in Portland during the past 24 hours as low as 50c per cental.

There is practically no change in the potato situation either at northern or southern points. California is still quoting as high as $2 per cental, although it is quite natural that the bulk of the offerings of quality would not reach this figure. Puget Sound

POTATO MARKET QUIET AND WEAK

The potato market continues quiet and none too strong in tone, but at the relatively low prices, now being offered buyers express the belief that it will be possible to get the bulk at least of the Oregon surplus into the distant markets before the wind-up of the season. They are said to be paying 20 cents to $1 a hundred for good stock at country shipping points and most of the buying now under way is for shipping south.

New Southern-grown potatoes were lowered half a cent, fancy stock being offered at 23 cents a pound on the street.
