A POISON TALK

What Becomes of the Poisonous Mat ter You Eat and Drink

Almost every day you eat or drink mething containing some kind of poison. There is poison in tainted meat, in tobacco, in alcoholic drinks, in many food preservatives. The liver is the great poison transormer. The healthy liver seizes ev ery bit of poison and turns it to use the poison remains in your system, in terfering with every other organ, discouraging every bodily function, bringing ill health and perhaps worse.

To restore your liver to health-to provide that poisons shall be removed Herman and Mary Jane Miller and not left in the blood to carry their nerves, stomach and kidneys-to keep your internal organs clean, vigorous, instantly responsive to every demand made upon them, is to preserve your strength, increase the comfort of liv-ing and prolong your life.

Rexall Liver Salts is a combination of salts found in certain medicinal waters of Europe and other countries, the waters you read about people spending hundreds of dollars and going thousands of miles to drink. Bicar nate of Phosphate, Sulphate and Chloride of Sodium, Lithium Carbon ate, Potassium Sulphate-Nature's remedies for the "blues," rheumatic and gouty troubles, biliousness, indigestion, some forms of skin diseases which, in many cases, are manifesta-
