ORIGIN OF SCIENTIFIC FARMING

In these days, when science is making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, a word as to the beginning of the new departure in farming may be said to date from half a century ago.

At first this law was called the Morrill act, because Justice S. Morrill was its author. As the New Hampshire statesman was busy in many spheres however, and had his name prominently associated with several other laws of large consequence, it was necessary to give it a more specific term and it was called the land grant statute.

The agricultural college act followed a few weeks after the free homes law was signed. Thus June and July 1862, were landmarks in the development of American farming.

A CHANCE FOR "DETAILS"

When Senator Bailey was called out of line with the Denver platform of 1908, because the platform demanded free lumber and the senator was supporting a lumber tariff for revenue only, he answered that the platform declared a general principle of action, while he was dealing with the details of practical legislation.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY NOMINATIONS UNANIMOUS AND EULOGIES ARE MANY

ACCEPTANCES ARE MADE AT ONCE
Enthusiastic Speakers Declare Illinois And Pennsylvania Will Give Large Majorities To New Ticket

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the delegates to the first National convention of the new Progressive party tonight proclaimed Theodore Roosevelt of New York, as their candidate for President, and Hiram W. Johnson, Governor of California, as their choice for Vice-President.

Marking a departure in the proceedings of National conventions, the two candidates then were notified of their nomination, and in the midst of deafening cheers they appeared before the delegates to voice their acceptance and to pledge their best efforts to the coming campaign.

CREAMERY Praised

Don't ship your cream, farmer, or churn it at home in the belief that it will pay you better than taking it to the creamery.

There are nearly a thousand co-operative creameries in Minnesota. Why are there so many, if they are not the best way for the farmer to manufacture and sell his butter?

The party formally christens itself "The Progressive party," leaving off the prefix "National," by which it has heretofore been known but provision was made for the recognition of "real" progressives in an state by whatever name they should be locally designated because of state laws.

The convention adjourned at 7:24 P. M. with the delegates singing the "Doxology" in lusty voice. During the three days it was in session there was not a roll call or a ballot. The delegates asked no such formalities, either in placing their candidates in nomination or in voting for them.

After a series of partial disappointments in the conduct of its business, the progressive convention met this afternoon, and after the adoption of new rules for the new party and the announcement that the platform was complete, the roll of the state was called. Alabama, first on the list, gave way and New York was recognized.

Comptroller Prendergast of New York City was absent, and the convention awaited his return with impatience. Finally he was found, and in a speech replete with praise, formally put Roosevelt in nomination.

During Prendergast's oration the great audience which filled the Coliseum listened intently to his rolling periods. Now and again as he spoke, a sharp yell of applause broke through the current of his speech, and at its conclusion, a great roar of approval literally drowned out the hands which joined in with the wave of shouting.

It was just 2:11 o'clock when Prendergast's peroration started the delegates stood on their chairs waving handkerchiefs and cheering. A woman in the gallery lowered a big American flag, to which had been attached a big lithograph of Colonel Roosevelt. This pandemonium broke loose, the din of the demonstration being deafening.

Then the New York delegates started a procession of standards through the aisles. New Hampshire, North Carolina, Arizona, West Virginia, Ohio and Texas followed, the delegates keeping step to martial airs furnished by a veteran life and drum corps. General McDowell, a Confederate officer, led the cheering, waving an American flag.

After the cheering had lasted 20 minutes the fife and drummers filed into the aisles and headed the procession, adding to the enthusiasm with "Dixie" and "The Star Spangled Banner." Within 30 minutes of uproar had passed a new American flag was a circular arrangement of the stars was dropped from the riggers of the Coliseum and the entire assembly stopped cheering and sang "America." The enthusiasm, however, redoubled as the song ended, and Beverly, who had tried for order dropped back into his chair all again.

At the height of the demonstration Mrs. Roosevelt entered the hall and was given the Chattanooga salute with handkerchiefs. The hand started up, "O, You Beautiful Doll," and Mrs. Roosevelt smiled although greatly embarrassed.

When the convention reassembled at 1 o'clock, Medill McCormick of the rules committee, read a compromise plank which provided that the name of the new party in the platform should be the Progressive party. It contained the stipulation, however, that in other states where another name had been adopted the name should be subject to the approval of these states. In Pennsylvania, the new party is designated as the Washington party, and McCormick, for the rules committee, accepted an amendment ruling that the Pennsylvania branch should be an adjunct of the Progressive party. After the rule-revising convention representation had been changed fixing the basis of representation at one delegate to each 5000 votes instead of 10,000 the report of the rules committee was adopted without division.

GARY GIVES COUNTY TEACHERS ADVICE

County School Superintendent Gary has addressed the following letter to the teachers of the county schools:

You will soon take up your work for another year. Much of your success will depend upon the start you make. You should familiarize yourself with the conditions surrounding your school and neighborhood. Do not give much heed to the stories you hear about the "bad" boys in the school. If you are a true teacher the chances are that the so-called "bad" boy will not materialize. If you are a stranger do not wait until the first day of school but go early and get your bearings.

If you are from some other state you should send for a course of study and plan your work according to it. You will be required to follow the course of study and will find the work embarrassing if you know nothing about it. Teachers from other states sometimes fail because they do not, or will not, adapt their work to harmonize with our system.

Many teachers are weak in primary methods. Much has been said at institutes and elsewhere about this work but we still find little children in the rural schools being taught by old antiquated methods, or very imperfectly taught by new methods, or what is most deplorable, not being taught at all. In order that teachers may strengthen themselves in this work and be able to start their year's work aright, the County Educational Board has arranged to have Miss Virginia Hewitt, Supervisor for the First District, conduct a school of primary methods in Oregon City during the first week in September.

Miss Hewitt is an excellent primary teacher of much training and practice. She has an abundance of material, and will teach you how to make many simple things you use in the work. This school will be free to all teachers of the county.

You will be pleased to hear that our Annual Institute will be held during the first three days of Thanksgiving week. You will thus have only one vacation instead of two as in former years.

The outlook has never before been so good for the schools of Clackamas County. The teaching force is, I think, much stronger than ever before. There is an excellent spirit among school officers. So many of them have said this year "We want a good teacher. If we can get the kind we want we are willing to pay well for her." If you desire to secure and hold a good position among teachers, it behooves you to be up and doing. The teacher without professional spirit, ambition and a love for the work will before long be unable to secure a position.

NEW RAILROAD WILL BE BOON TO SANDY

(Morning Oregonian)
Sandy, on the Mount Hood automobile road, is a growing center for the Sandy Valley. At present half a dozen new buildings for general business purposes are under construction there, and the town is making rapid growth in all lines. Sandy recently was incorporated to provide power to police the town.

Virtually all the travel for West-ern Mount Hood passes through the place. It has a population estimated at from 200 to 400 people. Surrounded by a prosperous farming and fruit district, vast tracts of timber, water power and other resources, Sandy has become a place of importance. It is 25 miles from Portland and about 400 feet above the Sandy river. It is connected with the Estacada Electric Railway line by automobile stams, which runs to Boring in less than half an hour.

Sandy has an active Commercial Club, which assists in locating men seeking homes on the vacant tracts in the immediate vicinity. Edward Bruns is secretary of the club.

At present the Multnomah & Eastern Railway Company is seeking a franchise through Sandy for its line, which is to connect with the Mount Hood Railway at Cottrell, six miles away. Through the efforts of the Sandy Commercial Club, a $5000 bond was subscribed and will be paid to the railroad company on the completion of the line to Sandy. Surveys have been made through Sandy and eastward to Cherryville and beyond.

However, Sandy residents are interested in getting an electric railway to that place. Rights-of-way have been secured between Cottrell and Sandy.

Few places have more attractive surroundings. It has an elevation of about 1200 feet. The land about it is comparatively level.

Here is a new $500 graded school. Sandy also has a $3000 Methodist Church, a $2000 Catholic church, Odd-fellows lodge, Rebekahs, Artisans, Granges, Fruit Growers' Association, Library, Commercial Club and other organizations. The town is perched on the south side of the Sandy River canyon and its scenery is unsurpassed. There is much vacant land in the neighborhood which is held at moderate prices. Much of the land is logged-off and easy to clear. The soil is extremely rich and deep. Many fine farms may be seen with excellent homes. The old field on the east side of Sandy, owned by A. Mienig, is as fine a field of grain as can be seen anywhere.

Many Portland men have invested in tracts on the bluff above Sandy, where they have built Summer homes. Among the most conspicuous is the Summer home of Otto Kleeman, which stands on the bluff. The view is beyond description, especially toward the east, where Mount Hood is constantly in sight.

Casper Junker, an old resident and property owner of Sandy, is very confident that Sandy and Sandy Valley will grow. Mr. Junker said that at present the menace of single tax in Clackamas County is having a quieting effect on farm land in the Sandy district. In speaking of the matter he said: "At the present the possibility that single tax might carry in this country is having a depressing effect. I own a lot of property in Sandy, but I do not feel like going ahead with improvements and building more houses until I know what the outcome of the single tax movement will be."
