"It's really quite simple. I have found a way that, for me at least, takes the place of any expensive 'exerciser' 1 the place of any expensive exerciser I A. J. Morrison could buy. Watch while I give you a D. Bodley demonstration of the many splendid exercises that can be practiced with a child's boot

"Every day I take what time I can for this sometimes it's an hour, sometimes less-but always twenty minutes

"For agility I begin and conclude with the grace hoops. Yes, it does give grace, for if one is light on her feet, agile, she is pretty sure to possess a fair amount of grace. + I toss the hoop into the air from the points of the It descends. If any one will play with J. It descends. If any one will play with J. H. Jones L. N. L. Shriner me we enjoy an active game, tossing R. L. Lansdowne G. N. Hood the hoop from one to the other, trying not to let it fall, for that would count a point against the one who did:

Then I take this large boop and use it as a jumping rope. That keeps the muscles of my fingers, forearm, shoulders and lower limbs in good condition. I started by jumping through the hoop five times, but now I can do it twenty-five times without trouble.

"After a great deal of practice I have learned to balance the hoop on the stick-this for steadiness of nerve and polse. That is an excellent exercise. but quite difficult to accomplish, but it is worth the trouble 65 learn in the beneficial results obtained.

"I use these two embroidery hoops in place of dumbbells. You know the weight of dumbbells has very little effect upon the muscular development, They only serve as a means of exercise. One can get the same results with J. C. "I let my arms hang loosely at the sides, grasping the hoops firmly in each hand, then raise them even with the shoulders and lower them five times, lifting them slowly, as if their weight were great; then five times over my head; in front of my body, where they touch each time; then I bend and touch the floor and last touch them behind my back. Oh, it's a fine general exercise! It limbers up my muscles and sets the blood circulating through my body splendidly."

Give Your Eyes a Holiday. Everybody should give his eyes a day's holiday at least once a mouth, says a writer. In the present age we experience far more strain owing to increasing reading habits and multitudes of glaring lights than our forefathers did and we suffer more from headaches. Therefore give your eyes a holiday as frequently as possible. Give them a day's absolute rest and the retief next day will be most refreshing. When taking an eye holiday a room with green wall paper is a good place to rest in if one cannot get to the country among nature's green fields and woods. Green rests the eyes more than any other color.

Rest and Good Looks.

Every woman should learn to rest if she is anxious to keep her good looks. The one who leads a very busy life should acquire the habit of availing berself of every few spare minutes for this purpose. Let her analyze the art of relaxation and practice it in this

Hang the arms loosely at the side and then begin to move them slowly backward and forward from side to side. Now open the fingers wide and shake the hands loosely from the wrists and after this practice the same exercise with the legs and feet.

The Injurious Veil

Over and over for generations the thing has been told that women injure their eyes with the vells they wearthin mesh, heavy mesh, spotted and figured-all kinds of veils. Now comes an addition to this old time information, which never caused one veil less. It is said that the vell causes, first, eye strain, then headache, nervousness, wrinkles and finally general and serious nervous disorders. This would seem to indicate that the game is not worth the candle.

The Revival of Combs. The latest fushion notes from Paris say that elaborate combs will be worn again the coming season. Some are fan shaped: others are narrow and curved to fit around the back of the head just over a heavy roll low on the Theo. Kornbrodt neck This shape is very pretty for young women. The fan shape is bet ter suited for those of riper years.
