Here's to the new born year of The infant year of 1913 has many mysteries-joys, surprises, perhaps sorrows, locked up within its tiny bosom all profound secrets so far as we all are concerned. Though It is not given us to read and know what this new year may have in store for us as individuals or as a commu nevertheless there is much that we can do toward securing our own success and happiness and that of those with whom we come in contact. We may strive to improve the cassing hours by constant and earn-est effort. We may win the success we all covet by honorable means and hulld corselves up without pulling others down. We may strive to co operate with our business associates in a give-and-take spirit, for the upbuilding of our town, the development of the country round about, and our common interests. We may give our associates the cheery word and greet them with a pleasant countenance when we come to think of it, it is smile there and a thoughful act you der, and we not only bring good will

MOLALLA.

Another year has rolled around in the cycle of time and Molalia with its fifteen buildings during the year, a town of its population, has done well. Had Oregon City built so many houses per hundred population, she would have built about fivehundred and twenty five houses, with this comparative illustration it is evident that Molalla with its two railroads for will make a record breaker in pulldings.
