"Jake, I'm goin' to answer your ques tion by tellin you a story. Oncet t had to go down to Denver to get some assyln done I had struck some dirt that I thought might pan out purty good So I took some chunks with me and stirrted on my own borse. When I get within ten miles or so of the city It was gettin dark, and I put up at a tavers. My room was in an L to the buildin', and I could look right across to another L and into a winder, where there was a gal standin' before a lookn' glass combin' her hair. And, ber room bein lower than mine. I could see just how long it was. It reached to the floor and was thick as a sheaf off there's a feature about a woman to se your humble servant it's a fine sad of hair. And this gal's was glossy and wavy as the surface of a lake, and it shiped under the light o' them keroene lamps to bent the band. I fell in leve with her at occet-or, rather, I fell in love with her halr-and I vowed wouldn't leave the place till I'd made

The next mornin' I saw her go out and walk up the road. I jist went after ber, and when I caught up with her

I says, says t 'it's a fine mornin', miss." She looked down at the ground and didn't say nothin', so I said some more; 'No offense miss. I'm a miner from a around Georgetown, purty rough, out honest. I saw you combin' that wonderful head o' hair o' yourn, and' Did you? she said, kind o' fright-

Ladles don't usually appear before entiemen that way," she said, so mod stilke that I wanted to put redbor olers in my eyes for lookin' at it. and I told her that her hair was se headld that she'd ought to wear own her back all the time. I axed or if I couldn't walk a ways with her, and she said she wasn't used to walkin' with gentlemen as she hadn't been introduced to, but I looked so good and thed and nice that she would of mind my walkin' a tittle ways.

-Want I got to tellin' her about what brought me to Denver, and she soled kind of interested when I told her I thought I'd struck paytn' dire. She said for my sake she hoped 1 reside't be disappointed. We was talkin when we come to a puddle. to she waited while I went ahead. for she had to lift her skirt a couple d lackes, and she was so modest that she wouldn't let me see her foot. you see, I had two things to love, her hair and her modesty, and there was n more of the last than the first. We united some time together, and I was gettin more and more in love all the time. But bimeby she came to s hause and went in, so I had to leave her at the door. I kep' watch to see her combin her hair ng'in, and toward evenin' she went into her room and took the hair down, and just us I was beginning to feast my eyes on it she closed the blinds.

"New, if that wasn't modesty I don't know what you'd eat! it.

"The next mornin' I saw her go out ig'in and joined her ag'in, tellin' her that I was goin' into town to get my simples assayed. She said she hoped ther'd turn out well and t must let her know I took the samples into Denver and left 'em there, to call for 'em in two days. While I was a-waitin' I saw lot of the gal with the long bair and did some courtin'-that is, I would 'a' done it it she hadn't been so deuced modest i accidentally touched her goin to have a fit.

When I went into Denver to get the manyer's report on my samples he told me there was not enough gold in a ton in lary a plug o' tobacco. I went back disappointed, but by this time I was so dead in love that I didn't mind ny setback in the other matter. I confided what the assayer said to the gal. and that was the last I saw of her in those parts Where she went I didn't Price 50c and $1.00. Heart to Heart Talks

BACKBONE.

There are times in the life of every man and woman when he or she must geht for the right.

The occasion comes to all when we must stand up and be counted on on able or the other.

it may not always seem convenient to do this, may not appear good policy. Yet in the fong run it is the only surse that wins

All of us in our hearts know what is right and instinctively love the man who stands for it. The world is full of eyes, ears and tongue, and sooner or later what we do will be known It will count in the world's opinion

And sooner or later the man or wo man who is right is going to be the victor. The man who says the contrary has not looked far enough

He is either a pessimist or a sophist, or both

It is a shortsighted policy that fails to reckon with the workings of the moral law

In all the universe there is no law that works truer or more certainly. The chief quality required to keep us loyal to this law is buckbone.

Not only does tied hate a coward but a coward hater himself This makes it unnolmous.

Moral cowardice is the worst cow ardice of all.

It is not enough to know the truth We must also live the truth. There are times when we must have the backbone to stand alone. The test comes which determines whether our armor plate is of temper ed steel or is full of blowholes. Occasion searchys us through and through, revenis us to ourselves, disovers whether our spines are made of gelatie or bone. Life is a trying out process. It brings to light every naw, every peculiarity, every crooked place in character.

The steel coil in the factory may appear perfect, yet contain a hidden depound over it at fifty miles an hour tate of James Rastall, deceased, has that defect will become apparent. The filed his final report and the County will probably involve wreck. not only to the rail, but to a trainload of human beings. tiffe is much the same sort of heavy nounding process that the locomotive purs on the rall. If there is a defect, the in our backbones it will be made evident. It may also entail wreck, and the gitt of it is that the wreck will inevitably involve others. Backboor is to character what the rail is to the railroad. Beware of the hidden mass, for they are the points at which the break will come.
