

LEMONS TUMBLING FAST IN VALUES

Local lemons have broken into the market and the variety known as Early Harvest is being offered at 85 to 75 cents per crate...

The one exception to high prices in the fruit line is lemons, which have dropped from $10 a crate to from $5 to $5.50.

Green vegetables are continuing cheap, and a supply of green onions has come in to relieve the shortage in this line.

APPLES LEGITIMATE CROP FOR VALLEY

Apples in the Willamette Valley have been grown largely on a side line, and as a diversified crop, and in many years they have not proved very satisfactory.

This is due in many cases to a lack of proper methods of culture and to the choice of the wrong varieties.

The Willamette Valley can produce certain varieties of apples to the finest degree of perfection.

MARKET FOR MEATS SOMEWHAT BETTER

Receipts of livestock in Portland for the week have been: Cattle 1394, calves 132, hogs 2256, sheep 6372.

Cattle market last week steady to strong. Improved beef outlet had bullish effect on prices.

The hog market was steady to higher. One load of extra fine hogs sold at $5.40 Friday morning.

SUMMER WEATHER SENDING PRICES UP

Excessive hot weather has created a shortage in the fruit market, and prices have gone still further up the scale.

Any affectation whatsoever in dress implies in my mind a flaw in the understanding.

Dress yourself fine where others are fine and plain where others are plain, but take care always that your clothes are well made and fit you, for otherwise they will give you a very awkward air.

Good manners are to particular societies what good morals are to society in general—their cement and their security.—Lord Chesterfield.

BUTTER AND EGGS TO BECOME SCARCE

With eggs retailing at 26 cents a dozen and hard to get, and with butter selling at 32 cents a pound, the consumer will naturally be happy when he hears that there is a well-founded rumor in trade circles that butter is to rise to 35 cents, and that eggs are to rise to 30 cents.

for cream for ice-cream. A poor excuse is better than none. Local Oregon peaches, of good flavor and apparent soundness, are to be had on the market at from 35 cents a box up, and are meeting a ready sale.

Green vegetables are showing the heat, and are somewhat scarce. Prices are not increasing very much, however. Onions, which were hard to obtain, are now reasonably plentiful.

GOOD EGGS, MEATS ARE ON HIGH LIST

Eggs in the neighborhood of Oregon City—that is good eggs—are still scarce, and are being sold retail at 30 cents. Eggs are being bought at from 27 cents up, when they can be procured.

Good meat is also upon the scarce list, the warm weather and lack of proper refrigeration methods for keeping supply on hand combining to dull the market.

New sweet potatoes are making their appearance and are selling wholesale at seven cents. The stock is reported to be good.

Arizona cantaloupes are also in, and are being sold at $3 a crate. Though not over attractive in appearance, the fruit has an excellent flavor.

Local peaches, which are being offered plentifully, are sadly lacking in keeping qualities, and housekeepers who have purchased them for their looks found them spoiling upon their hands.

Green vegetables are still holding about the same, though green peas are apt to be subburned.

HUMUS IN THE SOIL

This Valuable Substance is Due to the Presence of Bacteria. We find a vast difference in the fertility of different soils, writes C. L. McArthur, assistant bacteriologist, Idaho experiment station.

As soon as this material reaches the soil it is attacked by millions of bacteria, which are known as the decomposition bacteria. These bacteria soon cause a great many changes in the material, each change tending to break down the complex into the more simple compounds.

Different classes of bacteria continue their work on this material after it has reached the form of humus, decomposing it still further and building plant food and other substances from it. Thus we see that humus is continually changing. It is never the same in two different fields, and it also differs from year to year in the same field.

The addition of manure to a field does a great deal toward the formation of humus. It not only adds decomposing matter to the soil, but it also adds large numbers of bacteria which form humus out of the material already in the soil.

DRESS AND MANNERS.

Good manners to those one does not love are no more a breach of truth than "your humble servant" at the bottom of a challenge is. They are universally agreed upon and understood to be things of course.

Dress yourself fine where others are fine and plain where others are plain, but take care always that your clothes are well made and fit you, for otherwise they will give you a very awkward air.

Good manners are to particular societies what good morals are to society in general—their cement and their security.—Lord Chesterfield.
