WHILE THE ENTIRE COUNTRY is interested in the high cost of living, the reports of commissions in New York and in Chicago might be studied with profit here in Oregon City.

The report of the Chicago commission seems to be nearer to the point, by showing that the profits of the retailer, as well as the commission man, must be reduced before there will be a reduction in the high cost of living.

The sentiment is growing that there are too many retail dealers. Formerly it was the prevailing opinion that the more retailers, the more competition and the lower selling price for the goods.

In Oregon City the same problem confronts the one who would study the high cost of living here. And the general answer is the same—that of distribution.

THE COMPLAINT is heard from the farmers of many parts of the county that there is no adequate market for their produce and that the agricultural possibilities of Clackamas county cannot be realized.

It is evident that a good solution of the marketing problem would go a long way toward insuring prosperity for Clackamas county.

That the fault is with the producer and not with the conditions is the opinion of many who have studied the situation.

To Those Just Married There are lots of young people who get married with very small means. Their very first care should be to provide as large a bank account as possible and then keep it intact.

one person joined the plan and in other communities the result was the same. Yet these very farmers who had the opportunity to market their product direct to the housewife with a small expense and with unusual profits turned down the offer and continued to complain that there is no market leading out of Clackamas county.

It is true that some sections of the county have begun to wake up to the changes which are around them. One district made a large shipment of cabbage and cauliflower to an eastern state last fall and in other communities the farmers are beginning to search for a wider market.

OUT FROM THE CAMP of the bond opponents comes the moral of the day. "It is only the automobile owners who want the bonds. The automobile owners are promoting the issue for their own selfish interests and for no other purpose."

These men never stop to measure the truth in their words. They have not stopped to find out that the only automobile association in the county, The Clackamas County Automobile Association, has never publicly endorsed the bonding plan.

GOVERNOR WEST has withdrawn his troops from the Milwaukee tavern after summoning the manager to his office and securing that man's request that hereafter he would operate his place with all due regard for the law.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the proposed bonds issue is that propagated in the general election pamphlet of 1919, by prominent grange leaders, Messrs Spence, Shaw, Leedy and Mason.

WEEKLY INDUSTRIAL REVIEW Oregon Development News in Line of Industries, Payrolls and Products of Labor and Enterprise.

The United Railways Co., part of the Hill system has been making a showing during the past week of revenues on the Linnton and Portland line, asking an increase of fares from five to ten cents, on the ground that costs nine cents to haul a passenger between those two points.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE J. W. Thomas Talks Bonds. MOLALLA, Ore., May 11.—(To the Editor of the Enterprise)—Having read everything up to date on the Pacific highway county bonding scheme for "good roads," as given out by the Morning Enterprise, and so far have almost kept out of print in the public discussion, but since in this case has not given consent to the county bonding for hard surfaced roads roads; neither will such insinuations against the tillers of the soil, nicknamed as "flip-floppers," "calamity shakers and shovers" scare many true Patrons of Husbandry into voting for the $600,000 road bonds.
