Girls Should Be Taught Practical Housekeeping at School

By Mrs. CHRISTINE FREDERICK, Author and Deruestic Scientist

HERE should be cooking classes in the schools for children nine, ten, eleven years old. At that stage they love making things, and we ought to take advantage of their instinct. When a girl gets into high school I believe she should devote two hours a week to a course in garding the use of funds subscribed were deputy game warden's salaraies homemaking, which should include actual practical experience. Each school should have a model flat, run in turn by groups of girls. THEN Red Cross society. EVERY GIRL WOULD HAVE THE DRILL OF BUYING, COOK-ING AND KEEPING HOUSE FOR A FAMILY INSTEAD OF MERELY ACQUIRING KNOWLEDGE OF A LOT OF ISOLATED RECIPES, AS TOO OFTEN HAPPENS IN THE CONVENTION-For a decree dissolving the bonds of AL COOKING CLASS.

Then a girl ought to learn not merely how to cook, but WHY to cook. That is, she ought to know about food elements, how to balance protein, fats, starches and sugars so as to obtain the most nutritive combinations at a single meal.

A VERY COMMON MISTAKE IS TO SUPPOSE THAT A DINNER COST-ING FIVE DOLLARS IS FIVE TIMES AS NOURISHING AS A DINNER COSTING ONE DOLLAR. PROBABLY THE LESS EXPENSIVE MEAL ACTUALLY CONTAINS MORE NOURISHMENT THAN THE OTHER.

Besides studying the preparation and composition of food every girl should learn how to buy it. She should go to market, accompanied by teacher or mother or experienced buyer, and learn how to select good, reasonably priced food. She should learn to stick to the semanable fruits the Germs and allows Nature to do her and vegetables.

"Other towns have provisions fatheir charters which declare that the town shall receive all the money collected within the city limits for roads," who will return the price if you said Mr. Hackett. "I see no reason why Oregon City should not have the same privilege. The money is collected here. It is our money and we should have the authority to say where it is to be spent. Money collected for roads in Oregon City may be spent in. the Sandy or the Wilsonville districts. I believe that the matter should be put before the voters of the city."

City Attorney Schuebel defended the lanse in the present charter under which the county turns over to the city 60 per cent of road money collected within the city limits. It would be folly to put such a charter amendment MAX TELFORD HOME DESTROYED before the voters at the present time, Mr. Schnobel declared as the question whether a city could take 100 per cent of the road money was now before the supreme court.

The meeting, which was called to take up the Griffith assessment case, was short. A hearing of the Griffith case was postponed owing to the fact that C. D. Latourette, Mr. Griffith's attorney, is in Los Angeles.
