ROM SALEM COMES THE ANNOUNCEMENT that the Marion county court would put in first class shape this year the Pacific highway as far north as the Clackamas county line. With a view of laying hardsurface, the court has contracted for 20,000 yards of hardsurfacing material to experiment with on one or two stretches of the road and the prospects are for many miles of hard surface before the end of the year.

While Marion county has not bonded itself, it has made much progress in building thoroughfares. The county court of Marion county since last fall has under the direction of a roadmaster improved about 15 miles of high-

Clackamas county should wake up to the situation. Multnomah county but in a majority of cases it was with the automobile driver. on the north has paved the Pacific highway practically from the Columbia to Clackamas county and now with the announcement of the improvement of well, which cost the lives of four, is of too recent a date to easily forget. In roads in the county to the south, the Pacific highway here will be one of the worse stretches of road in the Willamette valley.

While it is true that the county court proposes to gravel the road from to drivers who had only recently purchased machines. Oregon City through to Aurora, work has not yet begun and will probably not be completed until late in the summer. Between Oregon City and the the safety first movement among automobile owners, Multnomah county line one of the heaviest traveled roads in the county, the roads on both sides of the river are nothing more than a series of ruts, although the west side road was improved within the last four months.

The two California expositions will bring thousands of tourists to the coast this year and hundreds of automobile parties will go through the valley. As a matter of pride, if not good business, Clackamas county should think enough of the good opinions of these people to improve all the north and south highways.

Of course, Clackamas county will never have really good roads until hardsurface is laid through the county. Gravel on the Pacific highway may last for several years but it will be only a matter of time until it is pounded out of sight.

as from fear of public sentiment and loss of reputation.

In the matter of keeping national agreements, sentiment seems less well defined. Formerly no nation ever thought of keeping its pledges when they people. were contrary to its interest. During the past century there has been a decided advance in this particular. But Europe has always scoffed at such promises. When the United States promised to retire from Cuba, few of the foreign diplomats believed the pledge amounted to anything. But it did. Yet there are plenty of people in our country who would favor the breaking of any national pledge, if they felt it would temporarily help American in Here then appears the task of each citizen in the present world catastrophe. It is to do his share to creat public sentiment in favor of the most rigid keeping of national agreements. Breaking of international law should become as disgraceful as stealing money from a bank. Let it become a point also. of honor, to support no man for United States office unless he has a clean record on this world issue.

O THE ORDINARY OBSERVER, the sight of a jolly crowd of people at a ball game is a pleasant one. The antics of humorous or enthusiastic coachers, the yells of the crowd and the aid of a general romp makes the world seem like a very jolly place. Scenes like these seem a wholesome offset to the toilsome sides of life. Many a workingman's week is brightened.

But there are some persons to whom this philosophy does not appeal. Many Socialists argue that all this absorption in sports is worse than time wasted. It is a wicked device of capital, to divert the working people from interest in and attention to their wrong.

According to their theory, popular sports were devised in medieval or ancient times, as a device to quell popular disorders. The leaven of democracy was beginning to work. The kings and emperors saw that they must have an outlet for growing unrest. So they devised popular festivals, holidays, and athletic competitions. These took up popular energy, which would otherwise have gone into rioting, resolution ,and destruction of the established

Baseball and other sports, it is argued, are but the present day prepetuation of this trick of the moneyed classes to keep the working people in order. Could the ball games and other sports but be abolished, our people would stay

To select a name for a marching club is a problem. The Eugene Radiof the Lusitania raises again the question whether there is any such ators absorbed the best to indicate the booster spirit after the Rosarians got thing any longer as international law. The libraries and systems of on the map, the Salem Cherrians took a name that stood for a delightful feature of the Capital City, anybody who sees the Pheasants on the march will instinctively think of Albany. Now Oregon City wants a name for its There are in any collection of human being a great many who observe marchers, and, as the fields of flora, feather, fruit and general human enlaws only from fear of force. "There is not a note of parisanship in the definition of neutralty by A strong public sentiment is always enormously helpful in maintaining President Wilson," says Wilkes-Barre (Pa) News, in lauding the president's any kind of a code. In business life, law is not the only thing that keeps speech before a body of newspaper men. Well, why should or could there the banker or the merchant honest.
