UNEMPLOYED OF THIS CITY ARE TO BE FAVORED

WORSWICK PAVING COMPANY BRINGS PLANT HERE TO DO MAIN STREET JOB. EXPECT CONTRACT TO BE COMPLETED ABOUT SEPTEMBER 1 Will Use Fifty Men in Two Shifts of Eight Hours Each—Pay More Than on Multnomah County Road Work. The unemployed of Oregon City are to be employed as far as is possible upon the Main street paving contract by the Worswick Paving company, and they will be paid at least 30 cents per hour for an eight-hour shift, which is 5 cents an hour more than is being paid on the Multnomah county road work. This much was learned Thursday afternoon from W. V. Wellman, superintendent of construction for the Worswick company, who arrived here in charge of the equipment to be used in carrying out the Oregon City contract. The equipment occupied four cars and was brought here from Gearhart, Ore., where the company has just completed a contract for one mile of paving from the hotel to the railroad. It is in charge of a crew of 10 experienced men, who will proceed at once to erect the plant on the beach at the rear of the Frank Busch building, where the material will be mixed. Mr. Wellman estimates that it will take from one week to 10 days to erect the plant and get everything in readiness for active laying of the pavement. As soon as the plant is installed, the company expects to put on a crew of about 50 men, thus rushing the hopes of completing it within 25 days, or about Sept. 1. Besides the crew of 9 or 10 experienced men which it is necessary for the company to maintain on each job, Mr. Wellman says he will employ all the unskilled labor that can be accommodated, giving the preference in each instance to Oregon City residents, and will pay them 30 cents an hour. Two shifts of eight hours each will be on the job. Captain Worswick, head of the Worswick company, will spend considerable time in Oregon City during the life of his contract as he gives much personal supervision to all his contracts.

New Type Racing Boat Launched In Willamette Here

WILLIAM M'FARLAND COMPLETES FIRST FOUR-STEP HYDROPLANE ON COAST. What is probably the only four-step hydroplane on the coast was launched Monday morning in the Willamette river here. The sand bar at the foot of Twelfth made an ideal place for the launching which was done by simply backing the wagon on which the boat was taken to the river into the water until it floated free. The only difficulty encountered was getting the wagon down the steep, sandy road to the river. The boat was built for the Miller Parker company by William McFarland, one of the company's mechanics. It was built in his spare hours and the new theory of the exhaust forming a partial air cushion under the hull was used in its construction. The hull is 16 feet long and three and a half feet wide. The bow has the full V bottom shape, the second step is semi-V and the last is flat. This arrangement forms the keel and reduces the danger of capsizing. Two exhausts and two air pipes are situated under the boat forming an air cushion when the boat is at full speed, reducing the water resistance 50 per cent. Mr. McFarland claims that with the forty horsepower engine, the boat should develop at least 30 miles an hour. The engine is of the automobile type. Mr. McFarland claims the distinction of being the first builder of the tunnel stern boat on the Pacific coast. The new boat, which has not been named, when at full speed draws 25 inches and has an 18-inch propeller.

FAULKNER HERE TO FACE CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT

CONSTABLE FROST RETURNS FRIDAY NIGHT WITH PRISONER FROM COLORADO. STIFF FIGHT AGAINST CHARGE IS EXPECTED IN THE COURTS. Officer Is Forced to Leave Six-Months Old Virginia Faulkner, With Relatives of Father at Grand Junction, Colorado. Constable Jack Frost arrived in Oregon City at 5:30 o'clock Friday night after a 41-hour journey from Grand Junction, Colo., with Grover Faulkner, wanted here to answer a charge of non-support. He still probably be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Sievers the first of next week. Faulkner left his wife and home in Bolton three weeks ago with their six-month-old child. Local officers traced the two to Portland where Faulkner borrowed money from a friend and then followed him to Colorado, where Faulkner has relatives. Mrs. Faulkner wished to prosecute the case and District Attorney Hedges made application for extradition papers and secured what are believed to be the first issued here since non-support was made a felony by the 1913 legislature. Constable Frost left for Colorado 10 o'clock Thursday morning, July 22, and arrived at Denver Saturday. It was not until Tuesday afternoon, however, that he could secure a state warrant for the arrest of Faulkner and Wednesday the arrest was made at Grand Junction. Frost was unable to secure possession of the baby, Faulkner's relatives refusing to voluntarily surrender it. One o'clock Thursday morning Frost and Faulkner started back for Oregon City. During the time the constable was forced to wait for the state warrant, he made a brief ride trip to Oberlin, Kan., his former home. He had not been in that part of the country for 23 years and found the crops in excellent condition and business good. "But I'd rather be a poor man in Oregon than well to do in that part of Kansas," he said Friday night. Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner were married about three years ago and lived at Bolton. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Arms of Mackburg, and he has relatives at Bolton. About a month ago, they had domestic trouble when Mrs. Faulkner started for her parent's home with their child, Virginia. Faulkner went to the district attorney but Hedges succeeded in settling their troubles and the two returned to their home. Faulkner told Constable Frost that he intended to fight the charge against him, although his wife signed an affidavit that he had not provided for her for months. He would probably have opposed extradition from Colorado, Frost believes, if the local official had not been provided with a state warrant signed by the governor of Colorado and extradition papers from this state.

ALLEGED INSANE MAN JUMPS FROM WINDOW OF CAR

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM GUARD AND WANDERS FOR FEW MINUTES ABOUT CITY. CHIEF SHAW FINDS HIM ASKING STOREKEEPER FOR HIS HAT. Portland Police Hear of Escape From Oregon City and From Former Escort at Same Time—Examination Monday. Jumping from the window of a Southern Pacific car as it slowed down in the local yards, Chris Jacobson, held on a charge of insanity, spent a few brief minutes of liberty in Oregon City Saturday afternoon. Jacobson was being taken from Newport to Portland by Dr. Belt, a Newport physician. When the train neared Oregon City, Jacobson opened a window and quickly jumped to the ground. Dr. Belt went on into Portland. Jacobson probably went directly from the Southern Pacific truck to Main street and shortly before 5 o'clock wandered into the confectionery store of F. G. Lent on Main between Fifth and Sixth streets. "I want my hat," he demanded of Mr. Lent who was puzzled by the stranger's antics. Chief of Police Shaw overheard part of Jacobson's demands. "Come with me, I'll get your hat," he told Jacobson, as he led the man off toward the city jail. At the jail, Chief Shaw was unable to secure a coherent story from Jacobson. Instead of answering questions, he would only repeat them. Shaw notified Archie Leonard, of the Portland police department, and learned that Dr. Belt had reported the escape at headquarters only a few minutes before. Dr. Belt arrived here for Jacobson 6:30 o'clock Saturday night and left for Portland an hour later. Jacobson will be held in the Multnomah county jail until Monday when he will be examined. If found insane he will be taken to the Morningside hospital near Portland.

MT. PLEASANT TOTS IN GOOD PROGRAM

The Mt. Pleasant Commercial club rooms were crowded Saturday night at the entertainment when 40 children of the district presented a program of songs, fancy drills and folk dances. The affair was a success socially and financially. The proceeds will be used to finish the club rooms. The numbers which received much applause were the song, "Dublin Bay" by Clifford McLaine in costume, and "Three Little Maids from School," a selection from the opera "Mikado." Requests have been made to repeat the entire performance, considering the amount of work in connection with it, a few of the ladies have decided to give a garden party instead, when a number of the dances and drills will be given.

ONE OF STEPHENSON'S HORSES WAS RECENTLY INJURED WHILE WORKING WITH A CONSTRUCTION CREW ON THE FOREST, AND HAD TO BE SHOT. This insurance association is not a government institution, but was recently formed by the forest rangers of the California-Nevada district of the forest service, for the purpose of distributing the loss that occurs when saddle and pack animals owned by its members are killed or disabled. It is purely mutual in character, funds to pay losses being provided by means of a small quarterly assessment. Thus far the California rangers are the only ones who have formed a horse insurance association, but the subject is being agitated in other districts and it is expected that additional associations will be formed this summer.

DURING AUGUST, HE SAID YESTERDAY, HE WILL COACH HIS CAST AND MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE PRODUCTION AT THE HEILIG THEATRE EARLY IN SEPTEMBER. The play, which is based on the advantage of modern business methods and salesmanship over out-of-date systems and mere order-taking, has been completely rewritten. He has used the criticisms of the press made when "Tapping at the Door" was presented at Seattle and at Victoria as a guide in rewriting the play. The production is now about half an hour longer than when last presented.
