

A Display of Wisdom :

(Elbert Bede, in Cottage Grove Sentinel.)

This week the Sentinel carries for the first time the advertising of the Pacific Coast Biscuit company's new "Pake" biscuits. The advertising is well gotten up, tells some facts every Oregonian should know and gives the reader an appetite for the foods advertised.

But this is not to be an ad for the Pacific Coast Biscuit company.

From the viewpoint of the Sentinel, every Oregonian should eat biscuits made in Oregon in preference to those made in the east, everything else being equal. Doubtless the biscuit company takes the same view.

From the viewpoint of the Sentinel, Oregon merchants should handle only home produced biscuits — and again the biscuit makers will probably agree with us.

From our viewpoint, Oregonians should wear none but Oregon-made clothes, should drink none but Oregon roasted coffee, should sleep on none but Oregon-made mattresses and should eat no bread not made of Oregon flour.

If merchants carried none but Oregon-made goods when they could be secured it is probable that their customers would get into the habit of using no others.

Why does the Oregon merchant carry eastern-made goods when he can get Oregon-made goods of the same quality? Why in the name of common sense does he carry Royal Baking Powder, National Biscuits, Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing, Ostermattresses, Helm's 57 Varieties, Chase & Sanborn Coffee, 3 in 1 Oil, Old Dutch Cleanser, Nabisco Wafers, Ivory soap, Harrington Hall coffee, L. L. May's seeds, Campbell's soup and a few hundred other eastern-made articles if just as good articles in the same line are made in Oregon?

It is because the buyer wants these goods and it is the merchant's business to sell what the buyer wants.

Why does the buyer want these eastern-made articles? Surely pure patriotism should impel him to wish for Oregon-made goods.

The reason that the buyer wants these goods is largely because he has seen the names of these goods in display and other kinds of type so often that he asks for that kind without really knowing why. He has tried them, knows that they are good as the advertising says they are, and he keeps on buying because the advertising tells him to.

There is a solution for this problem and the eastern manufacturer who ships his goods from the Mississippi river and Atlantic seaboard and sells them in competition with Oregon-made goods has shown what it is.

It is to impress upon the buyer the name of Oregon-made goods that he will look for them just as he now does for Royal Baking Powder, Nabisco Wafers, National Biscuits, Kirschbaum clothing and other nationally advertised articles. Then the local merchant will not have to carry eastern-made goods to satisfy his customers.

It will not do any good for coast manufacturers to go to sleep theorizing that coast people should buy coast-made goods from patriotic motives.

While they are sleeping someone in Cottage Grove may be reading a magazine, a Portland newspaper, or the Cottage Grove Sentinel. A display line catches his eye. The next day he buys a Kirschbaum suit because that is what the display line told him to buy.

Of course he could get just as good clothes made in Oregon of Oregon wool but he has never seen a display line that would lead him to believe that woolen goods are even made in Oregon — consequently the money spent for that suit goes to pay laborers who spend all their money on the other side of the continent.

Oregon manufacturers have got to beat eastern manufacturers at their own game.

They have got to change indifference to Oregon-made goods into a demand for them.

The Pacific Coast Biscuit company has chosen wisely in using the country newspaper in its campaign as the medium with which it will create a demand.

He said the world crisis referred to the present European war.

TEMPERANCE MEETING AT NEWBERG ENDS

NEWBERG, Ore., Oct. 7.—The Woman's Christian Temperance union state convention closed tonight with an address by Governor Withycombe on "Education," one by Attorney General Brown on "Law Enforcement," and one by Daniel Poling of Boston on "Mothers of Men."

The most notable address of the convention was that of Mrs. Lillian Mitchener, state president of the W. C. T. U. of Kansas, last night. She devoted much of the time to a relation of the experiences of Kansas in making the prohibition law effective. To a "red-headed Quaker," Governor Stubbs, she gave much of the credit of this achievement. Mrs. Mitchener said Governor Stubbs turned back all applications and demands made upon him by men interested in the liquor business, directly or indirectly, for a lenient enforcement of the law with a demand upon them to "repeal the law if it were not satisfactory, declaring that he was sworn to enforce the law when he took the oath of office.

All of the old officers were re-elected as follows:

Mrs. Jennie M. Kemp, of Portland, president; Mrs. Henrietta Brown, of Albany, vice president; Mrs. Mary D. Russel of Portland, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Madge Means, of Sheds, recording secretary, and Mrs. Margaret Houston, of Portland, treasurer.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Grover Cleveland Alexander won his game from the Boston Red Sox today, but the victory was far from being the impressive one his team mates of the Philadelphia Nationals had predicted.

Through a sequence of plays as unusual as ever seen upon a ball field the Phillies won by 3 to 1.

They made these three runs on five of the flukiest hits the game has ever known. It has been predicted the short outfield would prove the winning factor for the locals in their own little park out on Broad street, but it was the infield, wet and heavy from 15 hours of rain, that turned the tide in their favor.

It was a mediocre ball game—this first of the big series—for, despite the few errors of commission, there were several of omission, and two or three plays which will go down in baseball history as tinged with an ivory hue. Strangely enough, it was the Red Sox, veterans in batting for the highest honors of the game, who were guilty of the slips, although offending individuals were new members of the team.

The young twirler of the Sox ("Longshore," they call him in Boston) pitched a splendid game, but all the luck was against him. The "breaks," which went the way of the Phillies, seemed to upset him at times and his fielding was shaky.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Only one game stands tonight between the Boston Americans and the baseball championship of the world. For the third successive time they defeated the Philadelphia Athletics today by the same score that has marked all of the Red Sox victories—2 to 1.

Tomorrow the scene of the battle shifts back to Philadelphia, where Alexander undoubtedly will be called upon to pitch his third game of the series in an effort to stem the tide of Red Sox success. The two teams left for the Pennsylvania metropolises early tonight, the Phillies fairly deep in gloom and the Red Sox confident that the championship is but a step away.

Alexander is the last hope of the Phillies. He is ready and anxious to go back in the box tomorrow and is sure to give a good account of himself. The Philadelphia batters took rashly and made more hits than they had registered in any one of the three previous conflicts.

But "Gavy" Cravath sent Lewis back to the left field fence again today to catch a drive that on the Philadelphia grounds would have been a hit into the stands and good for the circuit. A little luck in placing these long hits tomorrow would make all the difference in the world behind a pitcher of Alexander's ability, and there are many students of the game tonight who don't share the confidence of the Red Sox that tomorrow's contest will be the last.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—A home run clouted over the center-field fence by Harry Hooper, this afternoon put a clinch on the claim of the Boston American league club to the baseball championship of the world. The home run marked the final scoring effort of the 1915 world's series and gave the deciding game to the Boston Red Sox by a score of 5 to 4. Four games for the Red Sox to one for the National league champions was the game record for the series.

Today's game was one to stir the blood. It was a battle from the jump, with the issue ever in doubt. Twice it seemed that Philadelphia had a winning margin, but twice the Red Sox hammered their way to the front. For the first time in the series the hum of the homer was heard in the land. The Boston hitters sent three balls hurtling to the center-field stands for the circuit. Hooper got two of the home run smashes and Lewis another.

The first ball went far wide of the plate. Likewise the second and the third. The maddened throng knew what this meant, and they howled in derisive delight as the fourth straight pitch the star centerfielder of the Red Sox trotted to first.

This put the issue squarely up to Hobbittel, lanky guardian of the Sox inner corner, and Alexander faced him with more confidence.

It was three and one on "Hobby" when the first baseman sent a slow bouncer toward second. The crowd feared a double play and the lanky howling died away. But Speaker had taken a flying start with Hooper and the two Boston runners were safe on third and second as leffoh tossed "Hobby" out at first.

Now came to bat one "Duffy" Lewis, left fielder extraordinary and of some known ability as a breaker-up of ball games.

"Duffy" already had made two hits in three trips to the plate, two stringing ones beyond the Phillies' line of inner defense, but this decidedly healthy batting average of .667 did not deter him in the least.

Lewis met the ball with a smashing crack and it flashed over second base, a gray, white streak that no defensive Philly could reach, and Hooper raced across the plate with a historic run. It gave the game to the Red Sox by 2 to 1 and the advantage of the series by the same margin of games won and lost—two for the Red Sox and one for the Phillies.

With the "Big Fellow" defeated in this "breaking" game of the 1915 conflict between the title bearers of the two major league, the Boston players and their supporters tonight are willing to wager at almost any odds that the home team will win the series.

MRS. DUNIWAY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway, 81 years old, sister of the late Harvey W. Scott and known as the "mother of woman suffrage in Oregon," died at Good Samaritan hospital at 12:50 o'clock Monday morning, following an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Duniway underwent an operation recently for an infection in her foot, and for some time there had been virtually no hope of her recovery.

At the bedside at the time of her death were Ralph R. Duniway and Dr. C. A. Duniway, sons, Dr. J. C. Zan and the nurse.

Mrs. Duniway was one of a family of many children. Two sisters are living in Portland and one half sister, Mrs. D. C. Lattourette lives at Oregon City.

1,002,029,000 BUSHELS WHEAT CROP ESTIMATE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—One billion, two million and twenty-nine thousand bushels of wheat is America's total 1915 wheat crop, according to the department of agriculture October estimates, issued today. This is an increase of 22,700,000 bushels over the September estimates. The total corn crop was placed at 3,025,159,000 and the oats 1,517,478,000 bushels.

This is the first time in history that the United States yield of wheat has been figured at over 1,000,000,000 bushels.

This increase is due in part to the decreased acreage planted to cotton, and an increased acreage planted to wheat.

COOS COUNTY HEARS GOOD ROADS ARGUMENT

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN IS NOW IN PROGRESS IN SOUTHERN PART OF STATE.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 8.—A party made up of Coos county commissioners, United States Road Engineer B. H. Burrell, State Highway Engineer Cantine and Charles Hall, president of the Coos Bay Good Roads association, left this morning in an automobile to tour the roads of the county. A meeting was held tonight at Coquille, and another will be held tomorrow night at Myrtle Point.

At the good roads meeting at North Bend yesterday afternoon, and at the gathering of the Fellowship club last night, visiting officials spoke. Congressman W. C. Hawley was also present. It is not likely that an attempt will be made to put to a vote this fall the proposition to bond the county. Further educational work on good roads will first be carried on.

J. H. Austin, of Gardiner, as representative of the people of western Douglas county, said at the good roads meeting that a hard surface highway would be built from Winchester Bay to the Pacific highway, and said the people of Umpqua are willing to meet Coos county at any point, if it were desired to build from Coos Bay north, and make a coast outlet to the interior.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The big batter faced the big pitcher at a crucial moment of the world's series between the Philadelphia Nationals and the Boston Americans today, and the pitcher declined the challenge. It was in the thrilling last half of the ninth inning. The score of the third game of the world's series was a tie.

Harry Hooper, feet of foot, was on second base, with only one out, when Tris Speaker stepped to the plate and turned a determined face to Grover Cleveland Alexander.

The first ball went far wide of the plate. Likewise the second and the third. The maddened throng knew what this meant, and they howled in derisive delight as the fourth straight pitch the star centerfielder of the Red Sox trotted to first.

PHONE INTERCHANGE IN PORTLAND ORDERED

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION RULING NOW INCLUDES ALL HOTELS.

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 7.—All hotels in Portland equipped with telephones by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company and the Home Telephone & Telegraph company hereafter will be entitled to an interchange of traffic between the two rival systems upon the same basis as is now afforded at the Oregon Hotel.

This order was handed down today by the Oregon State Public Service commission following a hearing in the cases of the Oregon and Perkins hotels. It is a reiteration of one made some time ago in the Oregon hotel case, but is broadened in scope to include the complaint of the Perkins.

Coincident with the ultimatum issued to the telephone companies, the commission severely censures the Pacific system for its tactics in opposing the commission's previous ruling, and demands that the Home company at once remove so-called "jackbox" devices installed in a large number of places in Portland to permit the interchange of telephone calls between its lines and those of the Pacific.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BEHIND SAYS MODERATOR

REV. E. S. BOLLINGER DECLARES OTHER DENOMINATIONS GAINING STEADILY.

PLANS FOR NEW BUILDING AT CORVALLIS ARE MADE HERE

Dr. C. J. Bushnell, President of Pacific University, Says Christian College Powerful Force For World Peace.

The last of the delegates attending the 67th annual meeting of the Congregational conference of Oregon arrived in Oregon City Wednesday morning until almost 100 ministers and laymen are here for the session which closes tonight. Wednesday was a day replete with splendid addresses and discussions by prominent ministers.

Dr. H. H. Wikoff, secretary of the Congregational Church Building society, with headquarters in San Francisco, pointed out the uses of the various funds of the church and that they could be used for no other than the specified purposes. He said that the church building fund now totals almost $800,000 from which the church receives an annual revenue of about $88,000, whereas it could use $170,000.

this amount being the actual sum needed to properly carry forward the extension work.

Annual Address Delivered. Rev. E. S. Bollinger, of Portland, moderator of the conference, delivered his annual address, giving a history of the Congregational church and its development for the past 20 years, and commented on the work in Oregon during the past 10 years. He said that Congregationalism in this state had not kept pace with the other denominations, nor with the Congregational church in other states. Mr. Bollinger urged greater team work as the one great need in this state, in union with the other states of the Pacific northwest.

He said that a new church should be built at Corvallis and the organization placed in better and more substantial condition. Mr. Bollinger recommended that a fund of $5,000 be raised in Oregon, to which the Home Missionary society would add $15,000 this total sum to be used for the development of new projects in Oregon. He further recommended a missionary for Portland. In his review of the history of the Congregational church in Oregon, Moderator Bollinger paid quite a tribute to the late Rev. George H. Atkinson, the first settled pastor of the Congregational church in Oregon City, who had organized many of the churches of that denomination in Oregon and Washington.

Corvallis Needs New Church. The great need of a better Congregational church at Corvallis was shown conclusively in the address of Rev. E. T. Sherman, the pastor, who told of the opportunities before the church in that student town. He said that the work of the church should be in an effort to make religious leaders out of the students as they go from the college to till the soil and become leaders in an agricultural and business way. He said that his present church was the poorest building and in the poorest location in Corvallis.

It is, but despite this it had shown the greatest gain in membership of any Congregational church in Oregon outside Portland during the last year.

The spirit of the conference seemed very friendly to the Corvallis plant, and the toasts during the noon luncheon bordered very strongly on this matter, several voluntary contributions being offered to further the work. It is the plan of the Corvallis people to raise $5,000 and to this the church building society will add a like sum, and a further sum of $5,000 is promised with which to build a new church that when all the rooms are thrown into one as the plans provide, it will have a seating capacity of over 700. A building site is to be secured from the funds realized from the sale of the present church building.

Church is Social Center. Rev. E. A. Harris held the rapt attention of his hearers when he recited his experience of making a social center out of the church at Hillsboro, entirely against the wishes and orders of his church board, but how all obstacles had been overcome and what great work was at present being accomplished.

He said that when he went to Hillsboro he was confronted with an "old foggy board" that did not want to see new and modern ideas inaugurated, but a demand from the outside becoming so strong he had proceeded against all this objection, even having to go outside his church to get the needed assistance. He had established a gymnasium and other rooms for the entertainment and instruction of the young people, until today over 350 young people of the town were availing themselves of the church's opportunities, many of them being from other churches, among the number, Catholics.

An enlightening and instructive feature of the morning program was the Bible study lecture on "The Gospel in the Prophets," by Dr. R. C. Brooks of Berkeley, Cal. He said that religion is not added on to man; it is elemental, and just as much a part of man as the physical life. "The mind of man was made for the truth of God," and "We cannot make a church of God by putting His name upon it, but by putting His spirit within it," were two of the apt sayings of Rev. Mr. Brooks.

The noon luncheon was attended by 150 persons, Rev. George Nelson Esq. wards, acting as toastmaster in the absence of Rev. James Elvin, of Salem. Toasts were responded to by a number of the ministers and laymen.

Christian College Force For Peace. The afternoon program was opened by Dr. C. J. Bushnell, president of the Pacific University, Forest Grove, who spoke on the function of the Christian college, saying it was the greatest force for universal peace, even more so than all the armies and navies of the world. He said that if Christian colleges were established throughout the universe there would be no need of the armies and navies. He declared that our intellectual and spiritual life was being relegated to the rear in our battles for wealth.

The Spirit of Co-operation, was the subject discussed by Supt. W. W. Scudder, of Seattle, and told of the work being accomplished in the state of Washington through the extension council of the various denominations. When the need of a new church is felt in a certain locality this extension council surveys the same and designates what church should go in there and form its organization, all the other denominations agreeing to keep out. While some sort of an arrangement exists in Oregon, still it is not to the extent that it is binding and not generally observed by the denominations.

Mrs. R. C. Brooks delighted the congregation with a well rendered solo in beautiful mezzo-soprano voice.

Needs of Ministers Defined. Dr. R. C. Brooks shot home some truths in his talk on "What a Modern Church Expects of Its Ministers and What We Are Doing to Meet That Expectation." He said there were six things that every church ought to have:

First—Ministers who are capable of reinterpreting the Bible.
Second—Men who can build a house of faith; the tent of faith is the intellectual and moral application to practical life.
Third—The requirement—ministers who are really educators.
Fourth—They must be a genuine factor in our local activities.
Fifth—Men who can help Christianize the social order—not taking the front rank themselves, but developing young men and women who can do so.
Sixth—Ministers who really will the business of evangelizing the world.
The afternoon program concluded with an address on "Christianity and
