

$2,000,000 NOW ESTIMATED LOSS FROM BIG FLOOD

WIDE AREA IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SUFFERS FROM RECORD HIGH WATER.

RAILROADS PARTLY RESTORE SERVICE TO LOS ANGELES

Clearing Weather is Predicted for Today—Arizona Also is in Path of Storm and Colorado River Continues to Rise.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—Snow storms in the mountain regions, accompanied by falling temperatures and clearing weather in the valley sections of Southern California gave some relief tonight from the flood conditions resulting from the heavy rain which has fallen in this section since last Saturday, with only occasional lulls.

Railroad service had been restored late today on some of the railroad lines entering Los Angeles.

Railroad officials, representatives of other public utility corporations and individuals were making every effort to repair the damage, which, according to estimates, will mean a loss of approximately $2,000,000.

Dozens of bridges have been washed away, many others have been weakened by the flood water, railroad tracks have been washed out and long stretches of state and county highways have been undermined.

Several towns which were isolated by the floods reported a scarcity of food, but with railroad service gradually restored it was thought this condition would be remedied before there is any serious shortage.

The local government weather forecaster said late today that the storm was practically over. He predicted clearing weather tomorrow.

Arizona also was in the path of the storm and the Colorado river was expected to reach the 26-foot stage near Yuma before midnight.

One man was drowned in the Salt River, near Phoenix, Ariz., today.

Both the coast and valley lines of the Southern Pacific railroad were opened for traffic today between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Southern Pacific overland trains, which had been delayed at Yuma, Ariz., moved as far as Indio, Cal., 125 miles from here, late today. Washouts west of Indio made further progress impossible.

Telegraphic communication with San Diego was restored early tonight.

LOWER RIVER TRAFFIC IS MADE DANGEROUS

ICE IS THICK AND WIND STRONG ON COLUMBIA AND LOWER WILLAMETTE

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 17.—Heavy easterly winds combined with the floating ice today made navigation of the Willamette and Columbia rivers dangerous.

The Associated Oil tanker William F. Herrin was unable to get away from her dock at Linton this morning and after two hours of trying to start the big craft, Captain Engvall sent to Portland for a towboat, the Oklahoma being sent down to start her.

Astoria and Vancouver ferry services were abandoned by the Harkins Transportation company this morning, as the ice is now too thick and heavy for wooden river steamers to buck. The steamer Jessie Harkins has been running in place of the Vancouver ferry, but was pulled off at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The steamer Undine and Lurline have been making daylight trips to Astoria but will be tied up this afternoon.

Only four steamers are left in operation. The steamers America and Irlanda are continuing to St. Helens, as the Willamette slough is not frozen over. The Oregon City Transportation company is still running the steamers Oregon and Grahamona to Salem, the upper Willamette being unaffected by the cold.

"In traveling over seven miles of trail out from West Fork yesterday," says the Roseburg Review, "Pete Taylor, the local train dispatcher, saw 26 deer along the creeks. The animals are coming down in numbers from the mountains where the snow is too deep for securing feed."

JAMES WEST LOSES HIS SUIT AGAINST SCHOOL DISTRICT

TEACHER WHOSE CONTRACT WAS CANCELLED BY BOARD OUT OF COURT ON DEMURRER

James West, the teacher who brought a suit against the school district for salary on a canceled contract, was thrown out of court Monday when Circuit Judge Campbell upheld a demurrer filed by Gilbert L. Hedges, attorney for the district. The court gave West five days in which to make a second appearance in court. E. A. Baker, of Portland, was his attorney.

The school district alleged that West's complaint did not contain facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. He was engaged as a teacher last summer, with the understanding that he could produce sufficient and properly registered certificates, and a contract was signed. Later, when he could not show the registered certificates, the school board canceled his contract. West, however, showed up on the opening day of school, prepared to take up the work, but the school board stood by its decision.

It was contended that if the board had employed West, the Oregon City high school would not have fulfilled the requirements of a standard high school, as outlined by the state department of public instruction.

Local attorneys who have watched the case, say that following the decision of Judge Campbell, West will be unable to bring a second suit.

GALE AND FLOODS SWEEP CALIFORNIA

TORNADO BLOWS DOWN 400 OIL DERRICKS AND RIVERS ARE OUT OF BANKS.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Jan. 17.—Sweeping with the violence of a tornado, a southwest gale blew for three hours in the Midway oil district, starting at 9 o'clock this afternoon, destroying property estimated at $250,000. More than 400 derricks were blown down and several engine-houses in the oil fields were wrecked.

The San Francisco-Kittick boiler house was wrecked in an explosion when a crown block went crashing through the immense boiler.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—Nearly every stream and river in Southern California was flooded tonight as the result of rain, which has been falling almost continually since Saturday night. Residents were marooned at many places, streetcar and railroad traffic demoralized and numerous accidents resulted. The local government weather bureau predicted late today that the rain would continue to night and tomorrow.

Country Creamery Has Big Business

MADE OVER FIFTY-SEVEN THOUSAND POUNDS BUTTER IN DECEMBER—SNOW BLOCKADE INTERFERED.

During the month of December the Clear Creek Creamery sold $17,175.49 worth of butter, and not a very good price for butter either, owing to the times and market condition.

The total amount of cream received during the month was 142,688 pounds. The average daily amount of butter made was 57,169 pounds.

Most of the butter from this creamery is sold to customers in Portland; some in Sellwood, Milwaukie and Oregon City, but at the present time the salesmen and assistants are finding much difficulty in getting through snow blockade to make their deliveries, as well as the men who have winter weather to get the cream, and find that it is no "picnic" while the thermometer is standing at 25 or 28, and occasionally much lower.

Stafford is at present contributing about 900 gallons of cream each week, with Eagle Creek next on the list. It has been necessary to send an auto truck to Stafford to meet the wagons in order to get the cream to the creamery on time, and the men gathering this cream have braved the cold and snow, succeeding in getting over the snowdrifts with their load of cream to the creamery.

People eating this butter perhaps do not realize the difficulty with which the cream reaches the churn, or of the little band of men who go out in all sorts of weather to procure it.

The salesman and assistant have had much difficulty to overcome since the snow blockade in Portland. Reaching Milwaukie by a large truck, and from there to Bybee Avenue by means of mule and bobbed, and finally using the little Ford delivery. The delivery man has had to "dig" his way through the snow two and four feet deep since the snow blockade.

TAFT, LANE, GARRISON, NAMED FOR SUPREME BENCH

Top to Bottom: GARRISON, TAFT, LANE

In the newspaper discussions of a possible successor to the late Supreme Court Justice Joseph R. Lamar the names of former President Taft, Secretary of War Garrison and Secretary of the Interior Lane have been mentioned frequently. Mr. Taft had experience on the federal bench before assuming office as president of the Philippine commission and acquired a high reputation as a jurist. Mr. Garrison was vice chancellor of New Jersey before he took his present office. Mr. Lane has never held judicial office, but his legal qualifications are undoubted.

COLLEGE GIRLS WALK 22 MILES IN SNOW

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON SEXTET REFUSES TO WAIT FOR DELAYED TRAINS.

Eugene, Ore., Jan. 15.—Unwilling to wait for delayed trains and undaunted by the freezing weather and five inches of snow covering the ground, six university women members of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority, left at noon yesterday on a hiking jaunt to Cottage Grove, 22 miles south of Eugene.

The trip was undertaken at noon. Six hours later the young women arrived at Cottage Grove, according to a telegram received from them today. They dressed warmly for the journey in heavy coats and donned "high tops" for cutting the sleety roads. They spent today visiting the parents of Miss Esther Hill, and will return tonight.

The Tall Hat.

The tall hat, variously called "chimney-pot," "stovepipe," "cylinder" and what not, became fashionable in Paris in 1790, soon after the death of Franklin, in whose honor it was known as "chapeau Franklin." In spite of numberless changes of style, it has maintained its ground ever since, unexpected as such a result would have seemed at its first introduction. For a time this style of hat was considered revolutionary in Germany and Russia. Any one wearing a "cylinder" was liable to punishment, but the evil reputation soon passed away, and the tall, stiff hat, the ugliest head covering that was ever worn and the most ridiculed, outlived all other styles.

Musical Note.

A thief was lately caught breaking into a song. He had already got through the first two bars when a policeman came out of an area and hit him with his staff. Several notes were found upon him—London Mail.

Music of the Spheres.

The rising and the setting of the sun clearly prove that this globe is carried round in the space of twenty-four hours in an eternal and never ending circuit, and with incredible swiftness. I am not able to say whether the sound emitted by the whirling about of so great a mass be excessive and therefore far beyond what our ears can perceive, nor, indeed, whether the resounding of so many stars, all carried on at the same time and revolving in their orbits, may not produce a delightful harmony of incredible sweetness. To us, who are in the interior, the world appears to glide silently along both by day and by night.—Paley.

Cholera Morbus.

Inflammation of the stomach and bowels caused by poison in the digesta is called cholera morbus. It is especially liable to occur during hot weather followed by cool nights. It is chiefly caused by eating indigestible foods, such as raw vegetables, under-ripe or overripe fruits and spoiled meats.

SIX-YEAR OLD HAD CROUP.

"I have a little girl six years old who has a great deal of trouble with croup," writes W. E. Curry of Evansville, Ind. "I have used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound instant relief for her. My wife and I also use it and will say it is the best cure that I ever saw." Those terrible coughs that seem to tear one to pieces yield to Foley's Honey and Tar. Jones Drug Co. (Adv.)

MUCH TIMBER IS FELLED BY WIND IN THE CASCADES

HUNTER REPORTS 5,000,000 FEET OUT OF 12,000,000 ON ONE CLAIM IS DOWN.

FALLING TREES MAKES NOISE LIKE CANNONADING, HE SAYS

Willamette Valley Southern Unable to Reach Molalla Because of Timber Which Has Fallen Across Its Track.

MOLALLA, Ore., Jan. 17.—One of the severest storms known in this section for years has done heavy damage to standing timber. A tract known as the Schulstad claim, which cradled 12,000,000 feet, is reported by Fred Schafer, a sawmill man who was hunting logs in that vicinity Sunday, to have lost at least 5,000,000 feet of timber, which was blown down. In many places the trees are piled 20 feet high.

On another tract of 50 acres it could not see a standing tree. He said there was a continuous cannonading of falling trees. There was not an interval of five minutes without the sound of falling trees. The timber in some places fell to the Collins tract.

Albert Engle, who lives the nearest to this section, reported that the roof had blown off his barn.

For two days Molalla has had no mail. The Willamette Valley Southern was to have commenced carrying mail on Sunday, but was unable to get a train through on account of the many trees across the tracks. Many telephone lines are down.

OUR MISNAMED RUINS.

The Mesa Verde Cliff Dwellings Are Really Complete Towns.

Many visitors to the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde national park, in southwestern Colorado, says a government publication, are astonished to find that what is commonly described as a dwelling is not properly a dwelling at all, but a village or city.

The celebrated Cliff Palace is not a palace. Neither is Spruce Tree House a house, nor Balcony House a house. Each of these is a complete town which once, in the dim ages before the earliest Indian tradition, was an organized community, often of considerable size.

The arrangement of houses in a cliff dwelling of the size of Cliff Palace, for example, is characteristic and but a faintly associated with the distribution of the social divisions of the inhabitants. The population was composed of a number of units, possibly clans each of which had its own social organization more or less distinct from others, a condition that appears in the arrangement of rooms. The rooms occupied by a clan were not necessarily connected, although generally neighboring rooms were distinguished from one another by their uses.

In a Maori Wearing House.

Among the Maoris sometimes in the whale mutton (the woining house), a building in which the young of both sexes assembled for play, songs, dances, etc., there would be at stated times a meeting. When the fires burned low a girl would stand up in the dark and say: "I love So-and-so. I want him for my husband if he coughed (sign of assent) or said 'Yes' it was well; if only dead silence she covered her head with her robe and was ashamed. This was not often, as she generally had managed to ascertain, either by her own inquiry or by sending a girl friend, if the proposal was acceptable. On the other hand, sometimes a mother would attend and say: 'I want So-and-so for my son.' If not acceptable there was generally nocking, and she was told to let the young people have their house (the woining house) to themselves.

His Master Stroke.

"George Ferguson," said his wife, looking with crushing scorn at the gaudy ring he had bought at a special sale. "I wonder if ever in your life you know a bargain when you saw it?"

The case was critical. Mr. Ferguson saw that something bold and decisive must be done, and his mind worked quickly. "Why, yes, Laura," he said. "When I wanted a wife I picked out the nicest, sweetest little woman in the whole world, and I got the best bargain any man ever got. There, there, pet!"—Chicago Tribune.

Sitting in Judgment.

The admonition "Judge not that ye be not judged" is valid only at those rare times when we are feeling humble and insignificant. On these rare occasions we find the attitude, "Who am I that I should pass judgment upon my fellow men?" But the normal attitude is: "Who are my fellow men that I should refrain from passing judgment upon them?"—Life.

CONARROES ARE DIVORCED.

Lost His Bearings.

It was an English skipper of the olden time who, having knowledge beyond the seeming needs, as he could read and use the charts, was dispatched to Rotterdam. The skipper had never been to Rotterdam before, so after getting over the bar and well away to the east he produced his charts and made a learned inspection, but the charts had been a long time in the locker and circumstances combined to alarm him extremely. He went up on deck and called to his mate, "Put her about; the rats have eaten Holland!"

A Reasonable Proposition.

Bumper: You owe me $20,000, which you say you can't pay. Why don't you marry Miss Odette? She's worth twice that amount. Jumper: No, I can't do that. But you might marry her your self and pay me the difference.—Fingende Haetter

Beauty.

When a beautiful soul harmonizes with a beautiful form, and the two are fast in one mold, that will be the fairest of sights to him who has an eye to see.—Plato

Cause Enough.

"What made him angry when he was telephoning to the lawyers about his father's will?" "He was out of it."

A LUCKY STONE.

Maybe the Part It Played Was Merely That of Coincidence.

In his book, "The Magic of Jewels and Charms," George F. Kings relates the little story of a lucky stone and the adventures of its owners.

"Some years ago a meteorite was given to Edward Heron Allen, the famous writer on palmistry and the violin, and this gift had always worn it about him. One morning he awoke to find that the entire roof above him had fallen in, except just that portion over his bed.

"He told the story to one of the best known ladies in Boston, one who is known for her public spirit, her love of art and her faultless manner of entertaining. This lady successfully urged Allen to give her the meteorite.

"A few days later, while out driving a great truck with two runaway horses attached to it struck her carriage. In strictly she missed her muff to protect her face. The muff was almost cut in two, but the lady was not hurt. A few days later, while she was walking under some scaffolding, it fell, and the open part where the hoists went up proved to be just where she stood. Although surrounded by ruin, she remained unharmed."

Whether the stone was a factor in averting disaster to its owners in their moments of peril is, however, a matter apart from the facts in the case.

PIONEER CLIFF HOUSE TO BE TORN DOWN TO MAKE ROOM FOR MILL

HOTEL ERECTED ABOUT 1850 WAS SCENE OF MANY BALLS AND BANQUETS YEARS AGO.

The Cliff House, built about 1850 and for many years one of the leading hotels of the entire northwest, is to be torn down to make room for the $750,000 addition to the plant of the Hawley Pulp & Paper company.

The exact date of the erection of the hotel is one of those facts of pioneer Oregon history that seems to be lost, but it was probably either in the late '40's or early '50's.

For many years it was the meeting place of the river men. The Willamette, before the construction of a railroad, offered the easiest method of communication. The locks were not yet built, and the upper river boats were tied to a dock south of the Cliff House and freight was carried and the passengers walked to the dock below.

In 1856, when the first issue of the Oregon City Enterprise was published, the Cliff House was advertised as a modern hotel and an excellence of the food was featured in the notice. W. L. White and T. A. Rhoades were then the proprietors.

In 1867, Mr. White took over the management alone and enlarged the building. He remained in charge until shortly before his death. Mr. White was appointed county judge in 1874, and was elected to that position in 1882 and again in 1886. During his administration the Clackamas county court house was built.

The Cliff House in pioneer times was known throughout the northwest as a social center, and balls and banquets were given by the score in the large room on the first floor, especially fitted for the purpose.

Thomas Ryan, now deputy state treasurer and ex-county judge, was once proprietor of the Cliff House. E. C. Holden and John Bittner are other proprietors.

During recent years the Cliff House has been conducted as a rooming house.
