MAPLE LANE, Ore., June 15.—(Special.)—Miss Julia Schmidt, a member of the eighth grade graduating class of the local school, read the class prophecy at the recent promotion exercises. It follows:

Well here I am at dear old Maple Lane again after an absence of 15 years. As I stepped from the W. V. S. car I looked around to see if I could recognize any familiar landmarks and the first thing that met my eyes was

The dear old schoolhouse by the road. The bare-foot boys still sunning. Around it still the fir trees grow, The cars still by it running.

It is a little more weather-beaten and a few more panes of glass missing than when our class graduated in 1916. The flag pole which was erected that year stands lonesome and forgotten, and the woodshed that once was in now replaced by a tent.

As I stood ruminating on the past, the children came trooping out, not more than 20 in all, and I wondered if the district had been divided again.

There were six in our 1916 graduating class and one post-graduate pupil. Mr. Githner was our teacher and with what skill and patience he labored with us, great credit is due to him for his untiring efforts.

Marion Githner, our post-graduate pupil, is the leader of the celebrated

CLACKAMAS SCHOOL GRADUATES FOURTEEN EXERCISES ARE GIVEN IN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH—CLASS POEM IS COMPOSED.

CLACKAMAS, Ore., June 15.—(Special.)—The graduating exercises of the eighth grade class of the Clackamas grammar school were held in the Congregational church here Tuesday evening in the presence of a full house.

The church was decorated with tub palm trees and the national colors. The class flower was the rose of which there was a profusion.

The class numbered twelve graduates, the largest in the history of the school. The program was as follows:

Invocation, Rev. Mr. Coleman, Class song. Salutatory, Clara Johnston. Class history, Roy Johnston. Class poem, Vera Flanery.

Song, "Voices of the Woods," Clara Johnston, Vera Flanery, Mildred Dedman and George Potter. Address, Rev. H. N. Smith. Class yell.

Class prophecy, Mildred Dedman. Valedictory, Harlie Brown. Song, "America."

The other members of the class are: Burley Reynolds, Margaret Robinson, Bernard Moore, James Winker, Elmer Gray and Theodore Wolf.

The class motto was "Rowing, not Drifting." The class poem, composed by Vera Flanery, follows:

Row, Don't Drift. If success in life you'd win, Row, don't drift.

If a task you once begin, Row, don't drift. If there is a thing to do That is clearly up to you, Shed your coat and "buckle to," Row, don't drift.

If to you a task's assigned, Row, don't drift. Start at once or fall behind, Row, don't drift.

Do not for some others wait, Or you'll surely be too late, And disappointment be your fate, Row, don't drift.

Though the task most tiresome seems Row, don't drift. 'Twill not be helped by idle dreams, Row, don't drift.

Reach right out and grasp an oar, And though your hands be chafed and sore, Your work will bring you safe to shore Row, don't drift.

If you would keep in the lead, Row, don't drift. Other's help you will not need, Row, don't drift.

The path to success is not a span, Go to the task, then, like a man, And show the others that you can, Row, don't drift.

And if happiness you'd find, Row, don't drift.

Bowel Complaints in India. In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventive and cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country, obtainable everywhere. (Adv.)
