MARVELS OF SCIENCE.

In Wondering at the New Ones Don't Forget the Railroad.

The most recent mysteries of science are the ones that receive most attention. The air is full of talk nowadays about the thrilling wonders of wireless telegraph and aviation and subterranean transportation and submarine navigation. And very rightly, for these are marvels. But for that matter so are some of the things which we have gradually grown so used to that we never see them at all.

There is the railroad. Plenty of romantic mystery is to be found in the railroad yard of a great terminal. It is, first of all, a network of steel pathways which seems unreadable. Trains come and go by devious ways; semaphore arms rise or fall in that one rectangular gesture of theirs. The providence that shapes the ends of all this takes the form of men tugging at some very prosaic looking levers in switch towers.

To get still another effect look at the yard by night, when great fluted cones of light pierce the dark, when the only guides are pieces of multi-colored light and signal lamps. The cars of night freight being made up trundle about, and the yard never sleeps. In its way it is as full of life as the jungle. Every locomotive is a dragon harnessed to man's service.

The marvels of science are all about us, and the ones we have grown used to are just as remarkable as those of today and tomorrow.—Culler's

WEATHER TO ORDER.

It May Possibly Be Brought About by the Aid of Electricity.

Is it possible to make weather to order? In the opinion of Sir Oliver Lodge, it is by no means beyond the powers of man. He advances the suggestion that exploration of the upper regions would result in discoveries which would enable man to control the weather.

The latter, he contends, is merely a matter of electrical conditions, and the ingredients necessary for fine weather are an upper atmosphere charged with positive electricity and a negative charge upon the earth's surface. Much, he says, could be done by placing a copper rod round the earth parallel to the equator and discharging millions of amperes (units) from this rod. Sir Oliver points out that we have spent millions on building railways, and why not invest capital in controlling the weather by this means?

Meantime, while we are thinking about the copper rod, much might be done by electricians. Sir Oliver Lodge suggests that they should ascend a high mountain, erect a powerful generating station and discharge all the positive electricity they can produce into the air. If this means much of the abnormal weather from which we suffer at times might be avoided and nature be induced to provide us with more regular seasons.—Rocky Mountain News.

Why Not Say "Woman"? Whenever one has occasion to mention the most remarkable set of the human species one is confronted by the pertinacious fact that there is no general term to describe the subject of one's dissertations except the unlovely and almost meaningless term "female." This term is altogether too general. It includes cows, hens and all other beings of that gender. Some word is needed that will express the female of the human species and nothing else. She who orders the universe and makes planets and stars and stars worth while ought to have a name of her own and one worthy of her. We call upon the nations of the world to devote themselves for a time to this really important task.—Chicago News.

The Lesser of Two Evils. "I'll be mighty glad when I start to school," announced Willie one day.

"Why will you be glad, dear?" asked his mother in surprise.

"Well, then you an' papa will have to cut out this spellin' of words that you don't want me to hear."—Ladies' Home Journal.
