MACKSBURG.

MACKSBURG, Ore., Oct. 19.—(Special)—The potato harvest furnishes the chief industry for the present, the weather being most favorable for the work. The tubers are of excellent quality, larger and more numerous in the hills than in past seasons and are in the dry and clean condition, so rare in this climate, where so often it has been impossible to get them to market otherwise than encrusted with mud. Many car loads have already been sent away and all expedition is being used on the ranches to get the great crop under cover before the rain.

With sorrowful regret we record the death of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Rothenberg, whose serious illness was mentioned in a recent issue of the Enterprise. The little one had been ailing for over a fortnight, but was thought to be improving last week, when a turn for the worse was perceptible on Saturday and a few hours later death came to her relief. Though only fourteen months old, she had evinced a degree of promise that was unusual and her parents have the deepest sympathy of the entire community in their irreparable loss. The burial was at Bear Creek cemetery, and was largely attended. Rev. Fr. Lucas, of the Lutheran church officiating.

The annual mission at the Lutheran church on Sunday, October 15th, was an event of the deepest interest. The morning service, conducted by Fr. Lucas was attended by a large congregation. At the close a dinner was served by the ladies of the parish at the parsonage. Rev. Wm. Kraxberger of Oregon City, preached in English to an attentive and appreciative congregation in the afternoon.

The Minionite congregation held its mission at the Bethel chapel on Saturday, October 15th. The building was crowded to its utmost capacity at all three of the services. Lunch was served at noon.

The Mothers' club met for its 21st session of the year at the home of Mrs. Simon Miller on the afternoon of October 12th. A very busy and interesting time was enjoyed. The visitors were: Mrs. Holderman, a guest of Mrs. Miller's, from California; Mrs. Moshberger, Mrs. Bikel and Mrs. Shields. After the completion of the afternoon's work, a tempting repast was served. Mrs. Keeling invited the ladies to meet at her home for the next session, and the club adjourned till October 26th.

The Watch-Temple sawmill is still rushed with orders from abroad and the home builders are patiently waiting for timber to go on with their work.

Aims of Bill Declared Impossible.

WILSONVILLE, Ore., Oct. 17.—(Editor of the Enterprise)—Before taking up the arguments in the voters' bulletin I wish to call attention to a mistake in typewriting or printing in your article in The Enterprise. I intended to ask the question, "Why is $5000 of farmer A's money worth ten times as much as farmer B's money?" It was printed "$500 of farmer B's money."

In the first part of paragraph three of the voters' bulletin it says, "We have been enticering people into the state." What will we be doing by lowering the interest rate but enticering people into the state. This paragraph ends as follows, "Hundreds are ruined each year by the foreclosure of mortgages bearing exorbitant interest rates." I have shown in my articles and I will state again that it is not the interest rate that hurts but the principal that really hurts. The interest rate is already regulated by law and mortgages carrying exorbitant interest rates will not hold good in our courts.

Paragraph six in the bulletin says rural credits will mean an "end to the perpetual worry and expense of mortgage renewing; it means practically an end to foreclosures, lost homes and blighted hopes," etc. How beautiful it were only true, but it is absolutely an impossibility with the principal unregulated as at the present time. Reading this paragraph reminds one of the advertisements for patent medicines of the almanac variety. It is a sort of a cure all with one bottle or your money back; there never was a medicine that would cure all the diseases and there never will be one that reform, let alone a fake reform like this one, that will cure all our economic and social diseases.

Paragraph nine says the Oregon law is almost identical with the Australian and New Zealand rural credits laws. Fortunately I happen to have two copies of the important section of these laws. There are a good many laws and to say the Oregon amendment is almost identical with them is going a long way. To show how it differs from one of them I will quote the rural credits law of South Australia showing its field of operation. It makes advancements of three kinds as follows:

1. To farmers and other producers.

2. In aid of industry on security of lands, owned outright or leased from the government.

3. To local authorities of towns, villages and the like, on the security of their taxes.

Read that over again and then read section four of the Oregon amendment and you will see how far the argument in the voters' bulletin is off. In New Zealand each year the government treasurer may set aside, "$7,500,000 to be lent to farmers, $3,750,000 to be lent to workers, and $3,750,000 to be lent to municipalities." Does that sound like the Oregon amendment? Read it over again and see.

Every one of the Australian states and New Zealand will lend more money, than the Oregon amendment, on the same security. I do not say their laws do not have limitations of a certain number of dollars per acre, as in the Oregon amendment, but I challenge any of the framers or their supporters of this amendment to show such a limitation. I have been unable to find it.

Paragraph ten in the Voters' bulletin says, "Do not be deceived," the moneyed interests will defeat this bill if possible. The Oregon rural credits amendment is a bonding system of rural credits. I happen to have resolutions drawn up by the financial committee at the 148th annual meeting of the chamber of commerce of the state of New York, which is a long way of saying Wall street, held May 4, 1916, which reads as follows: "Resolved, That the chamber of commerce of the State of New York opposes any method of agricultural banking in the United States which requires the use of government funds, or the use of any postal savings deposits in any rural banking project, or any legislation exempting from taxation any particular class of obligations." You will notice that there is nothing said about Wall street being opposed to a bonding system of rural credits, and they are not. If the framers of this amendment have any proof to the contrary why didn't they state it and its source as I have just done. A bonding rural credits is a good thing for Wall street and they are not fighting it but they are prepared to fight a real rural credits as the above resolution shows.

With this article and the ones before it I have covered the most important points in the rural credits proposition. I gladly invite any of the framers or supporters of this amendment to show, on any of the different points, where I am wrong in my contentions or where I have misquoted or stretched the truth. I do not claim to know it all and if what little I do know, or think I know, on rural credits is wrong they will do me a decided favor by showing me where, how, and why, before November 7, 1916. Until I am shown I consider there is but one way to vote on the Oregon rural credits amendment and that is "NO."

Democrat, is supporting Hughes because of Wilson's stand on the anti-rage issue.

Could Not Do Her Cooking.

Mrs. F. H. Hartmeister, Tea, Mo., writes: "I was affected with kidney trouble for two years. I was so bad this summer I could hardly do my cooking. I got Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me. I feel like a new person." Too many women neglect symptoms of kidney derangement. When the kidneys are not properly doing their work poisons left in the system cause weak back, dizziness, puffiness under eyes, swollen ankles, joints, and rheumatism. Jones Drug Co.—Adv.
